BRITISH LION SHIPS IN CONTROL OVER TURKISH OIL LANDS

BY CLARENCE K. STREET
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
[Copyright, 1922, Public Ledger.]

LAUSANNE, Nov. 26.—"It is all very well to divide up, on paper, the natural resources of other countries—but it is best first to be sure of having them to divide." When Mustapha Kemal made that laughing remark to me at Angora apropos the San Remo oil agreements and disposition of Mosul, the Turks were just organizing their army.

While everyone was smiling at his statement that they would drive the Greeks from Smyrna and Thrace they were guffawing at the Turkish claims to Mosul.

That was two years ago, when the only question concerning Mosul oil was limited to England and America. Washington, which demanded the open door in Mesopotamia for Americans to prospect for and exploit oil, was exchanging a series of notes with London, which was in possession of the territory and had violently closed the door, claiming a monopoly on all of the oil. The notes never got anywhere, but the forgotten Turkish Nationalists did, completely reversing the tables and making Great Britain's future possession of Mosul extremely doubtful. The door which the Allies so carefully shut against America in the Sevres Treaty, the tri-partite and San Remo accords is being opened by the Turks and the welcome sign is hung out—especially for Americans.

Now that the Turkish demand for Mosul is coming up in a few

Beaten and Robbed

Residents in dwellings adjacent to E. E. Arieilanes's tire shop at 1014 West Second street summoned the police last night after witnessing Arieilanes's black-jacking and looting at the hands of four men, two of whom were reported to be sailors. The men called the tire man to the door of his shop and after striking him on the head, searched his pockets and took him inside the shop again, neighbors declared. Patrolman Harper investigated and after forcing an entrance through a rear window found Arieilanes lying unconscious on his bed. He was taken to the Receiving Hospital.

Editor Injured

BRISTOL (Va.-Tenn.) Nov. 26. H. I. Leyshon, city editor of the Knoxville Journal and Tribune and James Ray, pilot, were painfully injured here tonight when an airplane, in which they came from Knoxville, fell on the golf course at the local country club. The machine was wrecked.

The newspaper man was hastening here to write for his paper the story of the Smith-Burchfield killing and the machine was believed to have struck a telephone wire.

Pistols for Meal

Three masked bandits last night partook of a meal prepared by F. Shimamoto in his one-man restaurant at 1002 South San Pedro street and at its conclusion presented pistols instead of payment. Shimamoto told the police they took $12 from the cash register and fled in an automobile they had parked at the curb previous to their entry.

PROHIBITION BREAKDOWN UNDER FIRE

Wild Philadelphia Orgy at Football Game Arouses Weeks and President

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Investigation of the complete breakdown in the enforcement of prohibition in Philadelphia on Saturday, where 50,000 people assembled at the annual Army and Navy game may be ordered this week by President Harding.

The violation of the law was so flagrant as to be apparent to the most casual observer. It existed at the game itself. Men and some women drank underneath the stadium between the halves and all night some of the large hotels were filled with drunks. There were so many as to excite the anger of members of Congress and Cabinet officials.

The scenes in the hotels are described as quite beyond belief in these dry days. The bars in the hotels sold the mild one-half of 1 per cent drinks, but private rooms had well flourishing bars in operation and men and women drank to their satisfaction and many became drunk to the disturbance of the guests.

It is understood here that Secretary Weeks intends to call to the attention of President Harding the disgraceful violations of the law. Word comes here tonight from Philadelphia that Mr. Weeks informed a hotel proprietor that he will lay the breakdown of enforcement of the law before the President at the Cabinet meeting on next Tuesday.

In the face of President Harding's declaration on last Friday and discussion of the prohibition question by the Cabinet on that day, those who are familiar with the situation say that a rigid investigation will be started as to the violations at Philadelphia on Saturday and elsewhere.

It is generally believed that there will be a complete reorganization of the prohibition enforcement unit within the next month.

FRAULEINS FAIL TO FIND ARMY BEAUX

German Girls Come to Marry Gay Cavaliers and Find Them A.W.O.L.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Four gay cavaliers who, while members of the American Army of Occupation in Germany wooed and won four pretty damsels and who, after returning home, corresponded and eventually encouraged the German girls to come to America to be married were not on hand when the maidens arrived yesterday from Germany on the steamship Reliance. And they were still A.W.O.L. from Ellis Island today.

The disappointed would-be brides are:

Christine Schwang, anxiously awaiting Private Bell of Portland, Or.; Gusti Schmidt, who came to wed Fritz Wilms of New York City; Marie Sandkul, betrothed to Edward Anderson of Worcester, Mass., and Marie Schmidt, Gusti's sister, questing a lover, whose tender missives were postmarked Chanute, Kan.

There were tears from all four yesterday when they realized there was none to meet them and bring them into the United States and renewed weeping today when the German maids were told that unless their fiances claim them within a few days they will be deported.

TURKS LOSE FIRST TILT AT PARLEY

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LAUSANNE, Nov. 26.—A review of the first week of the Lausanne conference shows that Turkey met signal defeat in her first demand, namely for a plebiscite in Western Thrace, which she maintains is overwhelmingly of Turkish population. The Turks, however, have placed on the diplomatic board a proposal which is affording great embarrassment to all the powers; they want a neutral belt marked out along the entire European frontier from the Black Sea to the Aegean, and they want the powers to guarantee that it shall be kept neutral.

This unquestionably is a move calculated to secure peace in the Balkans, but Europe hesitates to take over direct responsibility concerning Balkan territory, where so many wars have been fought and where the "national aspirations" are still a powerful factor for discord.

Similarly, Turkey asks that the Aegean islands, which lie near her Anatolian coast, be demilitarized, and an autonomous form of government established. This is an extension to the sea of the neutral belt proposal suggested for the Balkans.

BULGARIA ANGRY

When it comes to a settlement of the straits treaty Turkey will undoubtedly demand additional concessions against aggressions by Christian Europe. Ismet Pasha appears to be blooming forth as an astute statesman.

The Bulgarians are angry over the virtual decision to make Deaghatch merely a free port instead of a sovereign Bulgarian commercial center. The Bulgarian delegation has issued a broadside to the press condemning Greek objection as voiced by Venizelos; it insists that an outlet for Bulgaria to the Aegean Sea would be effective only if its access were assured through territory either Bulgarian or autonomous, and declares that any other solution would be palliative, entailing dangerous consequences with respect to Bulgarian trade. It concludes:

"Bulgaria, though defeated and humiliated, has at least the right to refuse this gift, which reminds her too much of the old tale of Danaos, so thoroughly in conformity with the Hellenic traditions of the days of Troy."

LEFT-HANDED GIFT

In other words, Deaghatch, without absolute possession, it is considered, would be a left-handed present of doubtful value in the event of new Balkan intrigues or conflicts.

The position of the United States on Turkish capitulations probably will be found to be not essentially different from the French and English positions, particularly the French, when the time comes to discuss that delicate topic.

All the great powers undoubtedly will follow America's lead insisting that foreigners accused of crime still shall come to trial before foreign courts in Turkey and that foreign, or at least mixed tribunals, shall have jurisdiction in property disputes involving foreigners.

It seems likely that France will propose the establishment of ju-

QUITS BRIDE DAY AFTER MARRIAGE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SOUTH BEND (Ind.) Nov. 26.—Prof. John P. Tiernan and his wife, Augusta H. Tiernan, are reconciled, legally.

Mr. Tiernan, whose marriage Saturday in Crown Point to Mrs. Blance Brimmer was declared illegal nine hours later, returned home to his legal wife early this morning.

Mrs. Brimmer is 24 years old and the daughter of the Rev. Charles H. Hawn, a Methodist minister of Hansell, Iowa. She said that she met Tiernan for the first time at the trial of his first wife's suit against Harry Poulin, South Bend haberdasher, whom Mrs. Tiernan charged was the father of her third child.

Later she carried on a correspondence with the law instructor, their marriage taking place on the occasion of their second meeting, just two days after Tiernan had obtained a divorce.

Judge Chester Montgomery, who late Saturday night vacated the divorce decree granted by him Thursday to Tiernan from Mrs. Augusta Tiernan, will be asked to set aside the rehearing set for December 11, George Sands, attorney for the South Bend professor, will appear in court tomorrow morning and request that Mr. Tiernan's cross suit for divorce be dismissed.

DISMISS SUIT

Judge Montgomery refused to discuss his probable course of action, but intimated that the cross-suit will be dismissed and the rehearing automatically dropped.

But the plan to "start all over again," as outlined today by the former Notre Dame University professor and the woman whose sensational charges that Harry Poulin was the father of her self-confessed illegitimate child, Billy, were defeated in the recent Tiernan-Poulin paternity suit, is more practical than idealistic.

The reconciliation reopens instead of concludes the twisted story of simple, primitive emotions, and complex uncomprehensible actions.

For the Tiernans have reunited only to separate. Prof. Tiernan, as soon as he has sold the family home on Diamond avenue, will go to Chicago to establish himself in a law firm.

"I never met Ralph Obenchain," Tiernan said tonight. "But I understand he is a fine fellow. I think we ought to get together and talk things over."

With a curious detachment, Prof. Tiernan is able to regard his family affairs as a "case," and plans to specialize in "family law."

WIFE TO LEAVE

Mrs. Tiernan and Baby Billy who will be a year old tomorrow, will follow Tiernan. "But we will go to a different place for a while, until we see how things are going," Mrs. Tiernan declared. "Mr. Tiernan will come to see me every day, but for the present we will not live together. I believe I shall get a job. It will help me get back to normal."

The two little girls, Mary and Irene, are to be placed in St. George's Home, Chicago, until their father's boarding-house and their mother's room merge into a family home.

Romance out of tragedy, muses Prof. Tiernan, while his wife re-

TRIBUTE PAID "SCORPION"

Sympathizers With Ricardo Flores Magon Gather at His Bier for Final Act of Devotion

Hundreds of Magonistas and sympathizers yesterday paid their last respects to Ricardo Flores Magon, who with his brother Enrique, more than a score of years ago founded the radical political cult of Northern Mexico which fostered unrest among Southern Californian Mexicans in the early days of America's participation in the World War.

The bier of "The Scorpion" in the mortuary chapel at 555 South Figueroa street was viewed by his disciples from early in the day until late in the evening. Magon died in the Federal penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., last Tuesday. With Librado Rivera he was transferred there from McNeil's Island, Wash., Nov. 3, 1919, to serve a twenty-year sentence imposed for violation of the Espionage Act.

BODY HELD HERE

His body is being held by Bresee Brothers, undertakers pending a decision from the Mexican government allowing its interment in the land from which Magon was forced to flee for his life.

Enrique Magon, who collaborated with his brother Ricardo in the publishing of the Regeneracion, the newspaper which printed the assertedly disloyal articles which resulted in "The Scorpion's" third and last imprisonment, is now residing in the rear of 1093 Exposition Boulevard. He is awaiting action of the Department of Labor on deportation proceedings the hearing of which was completed by the immigration authorities here last month. The "Communist-Anarchist," as he styles himself, is at liberty under $1000 bail.

DEMONSTRATION PLANNED

The death of the elder Magon, first of the so-called political prisoners to succumb while imprisoned for violation of war-time laws, will be the occasion in Washington today of a memorial mass meeting of amnesty advocates, dispatches stated last night.

Picketing of the White House as protest, in behalf of the sixty-two offenders still serving sentence in Federal prisoners, will be resumed and Magon's death will be made the theme of the banners displayed before President Harding's gate.

USELESS CRITICISM OF UNITED STATES BY ALIENS WAILED

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The resentment of M. Clemenceau's animadversions upon the foreign policy of the United States expressed by some Senators and other public men is indicative of a "state of mind" that is becoming more and more pronounced as more and more prominent Europeans appear among us, deputed to tell us our shortcomings—from their viewpoint.

What causes the resentment, when you get down to bedrock, appears to be the hurling of insult and criticism in our faces by distinguished foreigners, for those who were aroused by M. Clemenceau's accusation that "America left France in the lurch," by refusing to ratify the tri-partite alliance are forced to admit that all this and much more comprehensive condemnation of the American policy since 1919 has been uttered by former President Wilson and his followers.

The point seems to be that when Mr. Wilson and the American League of Nations advocates tell us we have stultified ourselves by rejecting the program he brought back from Paris it's of no great moment, being all in the family, but when an outsider accuses us of moral laxity we get hot under the collar.

NO BRITISH LASH

Those who are exercised over M. Clemenceau's remarks are moved to inquire why the Tiger singled out America for a lashing and spared Great Britain. True, England ratified the tri-partite agreement to protect France from aggression, but that agreement was not to be effective unless the United States ratified also. There was, however, another agreement, negotiated by Lloyd George and Briand at Cannes nearly a year ago to protect France from aggression. It would have furnished France complete protection from Germany but Great Britain refused to ratify it. Does M. Clemenceau accuse Great Britain of leaving France in the lurch? No, on that subject the Tiger is a lamb.

One of the earliest European emissaries to tell us what we ought to do and ought not to do was our former compatriot, Lady Astor. She was inclined to be very much ashamed of her native land for not joining the League of Nations, according to press reports of her speeches. Her shame was no less than that of the Wilsonites, freely and frequently expressed, and folks took no offense. Others, full of resentment, rose to inquire with how much tolerance the British would listen to a British-born American citizen who should go home and upbraid them concerning foreign policies.

Only within the last few weeks a former member of the British Cabinet has been making speeches in America, telling us that we ought not to raise our tariff rates to the level of the Fordney-McCumber Law, that we ought not to subsidize our merchant marine and that we ought not to limit immigration so radically. Yet England has established ironclad protection of her "key industries" and has a tariff which the French complain is prohibitive.

FREE ADVICE

The gratuitous advice regarding immigration restriction was more puzzling, inasmuch as the immigrants from Great Britain number only a fraction of the British quota established under a law designed to favor a large immigration from Northwestern Europe.

For three years there has been a persistent effort to entice or shame America into participation in European affairs. We have been told with all the impressiveness the Europeans could muster that American isolation was a selfish, unholy policy. Yet only a few weeks ago Bonar Law, then moving to unhorse Lloyd George, asserted that if France refused to co-operate it would be wise for England to withdraw wholly from continental affairs and adopt the American isolation policy. The man who propounded a policy that British have been wont to bemoan when pursued by others is now Prime Minister.

The Balfour note to France on war debts was another attempt to shame America for insisting upon payment of obligations pertaining to so righteous a cause as the war to save civilization. In this case so much resentment of the gesture was stirred at home that the Balfour note became one of the indictments of the Lloyd George ministry and a contributing cause of its fall.

START FINAL QUIZ OF PASTOR KILLING

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SOMERVILLE (N. J.) Nov. 26. The Somerset county grand jury will reconvene tomorrow to begin what authorities say will be the last phase of the investigation of the murder of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and his choir leader, Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills.

Official sources declared the investigation would be completed by Wednesday night at the latest and that the jury's final action would be known before Thanksgiving Day.

TEMBLORS FELT OVER THREE CITIES

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 26.—Earth tremors strong enough to break windows, shake buildings and homes and rattle dishes were felt in St. Louis, Southern Illinois, Eastern Indiana and Western Kentucky about 9:30 o'clock tonight, according to reports received here.

At St. Louis University seismographical observatoyr where the tremors were recorded, attendants described them of moderate intensity between 9:31 and 9:39. They said seismographic indications pointed to the tremors occurring in a southeasterly direction. A shock which experts said was "sudden" and of sufficient intensity to cause slight damage in homes was recorded at 9:32. No actual damage other than the breaking of windows was reported up to a late hour.

A dispatch from Eldorado, Ill., said chimneys on several residences were toppled to the ground by the tremors although no serious damage was reported there. Many residents of the town were said to fear more tremors and were remaining awake during the night.

KILLING IS DISCOVERED BY FIREMEN

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BRISTOL (Tenn.) Nov. 26.—James W. Smith, 50, a grocer, his wife, their 2-year-old daughter, Ruby, and their niece, Mrs. Delline Burchfield, and her son, Charles, 13, were murdered here early this morning and the house where they lived burned over their heads.

Ben Burchfield, 41, husband of one of the murdered women, was arrested at Johnston City this afternoon and is being held in connection with the crime. He protests his innocence but officers say his shirt and trousers were covered with blood when he was arrested.

The crime was discovered about 4 o'clock this morning when the fire department was called to the combination residence and grocery store of Smith, on State street.

The charred bodies of the five were found in the ruins of the structure. They evidently had been beaten to death with an axe and the house set fire to hide traces of the crime.

Burchfield and his wife had been separated and he is said to have made threats against her.

Besides American builders of motorless planes, entrants will come from Germany and Holland, and there may be other European countries, notably Anthony H. G. Wife Horsewhips Mission Worker and Girl Guest

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 26. — Edward Redecker, aged 50, a mission worker of Chicago, his wife and Miss Mary Doherty, aged 28, of St. Loui, were under arrest here tonight charged with disturbing the peace as the result of a horsewhipping Mrs. Redecker gave to her husband and Miss Doherty in a hotel room this morning.

Redecker and his wife arrived here Saturday night. Mrs. Redecker said her husband requested her to lodge at the home of his parents who live here while he went to a hotel.

Ignoring his request, she declared she followed him, and after he had registered at a hotel, slipped into his room and hid under the bed, armed with a horsewhip.

Later Mrs. Redecker asserted her husband returned to the room, and in a few minutes Miss Doherty knocked and was admitted. She added that she left her hiding place, accused Miss Doherty of stealing her husband and applied the whip.

FOUR HUNTERS KILLED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 26.—The deer hunting season just closed added four victims to the yearly toll of hunting accidents in Wisconsin, bringing the total for the year to near thirty, an unofficial check-up reveals. Duck hunting proved to be particularly perilous this year. More than a score of duck hunters died by accidental shooting or drowning. Fewer deer have been killed this season than for many years previous.

CLEMENCEAU STARTS WEST

The Tiger, After Conferring at Length With Col House, Entrains for Chicago

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Georges Clemenceau, war-time Premier of France, tonight turned westward with renewed confidence in his success as messenger from France to America.

The private car "Bethlehem," the Tiger's traveling lair, left the Pennsylvania Station at 6:05 tonight bound for Chicago, where it is expected to arrive shortly after 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The 81-year-old statesman, after conferences today with Col. House, whose guest he is in America, left the East with plans for a changed technique in the accomplishment of his mission.

For several hours today Clemenceau and Col. House reviewed together the effect of the speeches made so far. Just what changes in manner of delivery or material for future addresses resulted from the conference was not made known, but it was indicated by friends that the Tiger had acquiesced in advice in regard to important changes of one kind or another.

Clemenceau began the one-day interval in New York between his return from the Yale-Harvard football game and the departure for Chicago tonight with an achievement of the remarkable. The private car in which he spent the night pulled into the Pennsylvania Station shortly after 2 o'clock this morning, and despite the unavoidable clamor of the big station the Tiger slept extremely late—for him. It was nearly 6 o'clock before he awoke and demanded onion soup and boiled eggs.

Fairy callers at the private car were Miss Anna Morgan, chairman of the American committee for devastated France and Miss Norman Dyke.

Late in the afternoon, Clemenceau, unheralded, stepped from an automobile at the tomb of Grant on Riverside Drive. Almost unnoticed, the party entered the edifice and the former Premier of France stood uncovered while a wreath was placed upon the Sarcophagus.

As pleased as any boy, Clemenceau later wandered around the aquarium at the Battery for an hour. He insisted upon seeing every variety of fish on display, and had a humorous word or two to say about nearly all of them.

The tour of the city, his visit to Grant's tomb and the entertainment offered by the "Fish theater" left the Tiger in high spirits. He returned with his party to the private car shortly before the hour scheduled for departure and demanded food.

Friends who had accompanied him through his stay, declared that he was in better health today than at any time since his arrival in this country.

The Harvesting and Processing of the Almond

BY GEORGE LAW.

THE popular almond, mild and pleasant in flavor, high in mineral and vitamin content, is a product of peculiar preferences and requirements, both as to environment and the arrangement of varieties in the orchard. It declares unequivocally in favor of California; we produce 98 per cent of the American crop—and it elects those sections of California where the climate and soil conditions are best suited to the production of the nut. Then the nuts pass out onto an agitated screen, through which many of the particles of refuse sift to another screen, while some of the nuts pass into the delivery shoot. But two more screens, lower on the machine, continue to separate the nuts from the debris before the work is effectively completed. Then the nuts pass out on a moving belt, while the other refuse falls into a

BRITISH MAY LOSE MOSUL

Turkish Demands for Oil Land Considered

American Capital Welcome if Claims Are Granted

days before the Lausanne parley for serious consideration, it is well to consider Mustapha Kemal's attitude. Here it is as he gave it to me then—and I have every reason to believe that his attitude has not changed on this important point of policy or any other in the last two years:

"It is evident that enslavement of a people in order to appropriate the natural resources of their country is contrary not only to the spirit of the century but also to the most elementary principles of humanity. We think the oil riches of Mosul, which moreover are within the frontiers defined by our national pact, ought to be exploited freely for the common benefit of that region's population and all humanity, without a monopoly of any sort.

"But we do not want English capital there. The English have a peculiar habit in their commercial dealings. First, they invest capital in a country and then on the pretext of protecting their investments they invade the country with troops and inostall themselves permanently.

AMERICA FAVORED

"We are most favorable to American capital being invested in Mosul and in all parts of Turkey as well for we know you have no desire for any part of our territory and no aims incompatible with Turkish independence. Naturally we shall need a great deal of aid in building up our country and we are especially desirous of obtaining both material and technical help from America in preference to any other country.

"We are not willing to accept a plebecite for Mosul considering the Vilayet belongs to Turkey. Arabs and Kurds reside in the Province but the majority are Turkish. We held Mosul when the World War ended. The English agreed to let it remain with us. Then they asked us to allow one of their generals to come there on a friendly visit. He brought troops with him, more came later and thus despite the Armistice agreement the English occupied the district. A friendly British call," and he smiled.

TURKS SUPPORTED

The Turkish claim to Mosul gets important support from the Sevres Treaty itself. In that treaty the powers established—on paper — an autonomous Kurdistant State in North Mosul on the principle of self-determination of peoples and recognized the Kurdish population of Mosul to the extent of making the provision that if Mosul later voted to join Kurdistan it would be annexed to the Kurd State, meanwhile remaining under the English Mesopotamian mandate.

Now there is no more question of Kurdistan not forming an integral part in Turkey, thus demolishing the present British claim to treat Mosul separately. Mosul was promised the French in the secret treaties of 1915, but was wheeded from M. Clemenceau, who evidently did not understand its value, by Lloyd George during the Paris negotiations.

Then by the San Remo accord the British gave the French 25 per cent of the Mosul oil production, the French agreeing to the expensive task of protecting the proposed pipe line from Mosul to the Mediterranean.

CLAIMS UNVERIFIED

The British in their notes with Washington declared their monopoly of Mosul oil did not depend on the Sevres Treaty but on a concession from the Turkish Petroleum Company—controlled by the Anglo-Persian and gained from the Ottoman government in 1914. I have had access to official Ottoman documents at Constantinople giving all concessions before the war and the English claim is not mentioned, all Mosul oil still remaining on the Sultan's civil list.

My intermediary for the Turkish Petroleum Company told me its whole claim to a concession was based on a letter from the Ottoman Minister of Finance saying he was willing to consider a favorable proposal but the negotiations were broken off by the war. The Angora Finance Minister I know two years ago offered the Mosul Oil rights to the Standard Oil for a $300,000,000 loan.

The French are attempting to settle the oil question outside the conference—for they are willing to let the territory go to the Turks provided they get at least a part of the oil. But they have made a big mistake by bringing up the Thracian question first. There they have been able to almost isolate the Turk but after this frontier is drawn they have no longer any weapon to hold over the Turks and when the turn of Mosul and the straits comes it is they, not the Turks, who will be isolated.

Not only the Standard Oil Company is interested but various independent American syndicates, especially the Chester group, which is considered very favorably by the Turks and its agents are active not only at Lausanne but also at Angora.

It is a situation big with possibilities, not the least being that Mosul may provide the world with the extraordinary spectacle of the British lion dropping a bone.

Michigan Bruins Die When Farmers Turn Hunters After Looting

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PETOSKEY (Mich.) Nov. 26.—Several bears have been killed or captured around Brutus, Carp Lake and other northern towns during the last two weeks. They had carried off many lambs, calves and pigs during their rampages. Some fell victims to traps, while others were shot roaming in the woods and thick swamps. Their hides bring as high as $50. Several gallons of "lard" are obtained from one bear.

Dry Officers Discover Jar With Much Money Intended for Italian Tour

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ONTARIO, Nov. 26.—That jar containing nearly $700 in cash which was recently dug up together with considerable quantities of hard liquor in wholesale raids on the establishments of alleged bootleggers in this vicinity by Ontario and county officers was the property of Mrs. Joseph Falabrino. That she had been saving it for months to defray the expenses of a long-contemplated trip to Italy, the land of her birth, was the declaration of the woman here today.

The woman's husband only a few months ago was released from the County Jail after serving a sentence following his conviction on a bootlegging charge, and officers who found the cache were of the opinion that he had been doing a lucrative business since his release.

The jar containing the money is being held, together with the liquor, by Charles Ward, special officer of the District Attorney's office, and will probably be produced as evidence against Falabrino later, it is said. In the meantime, indications are that Mrs. Falabrino's contemplated trip abroad is likely to be delayed.

uous coast of California. Much has been written on this subject, but up to quite recently no one was in a position to investigate the underlying causes. The Carnegie Institute and the Hydrographic Office of the Navy Department have studied the possibilities of the sonic depth recorder, and both believe that developments of great importance will result from the work now beginning. The cost to the Navy for each installation of the recorder is about $18,000.

TWO METHODS

Two methods of obtaining soundings will be used, one for depths up to about ninety fathoms and the other for greater depths. The first method, known as the angle method, uses the ship's propellers as a sound source and the echo is received in the compensator from the sound receivers. The depth scale is graduated by obtaining a number of points on the curve when the set is calibrated. After calibration the depth may be read directly off the scale. The second, or deep sea method, uses the speed of sound in water as a means of obtaining the depth. An impulse is sent out on the oscillator and the elapsed time between the sending and receiving of the oscillation is automatically recorded when the echo completes the electrical circuit. The deepest hole found in the cruise of the Stewart was 3200 fathoms, so there is practically no limit to the depths that can be found.

The apparatus to be used in the test is as follows:

A—Standard Navy sound receiver.

C—Navy sonic depth finder recently developed at the engineering experiment station, Annapolis.

With the old lead method of sounding it would take about three hours to get a single sounding at this depth. This new method takes about four minutes and maybe more accurate.

SPECIAL ORDERS

Lieut.-Commander B. H. Bier of the Corry, and Lieut.-Commander S. F. Heim of the Hull have received special instructions in the use of this new sounding device, and are well qualified to conduct these tests. The Navy and the Carnegie Institute are working in close co-operation in this expedition. Profs. Lawson and Willis represent the institute.

The Hull and Corry are now at San Francisco from which port the vessels will run about 7000 miles of continuous soundings between San Francisco and Point Descanso, Mexico. The soundings will be run on parallel lines approximately at right angles to the 2000 fathom curve at intervals of five to ten miles extending from as near the shore line as possible to the floor of the Pacific. After obtaining these soundings a map of the continental shelf, from the shore line to the floor of the Pacific, will be developed.

The United States destroyer Stewart recently finished a cruise from Newport, R. I., to Chefoo, China, via the Mediterranean and Suez, in which the new sounding device which can be used in both deep and shallow water was given a severe test.

The Stewart was the first vessel to be equipped so that a continual line of soundings can be run throughout a cruise. During her cruiso to Chefoo exhaustive tests of the sounding device were carried out and daily reports were made by radio to the Navy Department at Washington.

NO ERROR FOUND

The radio reports show that during the whole of the cruise the apparatus worked with no apparent error. The machine recorded correct and rapid soundings with ease. The Stewart made the cruse from Newport to Gibraltar in nine days and in this time over 900 soundings were taken at frequencies varying between twenty and two minutes. The ship's movements while steaming steadily at ten knots were not interfered with except for a two-hour interval.

During this two-hour period it was shown that successful soundings can be taken at intervals of one minute in the deepest water. The outline of the bottom of the sea over the course was minutely recorded between Josephine and Gettysburg bank. The sea bottom there was found to consist of an extensive plain bordered by mountains and tablelands, some of which rose 4000 feet above the plains. Several deep depressions, none of which are shown on charts, were also discovered. Positive depth data were obtained where charts show only negative data in the vicinity of the Azore Islands. It is believed the outline of the trade routes should give any number of such landmarks for use in finding a ship's position. The exploration of all the sea floor is possible by the use of the new device, which bids fair to revolutionize piloting and navigation.

IMMEDIATE MEASURES

The new sounding device gives immediate measurements of depths of water so that there is no lead to heave or wire to unreel and reel in again as in other means of obtaining soundings. It is used in connection with a sound transmitter and sound receiver and depends upon the reflected echo of a signal given off by the vessel's sound transmitter being received by the same vessel's receiver. The universal sounding apparatus was designed principally by Harvey C. Hayes, physicist of the United States naval engineering experiment station, Annapolis. Dr. Hayes made the cruise to Gibraltar aboard the Stewart.

The sound transmitter used in connection with Dr. Hayes's sounding device develops a high frequency vibration in a diaphragm which is in contact with sea water. The high pitched note carries a great many miles. The sound receiver is capable of receiving sound transmitting signals over great distances. The value of this receiving apparatus in locating light vessels and buoys equipped with sound transmitters is already known to the maritime world though it has never been used in connection with sounding the bottom of the sea.

Long Beach Man Arrested Just Before Crook Takes Coin

[By a Times Staff Correspondent.]

LONG BEACH, Nov. 26.—The Long Beach police are searching today for a clever crook who, posing as a detective, first arrested Walter Hines of this city, and then took his valuables.

The robbery was first reported to the police by W. R. James, a roommate of Hines, who said that his friend gave a gold watch, a ring and $8 to the bogus detective, who then told his victim to "beat it."

TIERNANS ARE "HAPPY" AGAIN

iterates again and again. "Well, we'll try it and see how it goes. Anyway, we'd have to live a year in Illinois before we could get a divorce."

A wild, hysterical, vindictive wife was Mrs. Tiernan as she looked up from her sewing this noon and saw her husband standing there.

"You left me for that Blanche. How could you?" she screamed. "You used to fling those letters in front of my face; you even showed me her picture, but I never thought you would marry her."

Suddenly Mrs. Tiernan's wrath was directed against her husband's illegal wife of two days. "That woman—I hate her. Just let me get a chance at her. Just let me, I won't leave a hair in her head."

TELLS DECEIT

Slowly, as a teacher, Prof. Tiernan explained that Blanche had deceived and tricked him, that she was a bigamist.

"That woman deceived me," Tiernan's low, snarling voice contrasted with his wife's staccato shrieks. "She told me that Brimmer was dead, but admitted she had not seen him die. Now, they tell me, he is alive and perhaps there is another husband in Pennsylvania."

A wild storm of feminine rebukes for a husband who would desert his divorced wife and run away to marry a woman he had never met, and a seeming torrent of masculine reminders for the wife who had insisted on the stand that she and Harry Poulin, "the father of my child," had hoodwinked the professor.

And after a bit, tears, sobs and finally a plan to start over again.

"I don't hate that woman any more," Mrs. Tiernan almost giggled tonight as she reflected on the philosophy eight hours had taught her. "No woman ever goes wrong unless a man is to blame. No, sir," and her eyes flashed as they had flashed across the courtroom table at Harry Poulin.

"That girl probably was deceived by men and decided to try and get some comfort by doing anything."

"Yes, she was sympathetic, too," mused her ex-illegal-nine-hour-husband as he analyzed the woman he had insisted on marrying two days after he had obtained his divorce. "She wrote some wonderful letters during the trial. I never met her until that morning at the depot in Chicago when we met to get married.

"She had money, left from a grandmother, but she took a wedding ring from me and did not return it until the law declared our marriage illegal. I want that ring back, but she has it."

"She will write to me — she said she would. I told her I'd turn them over to Gussie."

"Yes, but there's no telling what you — yes, but will you?" questioned Mrs. Tiernan.

"She felt awfully bad when I left her this morning," continued Tiernan, as if uninterrupted. "But here we are going to have romance out of tragedy," and he looked across at his wife.

BRIDE IS ABSENT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MARSHALLTOWN (Iowa) Nov. 26.—Mrs. Blanche Brimmer-Tiernan, who is reported in Chicago dispatches to have been deserted by Prof. John Tiernan of South Bend, Ind., after a one-day honeymoon, and who is supposed to be in Marshalltown could not be found here tonight. So far as known, she has no relatives here, and the managers of local hotels say no one answering the description of Mrs. Brimmer-Tiernan registered today.

Twenty Killed and Injured in Mine Explosion

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ALBUQUERQUE (N. M.) Nov. 26.—The list of dead in the explosion in Mine No. 4 of the Albuquerque-Cerrillos Coal Company at Madrid, N. M., about fifty miles north and east of here, Saturday afternoon remained at seven tonight, but the number of injured were reduced from about thirty to thirteen. Only twenty men were in the mine at the time of the explosion, and all were killed or injured, officials of the company declared today.

There are no telephone facilities at Madrid or the immediate vicinity and no all-night telegraph service, which made it difficult last night to obtain accurate information as to the number of casualties.

A check made today shows that all the men who werein the mine have been accounted for. Cause of the explosion has not been determined.

EXPECT FRENCH SUPPORT

France has a large Moslem population in her North African colonies, who were loyal to France in the great war, and she has logical reasons for insisting upon equitable treatment for the Mohammedan population at this moment when Turkey's political status in the world is definitely fixed at Lausanne.

Like the United States, however, France probably will not submit to having her citizens tried by Turkish courts, which are essentially founded on Moslem laws.

When it comes to the taxation of foreign property and the fixing of the customs tariff, France probably also will be found ranged beside the American position. France will undoubtedly propose some plan whereby foreign property in Turkey will be obliged to contribute some revenue to the Turkish state and an impartial international examination of the Turkish customs tariff problem like that accorded China at the outgrowth of the Washington conference.

TRIALS NEAR END

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

ATHENS, Nov. 26.—The trial of former Cabinet Ministers and others charged with treason in connection with the defeat of the Greek army by the Turks is reaching its last stages. The last two days were spent by counsel for the revolutionary committee in addressing the court and giving arguments in support of their contention that the defendants were guilty as charged. Today's proceedings were given over to pleadings by lawyers for the defense. A verdict will be rendered probably early next week

A ministerial crisis has arisen in consequence of the declaration of the British representatives against the imposition of death sentences against the accused. The officials of all the other countries except France, have orally supported the British. The revolutionary committee holds that the verdict of the court must be carried out, no matter what it is.

ALHAMBRA OPENS NEW STATE BANK

Organization Will be the Fourth in City, Declare Its Founders

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ALHAMBRA, Nov. 26.—The organization of a new bank, which will be the fourth in this city, was announced yesterday by a group of prominent local business men who have been working quietly for several weeks on preliminary plans for the new institution, to be known as the Citizens Bank of Alhambra.

It will be a State bank, with a paid-up capital of $50,000, an authorized capitalization of $250,000, and will do a savings, commercial and general banking business. Application for a charter will be made within the next thirty days, and it is expected that the bank will be ready for business by February 1.

Frank Olson, head of the Olson Lumber company, is to be the president. Vernon H. Jenkins is slated for vice-president and S. H. Forman for cashier. All are local business men. These men, together with H. S. Farrell, attorney, P. G. Joyce, head of a local real estate firm, and Dr. L. A. Merritt, physician, have helped to organize the bank. It is understood that about 250 shares of stock have been subscribed. A five-year lease has been obtained for part of the building at Garfield and Main street, formerly occupied by the First National Bank.

SEEK FOR AMERICA'S MEANING

French Puzzled Over the Meaning of Stand on Open Door in Turkey

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, Nov. 26.—The French Foreign Office is puzzled over exactly how to interpret the attitude of the United States government regarding the open door in Turkey when taken in connection with the announcement of Ambassador Child at the Lausanne conference Saturday.

"Does it refer to Mesopotamian oil?" was the query circulating today among officials who added that they were frank to confess "we are totally at sea as to the meaning."

A prominent officialwho returned tonight from Lausanne said Mr. Child's declaration did not surprise officials of the governments, which had received the American government's note October 30. On the whole, the Lausanne conference was proceeding satisfactorily with no absolute decisions having been taken up to date, except a promise to give Bulgaria a corridor to the sea.

The Allied delegates still are endeavoring to ascertain on what points the Turks remained unyielding, some of which might be of no importance to the Allies. He added that the Turks thus far had not stated their position regarding capitulations.

BRITISH DENY HEARST TALES

Story of Opposition to Subsidy Nailed

Embassy Issues Statement at Capital

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Sir Auckland Geddes, the British Ambassador, called at the home of Secretary Hughes this morning to enter a prompt denial to charges printed widely this morning that funds of the British government were being employed through the Embassy to arouse antagonistic press opinion on the Harding ship subsidy program.

The British Ambassador's call was wholly informal, although indicative of the concern of the Embassy over the printed statement that an official of the Embassy had conducted negotiations with the publishers of a Masonic weekly looking to friendly notices for a cash consideration. It was said at the Embassy tonight a formal representation would be made to the Department of State.

An official statement issued at the Embassy entered an unequivocal denial not only of the charge that an attempt was made to influence the periodical through payment of $12,000 for "advertising," but also of the assertion that during the war the British government tried through the shipping control committee to hamstring the development of American shipping. The latter story was not a new one in Washington. A former official of the Shipping Board intimated it repeatedly.

EMBASSY STATEMENT

The statement issued by the Embassy follows:

"The attention of the British Embassy has been called to articles printed in today's issue of certain organs of the Hearst press which seek to convey the impression that the British government is carrying on a propaganda for the purpose of influencing the decision of the American Congress and people with regard to the measures under discussion relating to the American merchant marine. The Embassy denies emphatically that there is any truth in this allegation.

"Among the articles printed by the Washington Times-Herald there is included what purports to be an affidavit said to have been made by a certain Matthew Quay Glaser, described as vice-editor and vice-president of a publication called the Masonic Review, who appears to claim that an offer was made to him on behalf of the British Embassy involving the publication of a series of paid articles against the passage of the ship subsidy measure.

"It is not true that any such offer was made on behalf of the British Embassy or with the knowledge of any British government official.

"No member of the British Embassy staff has any acquaintance whatever with the individual describing himself as Matthew Quay Glaser. On Friday morning last at about 9 o'clock two men appeared in the neighborhood of the Embassy, loitered about for a con iderable length of time, and finally entered, claiming that they were acquainted with Mr. Lawrence, the Vice-Consul attached to the Embassy. Mr. Lawrence had never seen these men before, and so informed them. He never at any time made to either of the men any offer whatever or had any conversation with either of them on the shipping measures or on any other matter.

"The measures taken by the Allied and associated governments for the control and conservation of tonnage during the late war, which are also referred to in the press articles, were adopted in the general interest and their details were arranged largely on the initiative of the United States government itself.

NEW SHOCKS HIT CHILE'S COAST AREA

Devastated District Gets Revisit of Temblors; But Small Damage

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 26.—Another series of earth tremors has shaken a very considerable area along the Chilean coast, covering largely the zone which suffered most from the earthquake of two weeks ago.

A strong shock was felt here at 2:50 o'clock this morning lasting about a minute but doing no damage. National telegraph advices report a shock at the same time at Vallenar, which assumed the intensity of a quake, the walls of several houses falling. The residents were panic stricken, but so far as known there were no casualties. Advices from Huasco, timed 9:45 a. m., reported the sea coming in over the lowlands slowly, but later advices reported that it had subsided to normal level.

At Copiapo, which suffered severely in the previous earthquake, two strong shocks were felt today between 9 and 10 o'clock, the seismograph at the Lyceum registering an earthquake of seventh degree intensity. A few walls fell.

La Serina, Canela, Vicuna, Mincha, Ovalle and Patria were all in the line of the tremors, but no great damage was done.

NAVY INCREASE URGED

League Declares United States Must Build Ships to Fall Behind England and Japan

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—While numerous American ships are to be scrapped under the Washington conference agreement, it will be necessary for the United States to enlarge its naval and submarine building program and increase its naval personnel in order to maintain the 5-5-3 ratio, according to the Navy League.

In making public its resolution "that the United States Navy as a whole, be actually and at all times as effective as that of Great Britain and five thirds as strong as that of Japan," the League reviews the existing and projected strength of England and Japan in auxiliary craft, not limited by the Washington agreement and adds:

NEED NEW SHIPS

"If the United States Navy is to be maintained in every essential respect on the basis of equality with that of Great Britain and five-thirds the strength of that of Japan—as called for in the above resolution—then the post-conference naval establishments being maintained and the new building programs being undertaken by Great Britain and by Japan call for the United States to have:

"1. An enlisted personnel of about 108,000—an increase of 22,000.

"2. New cruisers aggregating about 296,000 tons—an increase to the ten now building of more than the equivalent of twenty-two 10,000 ton cruisers.

"3. Submarines of over 1000 tons to the number of forty-six—that is, forty more than we now have built or building.

MUST MEET BOTH

"In considering these increases, calculated under the 5-5-3 ratio, it should be realized that the Washington conference aimed to establish a balance of naval power of equality between the United States and Great Britain and for each of their navies, the ratio of five-thirds to the strength of Japan.

"If the United States is to maintain this balance it must meet the post conference establishments that Great Britain and Japan maintain, and meet the 'post-conference' ones they initiate. Otherwise we will not be maintaining in practice the spirit and purpose of the Washington conference."

CHICAGO GIVES DEBS OVATION

Moses of Socialism is Heard in Address

Appears Unchastened by Prison Term

Turns Out to be "Star" of Longuet Meeting

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Eugene Debs, leader of the Socialist party, made his first public speech since leaving Atlanta penitentiary here today and was given an ovation that delayed the start of his address for more than an hour.

Hundreds stood outside the hall for hours after fire guards had limited the audience to 4000.

Jean Longuet, French Socialist, in whose honor the meeting was held, was overshadowed by the demonstration accorded Debs.

"I am just recovering from the effects of a speech I made almost four years ago," Debs told the audience. "It was a record-making speech. I began it at Canton, O., and finished it at Atlanta penitentiary.

NOTHING TO REGRET

"But there is nothing to regret. I opposed the war and I still oppose war. I would not go to war at the command of any capitalistic country on the face of this earth. I would have saved the lives of 60,000 American boys who perished on the battlefields of France to create 30,000 new millionaires in this country. I spoke at Canton from a deep sense of conviction, and after all ten years is a very modest sentence for having an opinion of your own in the United States."

Ignoring the fight of the Socialist party leaders against the I.W.W., Communism and the Russian soviet government, Debs, declaring himself a citizen of the world, embraced all three in the ranks of "the defenders of free speech."

"Out of the war," he said, "one great good came, quite unexpectedly to the ruling classes of the world. That was the soviet republic.

PRAISES COMMUNISTS

He praised the nineteen Communists, including William Bross Lloyd, whose conviction under the Illinois Antisyndicalism Law was upheld a few days ago. He attacked "government by injunction," and said that if he had been in charge when the recent rail strike injunction was issued he would have "asserted my manhood by defying the corporation lawyer-judge that issued it."

M. Loguet devoted most of his address to an attack on Georges Clemenceau and the Peace Treaty of Versailles. Clemenceau, he declared, "no more represents France than Mr. Schwab or Mr. Pierpont Morgan represents the spirit of America."

The fundamental cause of the present situation in Europe, he said, is the peace made in 1919, and this was a natural result of the continuation of the war until that time.

"MAD NATIONALISM"

"The prolongation of the war," M. Longuet said, "and the refusal of the governing classes to try to reach any peace by negotiation, their obstinate policy of the knock-out-blow system, their refusal to accept, more especially during the year 1917, the various proposals trying to meet the possibilities of peace, have naturally led Europe to a mad nationalism.

"When the peace treaties were concluded this mad nationalism dominated especially the victorious nations of Europe, and even in America the war psychology reached such a degree that those statesmen of yours who won a peace quite different from the various treaties of the past, and more especially Mr. Wilson, with his fourteen points, found himself absolutely powerless against the intrigue of the French, Italian and British imperialism."

WOMAN'S PARTY HEAD SNUBS "REGULARS"

MRS. BELMONT CAN'T BE WORRIED BY REPUBLICANS AND DEMOCRATS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 26. — The Democratic and Republican parties yesterday received a gentle snub from Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, society leader, and president of the National Woman's party, who sailed on the Majestic for Europe. She will spend the winter at her home in the Riviera.

"My goodness!" she said, when asked what she thought of the recent elections, "I haven't given them a thought. The Democrats and Republicans don't pay any attention to us these days. Why should we worry about them?"

She added that her party would continue to operate independently in national political affairs and that it would be an organization to reckon with in 1924.

JAZZ RECEIVES ANOTHER JOLT

Paris Musical Artists Make Protest Against Plagiarism

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Nov. 26.—The Authors', Composers' and Music Editors' Society, in which Harry Pilcer has taken the initiative, has appealed to all music halls, cafes, cabarets and dance hall orchestras to co-operate in putting an end to the adaption of classic compositions and leading operatic themes to jazz music. The practice is branded as plagiarism of the worst type and a scandal and sacrilege to art.

Far-famed Owl, Border Resort, to be Rebuilt

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MEXICALI, Nov. 26.—Withington, Allen & Beyers, former proprietors of the world-famous Owl resort, one of the largest gambling houses in the world, which burned down last spring, have announced the practical completion of negotiations to procure a new site of 150 feet frontage and 300 feet deep for rebuilding.

While reports have flown thick and fast since the fire which destroyed the place last spring, regarding the rebuilding, nothing definite has been announced until yesterday when it became a fact that the resort would once more open in Mexicali. A first-class concrete structure will arise on the former site of the Lower California Commercial Company, which also burned last spring in the series of sensational fires.

Messrs. Withington, Allen & Beyers, a triumvirate of years standing and representing several millions of dollars in capital, are understood to be leaving some of their interests in Tijuana to come back once more to Mexicali and re-establish their headquarters in another famous Owl resort. According to present plans a beautiful bar and ballroom will be installed in the new place along with a large fight arena and training quarters for fighters.

Sweeping Tidal Waves Ascribed to Earth Shock

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

HONOLULU, Nov. 26. — Nine comparatively small but sweeping tidal waves that hit the harbor of Hilo, Island of Hawaii, on November 11 are attributed to submarine earth shocks off the South American coast—the same shocks that wreaked disaster in Chile. This conclusion is reached by one of America's leading seismologists, Dr. Thomas A. Jaggar, director of the Volcano Observatory at the volcano Kilauea.

Dr. Jaggar reports:

"The disastrous earthquake in Chile at midnight, November 10, was well registered by the Observatory siesmographs about 6 p.m., Hawaiian time. A succession of pronounced tidal waves on the beach at Hilo the next morning (November 11) may probably be attributed to submarine earth shocks off the South American coast, the report from Chile indicates there were big water waves on the continental shore line also."

PARIS DISAPPOINTED BY GANNA WALSKA

DIVA DELAYS APPEARANCE IN RIGOLETTO TO SPRING CONCERTS

BY RAYMOND FREDERICK
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Nov. 26.—Ganna Walska McCormick today suddenly postponed her appearance in Rigoletto in the Paris opera from December 12 until her return from America next spring. The cause for the postponement is the death of the wife of Bastianini, a great Italian baritone, who would have co-starred with her. The baritone has cancelled all singing engagements for the entire winter. Ganna Walska refuses to sing with any other baritone.

Ganna Walska will start an American operatic tour on January 15 under the direction of Jules Daiber, to last for several months. Her husband will accompany her. She will make her Paris debut before concerts at the Theater Champs Elysees December 2 and 3.

Andre Caplstone, the most brilliant orchestra leader in France, will direct her.

COUNTRY HOME BURNS AT ENORMOUS LOSS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Langley Park, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick E. McCormick-Goodhart, situated in Maryland, on Riggs Road, four miles from Washington, was destroyed with all its valuable furnishings and heirlooms last night by a fire of undetermined origin, with a damage estimated at $150,000. Among the family possessions destroyed by the fire was a collection of rare English antiques and works of art.

FLAPPERS NEW BOOZE RING AIDES

Twelve Pretty Bootleggers Put One Across on Federal Prohibition Agents

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—A dozen pretty bootleggers, posing as actresses and debutantes, are now being used by the $1,000,000 whisky ring, operating with New Orleans and Florida points as the source of supply and Chicago as the distributing point.

The girls are the newest recruits since Federal Agents arrested a number of Pullman porters and scared them from acting as agents. Up to that time liquor in large quantities was being transported in special steel containers hidden underneath the seats. Fifty indictments have already been returned against principals and agents of the ring.

Only pretty girls, of impeccable style and quick wit were selected for the bootlegging duty. Prohibition agents became suspicious over the large number of pretty girls traveling back and forth between Chicago and New Orleans and Florida points. The wit and bold assurance of the girls saved them when agents raided the Seminole Limited. The girls were so indignant that they were permitted to depart, but later when their wardrobe trunks were examined, all of them were found to be filled to capacity with liquor. The trunks had been consigned to four or five leading Chicago hotels.

Active search is now under way for the twelve girls and all incoming trains from the South and the baggage will be closely examined.

GERMAN LEGISLATORS INDORSE GOVERNMENT

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—With the exception of twenty Communists the entire Reichstag yesterday indorsed the new government's program as outlined in Chancellor Cuno's speech. A vote of conference by the Socialists and extreme Nationalists, whose policies he opposes, is nothing more than a recognition that the German people must work together if they expect to defeat the French reparations policy.

The Cabinet, however, struck the first shoals when Food Minister Dr. Herman Mueller, who is charged by Socialist leaders of high treason for encouraging a Rhinelander republic in 1918, resigned. The Socialists insisted that they had indisputable documents to prove their charges true. Herr Cuno in announcing the resignation characterized Dr. Mueller as a good fellow, who was sacrificing himself to avert friction.

Pacific-Southwest Review

BY W. B. STRINGFELLOW

Junior Vice-President and Real Estate Officer, Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings Bank.

There is no district in the country which has progressed so rapidly financially during the past few years as that portion of the Pacific-Southwest located in California. This is evidenced by the fact that between 1917 and 1921 the bank resources of the fourteen counties comprising this district increased from approximately $482,000,000 to $872,000,000. There is every reason to believe that when the final 1922 figures are completed these resources will total one billion dollars or more—an increase of 100% in a period of five years.

To appreciate the resources of the community behind this financial strength it is helpful to analyze the wealth of the district as shown on the assessment records of the various counties.

These fourteen counties have a total of 19,997,000 acres of assessed real estate. Real estate is valued at $1,236,000,000, improvements at $544,000,000, and personal property at $408,000,000. Operative property, including railroads has been assessed at $444,000,000, making a total assessed valuation for this territory of approximately $2,667,000,000. The astonishing increase in property valuation is apparent when compared with a total valuation in 1917 of approximately $1,689,000,000 and in 1921 of $2,460,000,000, making an increase of $969,000,000 or 57% during the last five years, and an increase of over $207,000,000 or over 8% during the last year.

A large part of this property wealth is located in Los Angeles County, due to the fact that the City of Los Angeles is the industrial and commercial center for the entire Pacific-Southwest. This country has 1,383,000 acres valued at nearly $1,574,000,000, which is over 53% of the total valuation of this district. Fresno County with 2,1..,000 assessed acres is valued at $186,000,000; Kern County, with the largest assessed acreage of 3,576,000 acres totals $180,466,000; and Orange County with only 444,377 acres, ranks fourth in total valuation with $161,415,000.

It should be remembered that the realty and improvements are generally assessed at about 30% of their real value, and that practically none of the bank resources and only a very small proportion of the stocks and bonds held by the people of this district show in the assessed value of property. When allowance is made for these factors it is safe to assume that the total wealth of the people residing in the fourteen counties located in the Southern half of California may be very conservatively placed at approximately six billion dollars.

Against this wealth is an outstanding county indebtedness of approximately $36,000,000, or about one-fourth of one per cent of the real value of the property of the territory. The total county rate of taxation on each $100 assessed valuation ranges from only $1.40 in Kern County to $3.55 in San Bernardino County.

This tremendous growth in realty values has not been out of proportion to the general economic development of the Pacific-Southwest. The rapid increase in agricultural production, the constantly growing commercial and industrial activity, and the prospects for continuing development have been responsible for this remarkable increase in the value of the resources of the territory, as indicated by the assessment records.

San Joaquin Ministers to Hold Meeting

Bank Book-keeper Held for Falsifying Accounts

FRESNO, Nov. 26.—There was a majority of 15,198 votes in favor of the Wright Act cast in the San Joaquin Valley at the general election, according to figures tabulated by H. J. Knott, district representative of the Anti-Saloon League here. The vote was announced as 49,114 for the act and 33,916 against. In 1920 there were 72,749 votes cast for the Harris bill, a similar measure of which there was a majority of 14,027 against its passage.

Ministers and workers for the Wright Act in the valley are to meet here Monday night in a mass meeting to celebrate its passage. T. M. Wright, author of the law and M. B. Harris, State Senator of Fresno, author of the previous bill, will be speakers.

HIGHWAY ACCIDENT

Dick Yenko, 50 years of age, an itinerant, and his family were injured on the highway about thirty miles from Fresno yesterday when their truck was struck by an automobile and overturned. They told the police here that the driver of the car which hit them failed to stop and that he was traveling at a high rate of speed. Yerko was severely injured and was removed to the hospital here, while his wife and two daughters received cuts and bruises.

BANKER UNDER ARREST

Richard O. Fowler, former bookkeeper for the Growers' National Bank here, was arrested yesterday at San Francisco, according to a telegram received at police headquarters last night. Complaint against Fowler was sworn to by M. L. Wells, cashier of the bank, charging fasifying and destroying bank records. Wells said that Fowler was in charge of the ledger which contained his own account and destroyed checks after payment had been made, and not entering them on the ledger.

"Y" STAGES DRIVE

With $16,888 pledged and with $6112 more to be obtained, workers in the Young Men's Christian Association budget drive yesterday reported steady progress and expressed confidence that the remainder of the needed sum could be secured in a clean-up drive next week. Yesterday, the fourth day of the drive, saw $2375 added to the fund.

FEARED RESPONSIBILITY

Fifty Fresnoans "waited at the church" here last night, where it was believed a mass meeting was to be held to start a recall campaign against Mayor Truman G. Hart, but no one came to call the meeting to order, and after shivering for an hour, the recallists left. No one would sponsor the movement, although invitations had been issued to several Fresno men to be present.

Limbless Baby Recovering; Will Probably Live

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Baby LeBrasca, born last week without arms or legs, and who has been dangerously ill of pneumonia, is said to be recovering, although not yet out of danger. Attending surgeons have found traces of ligaments and bones and express the hope that as the trunk of the child develops, it may be possible to attach artificial legs, and possibly something that will answer for arms.

Mrs. F. W. Hills of Lakewood, O., and Mrs. W. T. Hodson of Alba, Mo., have written asking permission to adopt the baby and pledging to give her the utmost care. However, the parents announce they have accepted the situation and will give their child their tenderest care. Surgeons who have watched the case closely express the prediction that the child may develop an unusual mentality. They believe nature will recompense in some striking way for the lack of arms and legs.

Bull-Dog Drummond, by Cyril McNeile

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS INSTALLMENT.

Le Comte de Guy, who finds the life of an international gentleman-crook most interesting and profitable, confers with three of the world's representative financiers and proposes to multiply their millions through an ingenious plan he has invented provided three men will supply him with the necessary working capital and reward him for his efforts if successful. They agree to a tentative agreement awarding it is necessary for the Count to secure the financial support of Sir Hiram C. Peel, an American shipping peer, before the conspiracy is a contract. Whereupon the Count de Guy assumes the alias, Carl Peterson, and with his accomplice, Irma, returns to England. Some time later in London, Capt. Hugh Drummond, demobilized army officer, becoming bored with his life as a civilian, seeks some thrilling occupation through the columns of the newspapers. His meeting mail brings many offers among which is one of double appeal, a young woman in distress and a positive guarantee of excitement. That afternoon he meets the girl and is so favorably impressed that he pledges himself to the extent of risking his life in her protection. During their conversation the girl introduces Drummond to a Mr. Lakington and when he leaves she tells Drummond that in the course of events it may be necessary for him to kill that gentleman. Hugh observes that this is a rather serious matter and inquires for details. The girl replies with the startling information that Lakington is a brilliant scientist and an accomplished burglar and murderer who contemplates marrying her some day.

"My dear soul!" said Hugh incredulously. "How can you be sure? And why don't you tell the police?"

She smiled wearily. "Because I've got no proof, and even if I had. . ." She gave a little shudder, and left her sentence unfinished. "But one day, my father and I were in his house, and, by accident, I got into a room I'd never been in before. It was a strange room, with two large safes let into the wall and steel bars over the skylight in the ceiling. There wasn't a window, and the floor seemed to be made of concrete. And the door was covered with curtains, and was heavy to move—almost as if it was steel or iron. On the desk in the middle of the room lay some miniatures, and, without thinking, I picked them up and looked at them. I happen to know something about miniatures and, to my horror, I recognized them." She paused for a moment as a waiter went by their table.

"Do you remember the theft of the celebrated Vatican miniatures belonging to the Duke of Melbourne?"

Drummond nodded: he was beginning to feel interested.

"They were the ones I was holding in my hand," she said quietly. "I knew them at once from the description in the papers. And just as I was wondering what on earth to do, the man himself walked into the room."

"Awkward—deuced awkward." Drummond pressed out his cigarette and leaned forward expectantly. "What did he do?"

"Absolutely nothing," said the girl. "That's what made it so awful."

"'Admiring my treasures?' he remarked. 'Pretty things, aren't they?' I couldn't speak a word: I just put them back on the ta

"'Wonderful copies,' he went on, 'of the Duke of Melbourne's lost miniatures. I think they would deceive most people.'

"'They deceived me,' I managed to get out.

"'Did they?' he said. 'The man who painted them will be flattered.'

"All the time he was staring at me, a cold, merciless stare that seemed to freeze my brain. Then he went over to one of the safes and unlocked it. 'Come here, Miss Benton,' he said. 'There are a lot more—copies.'

"I only looked inside for a moment, but I have never seen or thought of such a sight. Beautifully arranged on black velvet shelves were ropes of pearls, a gorgeous diamond tiara, and a whole heap of loose, uncut stones. And in one corner I caught a glimpse of the most wonderful gold chalked cup—just like the one for which Samuel Levy, the Jew moneylender, was still offering a reward. Then he shut the door and locked it, and again stared at me in silence. . . .

"'All copies,' he said quietly, 'wonderful copies. And should you ever be tempted to think otherwise—ask your father, Miss Benton. Be warned by me: don't do anything foolish. Ask your father first.'

"And did you?" asked Drummond.

She shuddered. "That very evening," she answered. "And daddy flew into a frightful passion, and told me never to dare to meddle in things that didn't concern me again. Then gradually as time went on, I realized that Lakington has some hold over daddy—that he'd got my father in his power. Daddy — of all people — who wouldn't hurt a fly; the best and dearest man who ever breathed." Her hands were clenched, and her breast rose and fell stormily.

Drummond waited for her to compose herself before he spoke again. "You mentioned murder, too," he remarked.

She nodded. "I've got no proof," she said, "less even than over the burglaries. But there was a man called George Dringer, and one evening, when Lakington was dining with us, I heard him discussing the man with daddy.

"'He's got to go,' said Lakington. 'He's dangerous!'

"And then my father got up and closed the door; but I heard them arguing for half an hour. Three weeks later a Coroner's jury found that George Dringer had committed suicide while temporarily insane. The same evening daddy, for the first time in his life, went to bed the worse for drink."

The girl fell silent, and Drummond stared at the orchestra with troubled eyes. Things seemed to be rather deeper than he had anticipated.

"Then there was another case." She was speaking again. "Do you remember the man who was found dead in a railway carriage at Oxhey Station? He was an Italian—Giuseppe by name; and the jury brought in a verdict of death from natural causes. A month before he had an interview with Lakington which took place at our house: because the Italian, being a stranger, came to the wrong place, and Lakington happened to be with us at the time. The interview finished with a fearful quarrel." She turned to Drummond with a slight smile. "Not much evidence, is there? Only I know Lakington murdered him. I know it. You may think I'm fanciful—imagining things: you may think I'm exaggerating. I don't mind if you do—because you won't for long."

Drummond did not answer immediately. Against his saner judgment he was beginning to be profoundly impressed, and, at the moment, he did not quite know what to say. That the girl herself firmly believed in what she was telling him, he was certain; the point was how much of it was—as she herself expressed it—fanciful imagination.

"What about this other man?" he asked at length.

"I can tell you very little about him," she answered. "He came to The Elms—that is the name of Lakington's house—three months ago. He is about medium height and rather thick-set; clean-shaven, with thick brown hair flecked slightly with white. His forehead is broad, and his eyes are a sort of cold gray-blue. But it's his hands that terrify me. They're large and white and utterly ruthless." She turned to him appealingly. "Oh, don't think I'm talking wildly," she implored. "He frightens me to death—that man: far, far worse than Lakington. He would stop at nothing to gain his ends, and even Lakington himself knows that Mr. Peterson is his master."

"Peterson!" murmured Drummond. "It seems quite a sound old English name."

The girl laughed scornfully. "Oh! the name is sound enough, if it was his real one. As it is, it's about as real as his daughter."

"There is a lady in the case, then?"

"By the name of Irma," said the girl briefly. "She lies on a sofa in the garden and yawns. She's no more English than that waiter."

A faint smile flickered over her companion's face; he had formed a fairly vivid mental picture of Irma. Then he grew serious again.

"And what it is that makes you think there's mischief ahead?" he asked abruptly.

The girl shrugged her shoulders. "What the novelists call feminine intuition, I suppose," she answered. "That—and my father." She said the last words very low. "He hardly ever sleeps at night now; I hear him pacing up and down his room—hour after hour, hour after hour. Oh! it makes me mad. . . .Don't you understand? I've just got to find out what the trouble is. I've got to get him away from those devils before he breaks down completely."

Drummond nodded, and looked away. The tears were bright in her eyes, and, like every Englishman, he detested a scene. While she had been speaking he had made up his mind what course to take, and now, having outsat everybody else, he decided that it was time for the interview to cease. Already an early diner was having a cocktail, while Lakington might return at any moment. And if there was anything in what she had told him, it struck him that it would be as well for that gentleman not to find them still together.

"I think," he said, "we'd better go. My address is 60A Half Moon Street; my telephone 1234 Mayfair. If anything happens, if ever you want me—at any hour of the day or night—ring me up or write. If I'm not in, leave a message with my servant Denny. He is absolutely reliable. The only other thing is your own address."

"The Larches, near Godalming," answered the girl, as they moved toward the door. "Oh! if you only knew the glorious relief of feeling one's got some one to turn to. . ." She looked at him with shining eyes, and Drummond felt his pulse quicken suddenly. Imagination or not, so far as her fears were concerned, the girl was one of the loveliest things he had ever seen.

"May I drop you anywhere?" he asked, as they stood on the pavement, but she shook her head.

"No, thank you. I'll go in that taxi." She gave the man an address, and stepped in, while Hugh stood bareheaded by the door.

"Don't forget," he said earnestly. "Any time of the day or night. And while I think of it—we're old friends. Can that be done? In case I come and stay, you see."

She thought for a moment, and then nodded her head. "All right," she answered. "We've met a lot in London during the war."

With a grinding of gear wheels the taxi drove off, leaving Hugh with a vivid picture imprinted on his mind of blue eyes, and white teeth, and a skin like the bloom of a sun-kissed peach.

For a moment or two he stood staring after it, and then he walked across to his own car. With his mind still full of the interview he drove slowly along Piccadilly, while every now and then he smiled grimly to himself. Was the whole thing an elaborate hoax? Was the girl even now chuckling to herself at his gullibility? If so, the game had only just begun, and he had no objection to a few more rounds with such an opponent. A mere tea at the Carlton could hardly be the full extent of the jest. . .And somehow deep down in his mind, he wondered whether it was a joke—whether, by some freak of fate, he had stumbled on one of those strange mysteries which up to date he had regarded as existing only in the realms of shilling shockers.

He turned into his rooms, and stood in front of the mantelpiece taking off his gloves. It was as he was about to lay them down that an envelope caught his eye, addressed to him in an unknown handwriting. Mechanically he picked it up and opened it. Inside was a single half-sheet of notepaper, on which a few lines had been written in a small, neat hand.

"There are more things in heaven and earth, young man, than a capability for eating steak and onions, and a desire for adventure. I imagine that you possess both: and they are useful assets in the second locality mentioned by the poet. In heaven, however, one never knows—especially with regard to the onions. Be careful."

Drummond stood motionless for a moment, with narrowed eyes. Then he leaned forward and pressed the bell.

"Who brought this note, James?" he said quietly, as his servant came into the room.

"A small boy, sir. Said I was to be sure and see you got it most particular." He unlocked a cupboard near the window and produced a tantalus. "Whisky, sir, or cocktail?"

"Whisky. I think, James." Hugh carefully folded the sheet of paper and placed it in his pocket. And his face as he took the drink from his man would have left no doubt in an onlooker's mind as to why, in the past, he had earned the name of "Bull-dog" Drummond.

Mrs. Stevenson's Memory Honored by Gathering

Nearly 1000 friends of the late Mrs. Christine Wetherill Stevenson assembled yesterday at the Pilgrimage Play Theater in Hollywood to honor the memory of the author of the Pilgrimage Play who died last Monday at her home near Philadelphia.

The memorial services were attended by scores of representatives of community organizations, especially those of Hollywood, including the entire cast of the Pilgrimage Play. Among those present were many men and women from Krotona Institute of Theosophy, the first scene of Mrs. Stevenson's religious dramas, at which institution she produced, for the first time in America, the life of Gautama Buddha, called "The Light of Asia."

Following a Scriptural reading by Dr. C. C. Pierce and a musical program rendered by Misses Evelyn Lane, Alma Torean and others, Dr. Ameen U. Fareed made the memorial address in which he reviewed the work of Mrs. Stevenson, telling how she had devoted her time, energy and money to the establishment of a great ideal.

"The Pilgrimage Play stands as one of the greatest glories of Southern California, and of America," said Dr. Fareed. "Today the whole nation mourns the loss of the noble woman whose love and sacrifice made that drama possible. If we who are assembled here today really revere her memory we will do everything within our power to perpetuate the splendid institution which she established."

KLAN SIGN SPITE, CRIES MINISTER

Attributing the painting of the sign "K.K.K." on the billboard in front of his church, to the unreasonable spite of the enemies of the Ku Klux Klan, Rev. Bob Shuler, in a sermon at Trinity Methodist Church last night, declared that he had no fear of either the friends or foes of the Klan and that he intends to continue his work against lawlessness as heretofore.

"This thing had its origin when I asked my congregation to go slow in forming opinions of the Inglewood raid and I was instantly classed as a member of the Klan," said Mr. Shuler. "However, if they think they can scare me out of town with a paint brush they are sadly mistaken."

PLAN AID FOR LATIN AMERICA

Washington Conference to be Held December 4

United States Taking Active Interest in Meet

Hughes Expected to Iron Out Many Problems

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Participation of the United States in the conference of Central American nations to convene in Washington on December 4 is regarded by Latin-American diplomats as an indication of America's intention to widen the scope and deepen the significance of the Monroe Doctrine. The United States will take active part in the conference, with Secretary Hughes and Sumner Welles as delegates.

Administration officials and Latin-American representatives in Washington have either acknowledged or predicted that the Central American conference may result in agreements, treaties or declarations of policy which will be taken before the Pan-American Conference in Santiago, Chile, next March for the closest study and observation of the delegates who will foregather there.

HAVE MANY PROBLEMS

It is pointed out that the problems of the five republics of Costa Rica, Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras and Nicaragua are the problems of all Latin-America. There are electoral problems, economic problems, problems of disarmament, and those arising from century-old boundary disputes. If all or any one of these problems can be solved here in Washington, and the solution made demonstrable at Santiago as early as next March, the effect there may be profound.

For this reason the attaches of several of the South American embassies and legations, it is learned, have received instructions from their government to act as unofficial observers at the Washington conference. They will be without vote or voice, but nothing will be done that will escape their observation even though they will take no part in the actual proceedings.

Mr. Hughes is expected to advance concrete suggestions for the eradication of the causes of the frequent political upheavals from which Central America has suffered, and to call for solemn pledges, in treaty form, for no country to harbor conspirators against the peace of another signatory to the treaties signed. Arbitration treaties may also result that will permit of engagements to disarm the top-heavy military establishments of some of the signatories.

Thin? Run-down? Sure Way to Get Right Weight

Increase Your Red Blood-Cells. That's the Sure Way! S. S. S. Builds Blood-Cells. This Means Strength.

Do you know why insurance companies refuse to insure a great many men because they are under weight? Simply because to be under weight often proves low fighting power in the body. It often means you are minus serve-power, minus red-cells in your blood, minus health, minus energy, minus vitality. It is serious to be minus, but the moment you increase the number of your red-blood-cells you begin to become plus. That's why S. S. S. since 1826, has meant to thousands of underweight men and women a plus in their strength. Hollow cheeks fill out. You stop being a calamity-looker. You inspire confidence. Your body fills to the point of power. Your flesh becomes firmer, the age lines that come from thinness disappear. You look younger, firmer, happier, and you feel it, too, all over your body. More red-blood-cells! S. S. S. will build them. Ladies and gentlemen, a peaky, bony face doesn't make you look very important or pretty, does it? Take S. S. S. It contains only pure vegetable medicinal ingredients. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores in two sizes. The larger size bottle is the more economical.

TO REVIVE SPLENDOR OF MANCHU

Deposed Boy Emperor of China Will be Married With Regal Ceremony

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PEKING, Nov. 26.—Hsuan Tung, 17 years old, deposed boy Emperor of China, will be married next Friday, according to the custom of the old Manchu dynasty, to a Chinese princess one year his junior upon whose face he has never gazed.

His only information about his future wife, gleaned from newspapers through the aid of tutors, is that she rides a bicycle, studies English and sews. His first glimpse of her, the Princess Kuo Chin-Si, daughter of Prince Kuo Chin-Si, will come when she is unveiled during the ceremony, which starts at 4 o'clock Friday morning and lasts for several days.

The wedding plans reveal a revival of all the regal splendor suggestive of the old Manchu dynasty and will be consummated in strict accordance with ancient Chinese customs.

Along a richly carpeted roadway, guarded by soldiers of the Chinese republic, the bride will be carried from her home in a golden sedan chair through lacquered gates into the forbidden section of Peking, where, in a room decorated in imperial yellow, she will be received by officials of the Manchu dynasty, who will hold court in style recalling the days of the empress dowager.

Carloads of presents of gold, jade, silk and porcelains of priceless value, are among the gifts now pouring in from all parts of the empire.

Hsuan Tung, who reigned three years until the establishment of the Chinese republic, has been confined in the imperial palace since his abdication. He is granted a yearly allowance by the republic with permission to maintain a royal court provided he does not mix in politics.

Hsuan Tung told his tutors that he desires to tour America on his honeymoon and hopes his bride will share his views.

DURABILITY

Architects and builders stake their reputations on the walls of the buildings they erect. A builder's reputation can only endure as long as the walls he builds.

Buttonlath walls are not preferred by builders solely because they are more economical or more quickly erected. Builders and owners alike prefer Buttonlath because it makes good walls that stay good while the building foundation lasts.

Buttonlath

is manufactured in two finishes—for interior and exterior use. Buttonlath takes the place of wood or metal lath and comes in convenient sizes for nailing to the studding.

NAVY DEVELOPS SPOTTING-PLANE

New Type of Observation Craft Tried

Battleship Mast Miles High Effect

Three Seats, All Metal Frame Construction

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26. — To direct the fire of battleships from the air a new type of plane designed under Navy specifications has been undergoing test by a trial board in the last week and, according to opinions of experts in the Bureau of Aeronautics of the Navy Department, gives every promise of success.

The new plane will be in effect a battleship mast 10,000 feet high in that it will enable the observer to witness the effect of the big-gun fire from this altitude and communicate his observations by radio to the firing ship. The plane is known in official parlance as the M.O.-1. It is a three-seater monopole with an all-metal frame constructed of aluminum alloy and is designed for spotting and for short-distance reconnaissance work.

The spotting-plane is a post-war development in naval aviation and is a product of the policy of fitting aircraft to the needs of the Navy. The M.O., or Martin observation, has been specially designed for the fire-control organization of the modern battleship.

The development of a spotting-plane is anotehr step in the way of providing aircraft specially equipped and specially suited to naval requirements.

To suit the varied conditions under which a naval plane must operate the M. O. is designed for interchangeable landing-gear which will make it adaptable for landing and taking off from the deck of an airplane carrier or pontoons may be substituted which will permit of landing and taking off from the water. The plane is also designed to be quickly assembled and knocked down for stowing in a small space. The all-metal feature of construction insures greater life and durability and is a measure of economy in the repair and upkeep of the aircraft squadrons. This with its attending advantages is a direct result of investigation and research conducted by the Bureau of Aeronautics in the use of duralamin for aircraft building and established a practice which will be of incalculable benefit to the aircraft industry in this country.

MANY HELD IN FEDERAL JAIL CELLS

Government Prisons Confine 1000 More Than Year Ago, Superintendent Says

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Prisoners in Federal penal institutions throughout the United States increased 1000 in number during the year ending June 30, last, the Rev. Heber Votaw, superintendent of Federal prisons today informed Atty.-Gen. Daugherty. The increase, the Attorney General and Mr. Votaw believe, is due to the large number of prisoners received for violation of the anti-narcotic, postal and counterfeiting laws, and also the motor vehicle theft act.

The total number of prisoners in United States penitentiaries, including Atlanta, Leavenworth, McNeil Island, the national training school for boys and girls at Washington and in State institutions other than county jails, was 4395 on June 30, 1922, as compared wwith 5268 on June 30, 1921. The cost of maintenance was $1,813,627.37, as compared with an outlay of $1,298,656.44 for the year before.

Discussing the report of the superintendent of prisons, Atty.-Gen. Daugherty asserted there are a large number of prisoners in Federal institutions who should be subjected to reformatory treatment. The report, he said, called attention "to the very urgent need of a United States reformatory for a class of offenders who should be submitted to an entirely different treatment than is possible in a pen, and kept separate from hardened criminals."

The Rev. Mr. Votaw also renewed the recommendations made last year for a suitable penal institution for the confinement of female offenders. At present the government is compelled to make use of State institutions for women prisoners and it often becomes necessary to transfer them from one State to another on account of crowded or other local conditions.

DRY OFFICER ASKS HIS OWN SUSPENSION

PROHIBITION CHIEF AFTER INVESTIGATION OF AFFAIRS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Samille Henry Cone, division head of Federal prohibition forces in New Jersey was suspended at his own request today as the result of charges filed against him by Senator Edge, and dealing with Mr. Cone's past official record.

The charges lodged by Senator Edge in compliance with Mr. Cone's suggestion conveyed to the Senator in a telegram from Newark, N. J., were in connection with Cone's record when he was in the Bureau of Indian Affairs, Department of the Interior.

The papers were furnished Senator Edge by Commissioner Burke, of the Indian Affairs Bureau and show Mr. Cone was appointed special officer for the suppression of liquor traffic among the Indians in 1905 upon the recommendation of William E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson under the name of Sam Cone.

The report of Commissioner Burke stated that Mr. Cone from time to time was charged with certain irregularities in his work for the Bureau and was investigated by the Indian office.

Mr. Cone was given a chance to resign but did not do so until some months after Pussyfoot Johnson had asked the Indian Affairs Bureau to dispose of the case one way or the other. On Oct. 18, 1913, the case was sent to the Attorney - General for prosecution, but nothing in the files of the Department of Justice, it was said, shows what was done.

Mr. Cone is understood to have been backed by the Antisaloon League and regarded by the league as a capable enforcement officer.

Free Staters Order Capture of De Valera

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DUBLIN, Nov. 26.—Orders by the free state government to capture Eamonn de Valera have been issued and secret service men are on the lookout for him. If he is apprehended with arms in his possession he probably will meet with the same fate as his first lieutenant, Erskine Childers, who was executed on Friday.

Expected rebel uprisings so far have not materialized and the character of rebel attacks indicates they are leaderless and have been disorganized by the arrests of many of their "strong men."

NOTICIAS MUNDIALES DE ULTIMA HORA

En obsequio a nuestros numerosos amigos de habla española, y para beneficio de los lectores americanos del Times que estudien esa lengua, publicamos diariamente esta columna en castellano, con un extracto de las más importantes noticias de última hora.

Un conocimiento práctico del español es de grandísima utilidad en este país, especialmente en el suroeste; como lo demuestra el hecho de que en Los Angeles solamente, hay más de 15,000 personas que estudian ese idioma con profesores oficiales o particulares. Para esos estudiantes será un buen ejercicio leer todos los días esta sección, donde encontrarán las palabras y frases mas usuales del lenguaje español.

NOTAS TELEGRAFICAS

Noticias de Washington

WASHINGTON, Nbre. 26.—El resentimiento expresado por algunos senadores y otros hombres públicos, por los ataques del Sr. Clemenceau a la política extranjera de los Estados Unidos, revelan un estado de ánimo que está creciendo en intensidad.

Se espera que el miércoles sea aprobado por una pequeña mayoría en la Cámara de Diputados el proyecto de ley de subsidio a barcos.

Al paso que muchos buques Americanos de primera van a desecharse, será necesario, según dice la Liga de la Marina, aumentar nuestro programa de construcción de cruceros y submarinos.

La infracción completa de la prohibición en Filadelfia, el último sabado, durante el juego del Ejército contra la Marina, va a ser tal vez objeto de una investigación ordenada por el Presidente Harding.

La Sra. Winifred Mason Huck está en favor de la paz, pero no de la falta de preparación, ni de la falta de resistencia.

Tiernan se Arrepiente y se Reconcilia con su Primera Esposa

SOUTH BEND (Ind.) Nbre. 26. John Patrick Tiernan, que era hasta hace muy poco profesor de derecho en la Universidad de Notre Dame, y que se había casado con otra mujer dos días después de divorciado de la primera, se dirigio hoy premurosamente a South Bend, e hizo las paces con su anterior esposa.

La noche del último sábado, el Juez Montgomery había casado la orden de divorcio, pues tenía pruebas de que Tiernan había conseguido éste por conspiración y fuerza. En tal virtud, Tiernan estaba colocado en el predicamento de un bigamo, y podía procesársele por varios capítulos.

Toda la simpatía que le había conquistado el ser el "marido traicionado" en el famoso juicio Tiernan-Poulin de paternidad, se había pasado repentinamente a su abandonada mujer, que se quedaba sin recursos en South Bend con tres niños.

Poincaré Piensa Dejar Pronto su Puesto, Según se Cree

PARIS, Nbre. 26.—Ayer se daban como fuente los amigos personales del Primer Ministro Poincaré, de la noticia de que éste tiene la intención de retirarse para el primero del año. Recuérdese que cuando el Sr. Poincaré ocupo su puesto, declaró que no se proponía externar las disputas políticas, y que era su firme intención rehacer la entente entre los aliados, lo que se ha logrado, según se afirma, con la caída de Lloyd George.

NOTAS LOCALES

Enfermera Apúnalada en el Cuello

Con un tajo en la garganta, dado, según se dice, por un pretendiente celoso, la Srita. Zora Currelle, enfermera del Hospital California de esta ciudad, se encontraba hoy en estado grave en el Hospital Seaside de Long Beach, y la policía estaba buscando por toda Sudcalifornia a su supuesto asaltante.

El hecho de que, ni las autoridades del hospital, ni el médico de servicio, cumplieron con dar parte a la policía del supuesto asalto a puñaladas, dio al asaltante un margen de dieciocho horas para huir, y hasta hoy en la noche no se ha podido dar con él. La muchacha dijo a la policía que el delincuente se llama John Wilford, tiene 36 años, y vive en Long Beach, Avenida Seaside, 333.

Se Descubre Una Cueva de Ladrones

Ayer se dio noticia en la oficina del Sheriff del descubrimiento de una cueva de ladrones, en el extremo de un solitario cañon de los Montes Chatsworth, en la punta norte del Valle de San Fernando. Encontrose allí botin de muchos robos y asaltos hechos en las pequeñas poblaciones del valle, pero no pudo darse con los bandidos, a pesar de las investigaciones de los sheriffs suplentes Stensland, Catlin y Cull, quienes velaron allí toda la noche.

El escondrijo de los ladrones está al extremo de una vieja vereda, desuada desde hace mucho, y que sale de la vereda de Santa Susana. Fue descubierta el sábado por John Graves, ranchero de Owensmouth.

Bandidos que Usan a Una Muchacha de Añagaza

Una joven que gritaba con todos sus pulmones atrajo a L. Bishop de Monrovia, a una trampa puesta por bandidos ayer a medio día, entre Eagle Rock y Pasadena. La caballerosidad con que se precipitó a socorrerla le costo $30 y la descompostura de su automóvil, en tanto que la joven huía en el cochecito lateral de una motocicleta, en la que se fueron los bandidos, riéndose del predicamento del auxiliador.

DEPORTES

Balompié Asociación

Los rápidos once del Club Atlético de Los Angeles le pusieron ayer las trabas al famoso equipo de los Hijos de San Jorge, en el parque Washington, en uno de los mejores juegos de "soccer" que se han visto en esta ciudad durante la actual temporada. Hicieron 5 tantos, por uno que realizaron los Hijos.

La rápida brigada de Samson ganó el combate de futbol contra los Rangers, derrotando a estos por 4 a 0. Los Escoceses de Los Angeles tuvieron una batalla desordenada con el equipo de Pasadena, pero, rehaciéndose a la undécima hora, lograron vencer a la Coronada Ciudad por 2 a 1.

Baseball

White King Soap ganó ayer otra victoria, venciendo al equipo de baseball de los Cimarrones en reñida batalla librada en el "diamante" de Echo Park, por 8 a 2. El juego fue de primo cartello, según dicen los hombres de ambos equipos, y la lucha fue entusiástica hasta el último. Créese que este partido haya sido uno de los mejores que se han jugado aquí en esta temporada por equipos semiprofesionales.

Balompié

Están ya muy cerca de completarse los planes para el gran partido de baseball entre la Universidad de Sudcalifornia y la de Washington, que va a jugarse el Día de Acción de Gracias en el estadio del Torneo de Rosas de Pasadena. Segun nos informa el instructor Gloomy Gus Henderson, primer mentor futbolista de la Universidad de Sudcalifornia, el equipo de aquí se alojará el martes en la tarde en el Hotel Arroyo del Vista, y practicará martes y miércoles en la gran taza.

La lucha por el campeonato de balompié ligero de Sudcalifornia comenzará la tarde del viernes, en que el equipo de Huntington Park se las verá con la rápida brigada de Pasadena, y Glendale se liará con los infantes de Whittier.

"Snake Doctor" Gets Business at Long Beach

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Nov. 26.—Long Beach was scoured the other day for a "snake doctor," when it was found that the life of "Jumbo," a twenty-nine and one-half foot python belonging to "Princess Nalda" of the Silver Spray Pier, was endangered from a cut made on the snake's neck by a nail in the crate in which it was recently brought to this country on the freighter Bearport.

Dr. Roy W. Broadhurst, a veterinarian, was finally summoned and he made several operations on Jumbo's neck. In fact, it took fourteen stitches to repair the damage.

Besides being twenty-nine and one-half feet long, Jumbo has a weight of 280 pounds, is reputed to be between 90 and 100 years old and is valued at $1000 by his owner.

Investment Houses Clear Up Their Remnants

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 26. — New bond offerings last week totaled only $20,275,000, as compared with $36,900,000 the week before, the continued weakness in prices having a restraining effect on new issues. Several large offerings have been purchased by local bankers but they are purposely being held in abeyance until the bond market improves sufficiently to assure an easier distribution.

The decline in prices was most marked in speculative railroad mortgages, which were in rather free supply because of speculative doubt over the earning capacity of the roads. Foreign bonds were irregular, but they exhibited marked buoyancy at the end of the week, following statement by Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank, that French and Belgium bonds as they stood Friday represented "a ridiculously low credit rating."

The dearth of new offerings has given investment houses an opportunity to dispose of large remnants of old issues and to prepare their shares for the large volume of bonds expected toward the end of the year in preparation for the reinvestment demand. Maturities at the end of 1922 and the early part of 1923 are reported to be heavy.

Local bankers believe there is a possibility that the award of the $50,000,000 Cuban loan will be made this week. Four local banking syndicates are in the field. Public offering also will probably be made this week of $4,000,000 6 per cent refunding mortgage bonds of the Boston and Maine Railroad. Stockholders of the United States Realty and Improvement Company recently voted to authorize an issue of $10,000,000, 7 per cent preferred stock, the proceeds of the issue to be used in part, to retire, at not exceeding par and accrued interest, the present $8,834,000 of debenture bonds maturing July 1, 1924.

PRINCIPAL OFFERINGS

The principal offering last week was the $8,100,000 issue of 5½ per cent treasury bills of the city of Montreal, maturing in three months and offered to yield about 5 per cent. Other large offerings were $2,800,000 one to fifteen year 5 per cent equipment trusts of the Erie Railroad, offered to yield 4.75 to 5.50 per cent; $1,500,000 twenty-year 6 per cent first mortgage sinking fund gold bonds of England, Walton & Co., offered at 98 to yield 6.15; $1,500,000 twenty-year 7 per cent first mortgage sinking gold bonds of the Whitaker Paper Company, offered at par; $1,500,000 twenty-eight year 6 per cent gold bonds, series "B," of the Nevada-California Electric Corporation, offered at 98 to yield 6.15; $1,500,000 thirty-year farm-loan bonds of the Central Illinois Joint Stock Land Bank offered at 103 to yield 4.60 to 5 per cent.

Romero was getting wagons ready for the work tomorrow when one of the teams of horses became frightened. Physicians say his condition is critical.

Aged Mexican Dies as Fire Razes Home

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

POMONA, Nov. 26.—Bernardo Malquirly, an aged Mexican, was burned to death in a fire that destroyed his two-room ranch house near Walnut, nine miles west of here, early this morning.

Discovery of the man's charred remains was made by a nephew who visited the scene at an early hour, bringing breakfast for the aged man, who had been an invalid for several years.

Until recently Malquirly has been an inmate of the County Hospital, and since his release from the institution had been living n the little house alone. An effort to start a fire with kerosene evidently caused the blaze that resulted in the man's death.

The remains were brought to the undertaking establishment of Todd & Reeves. Funeral services will be held probably Tuesday. Circumstances surrounding the case are such that no inquest will be necessary in the opinion of Pomona officials.

Venice Police Chief Row is Still in Air

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, Nov. 26.—When the Venice Board of Trustees meets tomorrow night, the chief of police row is expected to be taken out, dusted off and given the air.

Trustees John Harrah and Clyde Holbrook, who weren't present last Monday night, have the key to the situation in their hands. Not the key to the Chief's desk; for, according to former Chief William E. Cavanaugh, for whom a warrant was issued for failing to surrender it, there isn't any key to the desk. But if Messrs. Harrah and Holbrook stand with Mayor Gerety, Cavanaugh will be put back on the job; and if they stand with Trustees Fred A. Church and W. G. Lutz, who removed Cavanaugh, he won't.

Guessing ran high in this by-the-sea communitt as to whay would happen. Neither Harrah nor Holbrook has let a peep as to where he stands and both sides are claiming their support.

There were three prevalent modes of guessing, the other two being that Henry McClausland would remain Chief and that a third man not yet named would receive the honor.

Venice is hoping that similar rows will be avoided when the new city charter goes into effect.

Huntington Park Boy Scouts Find Lost Tot Quick

Boy Scouts of Huntington Park got a practical test of their training last evening when they were called on by the Huntington Park police to find John Grbazac, aged 4, of 708 West New Depot street, lost in Walnut Park. They found him in about an hour.

When the youngster's parents could not find him they called in the police, who in turn notified Scout Master T. B. Brown. The Scout Master got his troop on the job in ten minutes, and they made a systematic search of the twenty-five acre grove, densely grown with underbrush. Their flashlights and methods of keeping in touch with each other proved very effective.

RAN SHOW ON SUNDAY, BROTHERS ARRESTED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WABASH (Ind.) Nov. 26.—Denied admission to his theater box office by William Dickson, proprietor, Sheriff Hoyt Summerland, with four deputies, this afternoon used an ax to smash in the door and place him under arrest for Sabbath breaking in operating Sunday film shows. The door to the operator's booth also was broken in to arrest Percy Dickson. When attorneys presented a habeas corpus writ in the Circuit Court, Prosecutor Howard Plummer filed affidavits in the Justice Court. The Dicksons were released after two hours in jail and announced that an evening performance would be held. The brothers were indicted by a grand jury last spring and fined for operating Sunday shows.

RATIFICATION OF RIVER PACT URGED BY HOOVER

Cabinet Officer Radios Speech to Remote Parts of Country Via "Times" Station

The magnitude of the Colorado River project, the preliminary victory that has just been won for it, and the steps that must now be taken to insure actual undertaking of control works in the form of a gigantic dam were told at 6 p.m. yesterday by Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, director of radio and chairman of the Colorado River Commission, over The Times' radio—KHJ—to a vast audience which listened in virtually every State in the Union.

Telegraphic advice was received from Washington ten minutes after the conclusion of Mr. Hoover's address stating that a group of men assembled at the National Press Club there heard the words of Mr. Hoover distinctly. This was the first of a deluge of telegrams from all parts of the country in which the success of the broadcast of the Secretary's message from KHJ was attested.

Mr. Hoover told of the necessity of control to protect Imperial Valley. He said that the controlled river will provide 22,000,000 acre feet of water a year or enough to cover the State of Maryland four feet deep. He said that there will be more water available from the controlled river by millions of acre feet than all the feasible projects of the basin combined can use in forty years.

Mr. Hoover's speech in full follows:

"I have been asked to speak for a few minutes on the work of the Colorado River Commission.

SPEAKS OF RADIO

"Before I enter upon that subject I wish to say a word to radio users as to the problems in radio. The real problem of radio is interference. This interference in the radio telephone is due to the limited number of wave lengths that are at the disposal of the Department of Commerce for assignment for broadcasting purposes.

"The wave lengths that are adapted to telephone purposes range from 100 to 1200 meters in length. The wave lengths from 600 upward are reserved for the United States Navy. They are so reserved by an Act of Congress and cannot be encroached upon for private use.

"Furthermore, some of the wave lengths, some of the important wave lengths below 600 are assigned to such purposes as ship control at sea. The Department of Commerce has recommended to Congress with the approval of the Navy Department that all wave lengths up to 1600 should be freed by an act of Congress for the use of private users.

FIRST NECESSITY

"If we can secure the enactment of this legislation we will be able to assign wave lengths sufficiently far apart to different broadcasting stations so that there need be no further interference. I believe that this legislation is the first necessity in the development of radio. I trust that the Department of Commerce and the Department of the Navy will have the support of all radio users in securing the immediate and early passage of this legislation.

"The work of the Colorado River Commission was undertaken one year ago as the result of legislation in each of the seven Colorado River Basin States and of the United States Congress to the end that there should be appointed a commission whose broad purpose was to lay down the basic principles to govern the development of this the greatest of our undeveloped national assets.

SECOND NILE

"The Colorado River is indeed a second Nile. While there are today

RADIOLAND IS SILENT FOR HOOVER

Broadcast Stations Remain "Off the Air" in Spirit of Co-operation

BY JOHN S. DAGGETT

Secretary Hoover's broadcast of a message from KHJ, The Times radiophone last night placed a new star on the horizon of radioland—the star of co-operation, radiating the true light of the spirit of this new channel of thought and inspiration.

The Times wired broadcast stations all over the nation, requesting that announcement be made that Herbert Hoover was to speak from KHJ at 6 p.m. Pacific standard time. Return acknowledgments were received in short order stating that the request had been granted. The Portland Oregonian and other coastal stations of the West registered their intention to stay off the air during the period of Mr. Hoover's address.

It is this spirit of co-operation that will win the highest achievement of the new art.

Not because The Times made the request, nor entirely because of the personality of the man who addressed radioland, but because of the national importance of the message and the spirit back of it, was the co-operation given.

When broadcast stations will not take the air unless they have something of value to offer for the common good, the radio problem will have been solved. Silence is golden under all other circumstance, and those stations which make a practice of monopolizing the air with "canned music" and long-winded announcements relative to the ownership and location of the station have not caught the true spirit of radio co-operation.

KHJ takes this opportunity to thank those broadcast stations which cast the sunlight and warmth of good fellowship into the broadcast period of The Times station last night.

COMPOSER WILL PLAY SONG "HIT"

Unique Event to Occur Tonight From KHJ Great Broadcast Station

For the first time in history a song will be presented to the world by its composers by means of the radio.

Louis Gottschalk

A composer, a writer, a screen star and their least known aids, "emotion doctors," will combine their talents to entertain such part of the North American continent as happens to be listening in on The Times' KHJ program this evening.

"Ching, Ching, Chinaman," the popular song that was inspired by "Shadows," the motion picture now showing at the Kinema, will be radioed by Louis Gottschalk, the writer of its music; Eve Unsell, famous screen writer who wrote its words, and Myrtle Stedman, screen star.

Assisting the mwill be Roy Bush and Dolores Ordqui, gifted musicians who are known in picture studios as "emotion doctors," because of their ability to play on the emotions of those who work before the camera. Both Bush and Miss Ordqui worked with Director Tom Forman throughout the making of the picture that proved an inspiration for this song.

Mr. Gottschalk, who wrote the music for "Ching, Ching, Chinaman," is as well known for his compositions for the stage as for the screen. He provided the music for "The Tick Tock Man of Oz" and musical settings for "Broken Blossoms," "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and "Shadows."

...to Mr. Hoover one is ... that the Colorado River ... not only one of the ... constructive enterprises ...taken in the world but ...feasible from every point ...can be carried through ...date. Mr. Hoover has stripped away the mystery surrounding the so-called complications and difficulties, has faced them squarely and clearly points the way to a realization of the most ambitious and most profitable undertaking ever conceived in the West.

The first step, says Mr. Hoover, is to settle the controversy between the upper and lower Colorado River Basin. There can be no development until that is settled. Ratification by the States involved of the pact agreed upon by the Colorado River Commission will accomplish this speedily. If the matter is forced into the Supreme Court of the United States, it may require many years. Other similar cases are evidence of the danger of long delay in reaching a settlement.

EARLY SETTLEMENT URGED

With the question as between the upper and lower States settled by ratification of the pact, the way is paved for the next step, which, Mr. Hoover says, will be the erection of a control dam in the lower reaches of the river. The Colorado River Commission, after the pact had been agreed upon, passed a resolution urging Congress to proceed toward the immediate erection of control works in the lower reaches of the river.

While the commission confined itself to the matter of dividing the water between the States and did not undertake to determine the relative merits of various dam sites,

Gee, what a difference a year makes! Take for instance this Elliott Dexter and this Mrs. Nina Chisholm Untermeyer. Last November 9 both rose in their places and declared to the wide, wide world that they weren't even thinking of getting married. Good heavens, perish the thought!

But yesterday.—

"Why sure, sure!" beamed the star himself. "It's going to be this week—I'm going to become the husband of the dearest, finest, etc., etc., etc., woman in all the world. Mrs. Untermeyer and I are to be married some day this week."

"But what day, Mr. Dexter?" he was asked.

"Ah, there you have me," he merrily admitted.

Naturally the interviewer looked rather taken in the wind and all that. This business of a blushing bridegroom not knowing just when, and where, and by whom he was to be made a husband.

"No, I don't know a darned thing about it at all, at all," Dexter continued. "You see, Cecil B. DeMille, who, outside of being my director is a darned fine chap and a particular personal friend of mine with no faults beyond being a cinema director, is arranging this wedding for us."

"But don't you even know on what day it'll be—and where?" the reporter gurgled.

"Oh, no—we can't be bothered with details like that. This DeMille thing will tell us when he's got the arrangement made, and then we'll go out and have him direct us through the love, honor and obey business, you know."

DeMille himself was asked about it.

"It's true," he admitted. "They've put the whole works in my hands; just because I'm a film director they think I'll be a good wedding director, too, I suppose."

"When—where—who—???" the reporter managed to question-mark.

Craftily, the director laid his finger alongside his nose:

"Ah, wouldn't you like to know?" he said.

"We would."

"But you won't."

And that was all of that. DeMille quite refuses to tell where the wedding will take place, or on what day.

He won't even deny that it's going to be on Friday, but then he may wish 'em better luck than that.

Rumors of the impending marriage have been prevalent since a year ago, when Dexter and Mrs. Untermyer, who had then just been granted her divorce from Alvin Untermyer, the noted polo player, were quite chummy in Europe.

Mrs. Untermyer, who is prominent in California society and who owns a great estate at Riverside, arrived at the Hotel Adlon, in Berlin, on Nov. 9, 1921, coincidentally with Dexter, who was abroad with a party of actors at the time. They were together all the time, but—

"There is nothing to it" the actor exploded when questioned then concerning the marriage rumor. And Mrs. Untermyer went further and said:

"Please deny this wild rumor. I don't intend to marry for a long time."

—But then, a year may be regarded a long time, particularly by two persons in lo-hove.

De Mille, who is at present directing Dexter in "Adam's Rib," being filmed at the Lasky studios here, did admit yesterday, in discussing the imminent wedding, that he might tell a few of the arrangements before the event itself.

But it all depends on how he feels whether he will or not. And in the meantime, Elliott Dexter is walking on clouds.

He's smiling happily to himself.

FIND POISON NEAR BODY OF WOMAN

Motive Sought by Police for Dressmaker's Death, Believed Self-Inflicted

When detectives, who had been summoned by an anxious neighbor, forced an entrance yesterday into the home of Miss Margaretha Lins, 55 years old, at 1357 Edgecliff Drive, they found her body lying in the bedroom. Two empty bottles, which had contained poison were found in a bathroom near by.

Miss Lins, a retired dressmaker, who is reputed to have had a small fortune invested in stocks and bonds, was last seen on Tuesday morning by her neighbor, Mrs. J. B. Sturdevant of 1347 Edgecliff Drive.

As the days passed and Miss Lins did not appear in the flower garden which had occupied so much of her time, Mrs. Sturdevant became anxious, and yesterday afternoon, started to investigate the cause of her friends' absence.

She found the doors of the house locked and no signs of life within. A telephone call brought Detective Sergeants Bartley and Reid to the scene and these officers made the discovery of the body. They report that the dead woman was wearing $3000 worth of diamonds at the time of her death and that she had a bank account of $24,000.

The only hint of a motive for self-destruction which has been discovered to date, comes from Mrs. Sturdevant, who tells that her friend had been expecting a visit from her sister, but that only a short while ago had received word that the visit planned had been abandoned. This seemed to depress Miss Lins very much, according to Mrs. Sturdevant.

From letters which were found among the effects of the dead woman, detectives are lead to believe that she originally came from some province in Holland. It is known that her home, before she came to Los Angeles, was in Chicago. She had bought the house and lot at the Edgecliff Drive address only a month ago and was living there alone.

She had one sister living in this city, Mrs. Rudolph Lehmann of 6345 Primrose avenue, Hollywood.

Public Service Commission's Methods Disclosed

Grand Jury Investigation Uncovers Facts

Exorbitant Salaries Go to Board's "Pets"

The grand jury's investigation, which is now under way, into the methods and expenditures of the Board of Public Service Commissioners, including the amounts the board is alleged to have spent from its water and power revenues for political propaganda during the campaign preceding the November general election, has focused public attention on the salaries paid by the commissioners, who have been nick-named at the City Hall, the "de luxe bureaucrats."

Chief Electrical Engineer E. F. Scattergood, who has charge of the municipal owned hydroelectric power department, Commissioner John R. Hayne's pet project, receives $12,000 a year, his salary having been doubled on April 16, 1921. The City Engineer, who has charge of all of the city's engineering work, excepting that done by the Public Service and Harbor Departments, receives but $5000 a year, while Harbor Engineer Ludlow receives $4800 a year. Engineer Scattergood receives more than double the salary of the Mayor, whose pay is but $4500 a year.

RAISE SALARIES

The salaries of Mr. Scattergood and all other employees of the Public Service Commission have been raised to figures entirely out of proportion to those paid other city employees handling a much greater volume and extent of work, and in each case, the Public Service Board, acting under independent powers it possesses under a charter amendment, has done the salary-raising without asking even the informal approval of the Mayor, the Council or the voters.

The board was compelled to apply to the Council for authority to increase the salary of its special counsel, W. B. Mathews, who is employed by contract and is permitted to engage in outside practice. Mr. Mathews worked for years for $6000 a year, but last August, the board having lined up sufficient votes in the Council, doubled Mr. Mathews's salary to $12,000 a year, and the Council majority approved of the increase. This salary is just three times that received by City Attorney Stephens, whose assistant Mr. Mathews technically is, but the City Attorney must handle the enormous amount of legal business of the entire city government including hundreds of ordinances and contracts, and appear in the courts on behalf of the city in important cases such as the Second-street tunnel litigation.

MEET DEFEAT

Months ago the board attempted to place Attorney E. B. Robinson, Mr. Mathews's friend, and member of the law firm of Goudge, Robinson and Hughes, on the city pay roll under contract as a sort of assistant to Mr. Mathews at a salary of $12,000 a year, but the attempt fell through. This did not dismay the Public Service Board, however, which has since been paying Mr. Robinson $37.50 and often $50 a day for legal services.

The total payments on these "orders," which do not require the approval of the Council, now reach a total from Dec. 31, 1919, to November 1 of this year, of $14,458.80.

So it is all along the line. The 5000 other city employees, not so favored as the 3000 employees of the board, worry along on inadequate, meager salaries, while the board, one lone department, pursues its way paying wages double or more than those paid in the city's service. These are as much too high as the bulk of the salaries paid at the City Hall are too nicipal

NO INCREASE

The voters this month decided that for the present the salaries of the Mayor and other officers should not be increased, but the Public Service Commission, being a superbureaucracy, proceeds on

CRIES LURE VICTIM TO ROBBERY

Monrovia Man Responds to Girl's Call; Is Robbed by Two Mexicans

A young woman screaming at the top of her voice decoyed L. Bishop of Monrovia into a bandit trap yesterday at noon between Eagle Rock and Pasadena. His chivalry in coming to her assistance cost him $30 and the disabling of his automobile, while the young woman rode off in the side car of a motorcycle on which the bandits were seated, grinning at his predicament.

Detectives are inclined to believe she may be identical with the feminine bandit leader who held up a Pacific Electric train near Owensmouth a few days ago, with three male assistants, and robbed passengers and crew at the point of pistols. Police of Eagle Rock and Pasadena, with deputy sheriffs, are searching for the robbers.

Mr. Bishop, who lives at 405 East Walnut street, Monrovia, was on his way home from Los Angeles alone in his car. Between Eagle Rock and Pasadena he heard the screams coming from a side road down which he turned to find a pretty girl, apparently an American, sitting in the side car of a motorcycle with two Mexicans standing by.

"I've broken my ankle, I'm afraid," she said as Bishop came to a stop.

Bishop got out of his car and started toward her. The two Mexicans suddenly produced pistols and ordered the motorist to hold up his hands. When he complied, they faced him away from them and went through his pockets, taking $30 in bills and his watch. After examining the latter they tossed it back into his car.

Then one of the Mexicans raised the hood of Bishop's car, caught hold of the wires leading from the generator and yanked them loose from their connections. The robbers quickly mounted the motorcycle and sped away in the direction of Pasadena.

Bishop managed to get his car going and hurried to Pasadena, where he reported the robbery to the police and telephoned the Sheriff's office.

JEALOUS LOVER KNIFES NURSE

Five-Inch Wound in Neck Inflicted by Assailant

Suitor Sought as Woman in Hospital Fights Death

Mystery Shrouds Long Delay in Reporting Case

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Nov. 26.—Her throat slashed, it is reported, by a jealous suitor, Miss Zora Currelle, a nurse at California Hospital, Los Angeles, was in a serious condition at Seaside Hospital here today, and police all over Southern California were searching for her asserted assailant.

Failure of the hospital authorities and the attending physician to report the asserted stabbing to the police gave the assailant an eighteen-hour start, and he seemed tonight to have made good his disappearance.

His name was given in the girl's story to the police as John Wilford, aged 36, of 333 East Seaside avenue, Long Beach. It is declared the girl spent most of Saturday in his company, and that the stabbing took place at the railway station when she insisted on returning to Los Angeles instead of accompanying him to Santa Ana to be married.

Though the slashing is said to have taken place about 1 p.m. Saturday, neither Dr. C. W. Ransom, who dressed the wound, nor Seaside Hospital made a report till 1 p.m. today, and the police have started an investigation of the reason for the delay. Dr. Ransom asserts, the police say, that he thought it the business of the hospital to make the report, and the hospital authorities that they thought Dr. Ransom had attended to the matter.

Miss Currelle, whose address is given as 1414 South Hope street, Los Angeles, came to this city Saturday morning with Miss Marie Powell of 1350 Wesley Drive, Los Angeles, the police were informed. Miss Currelle told Detective Sergeants O. L. Robberson and Ralph Alyea and Detectives A. H. Smith and Ralph Sidley, that Wilford made several efforts yesterday to persuade her to go to Santa Ana to be married.

Still pleading, he took her to her train, and when she persisted in her refusals, according to her story to the detectives, accused her of being anxious to meet another admirer in Los Angeles. Then, the nurse declared, he attempted to cut her throat, inflicting a five-inch gash from the angle of the jaw to a point near the trachea.

At Seaside Hospital it was said the wound is serious, but might not result fatally.

The police recalled today that a long delay occurred several weeks ago in the reporting of the suicide of a patient at Seaside Hospital, and declare that the hospital authorities were warned at that time to be more prompt.

ROBBERS' CAVE FOUND

Sheriff's Deputies Discover Plunder Worth Thousands In Chatsworth Hills; Bandits Flee

Discovery of a robbers' cave at the head of a lonely canyon in the Chatsworth Hills, at the north end of the San Fernando Valley, was announced yesterday by the Sheriff's office. Plunder from many burglaries and thefts in the smaller valley communities was found there by Deputy Sheriffs Stensland, Catlin and Cull, but the bandits were not found, despite an all-night vigil by the officers.

The thieves' lair lies at the end of an old, long unused trail leading off from the Santa Susanna trail and was discovered Saturday by John Graves, a rancher of Owensmouth. Graves, on horseback, pursued three men assumed to be bandits, up the canyon until nightfall, when he decided to telephone for help.

PLUNDER DIVERSIFIED

Hidden beneath a tarpaulin and sagebrush, the Deputy Sheriffs, who responded to Graves, call, found an automobile and a motorcycle, from which license plates and registration certificates had been removed; four typewriters; about $1000 worth of canned goods, about $2000 worth of cigars, cigarets and candies, and thirty-five automobile tires.

Much of the stolen goods, the officials declare, has been identified as the proceeds of burglary at the Southern Pacific freight depot at Owensmouth, Wednesday night, and the rest, it is believed, was taken from San Fernando Valley stores in raids during the past few weeks.

There were three men in the party that Graves pursued. Graves saw the men in the outskirts of Owensmouth, loading automobile tires into a battered car. He rode over to see what they were doing and they fled.

Because of the roughness of the road they took, the rancher on horseback was able to keep them in sight, and he followed until dusk, when he saw them whisk into a canyon which contained a little-used trail. Deciding it would be running into a probable ambush to follow them further Graves returned to Chatsworth and called the Sheriff.

The three deputies took up the trail where Graves left it, working their way up with guns ready for action.

Nearly at the top, the wash led out on a shelf of rock where signs of a camp were found. After searching about for some time with their flashlights, the deputies came to a grotto beneath the overhanging cliff that bordered the canyon on one side, and there the plunder was stowed, hidden by cut brush.

SERMON AND SONG ON AIR

"Times" Radio Broadcasts Superb Sunday Program

Dr. Patton Takes as His Subject "Why Worry?"

Sacred Music and Opera Vie for Premier Honors

If the old phrase: "The better the day the better the deed," still holds good, then yesterday's service from KHJ had double reason for registering favorably with Sunday morning listeners. A day bright and resplendent; a service that had for its appeal three sacred vocal solos, three superb violin numbers and a sermon which taught the creed of enjoying that which we have. Such a combination of bright Sabbath morning and a delineation of thought through right channels can be marked down as conducive to good deeds. And, after all, even though the day had not been so bright, the writer may be pardoned the inference, the subject of the sermon was expressive—"Why Worry?"

FOLLOW SERMON THEME

Beth Woodruff Nordwall, mezzo-soprano, gave a group of three songs, each of which was indicative of the sermon theme. Her "Angels' Serenade," by Braga, a song always admired, became a thing of sterling worth under her interpretive artistry. Likewise "Grant Us Thy Peace," by Bush, to which Lee Wisman played a violin obbligato, and "Be Thou My Guide," by Lowell, fitted admirably into the sacred service, both for the sentiment expressed and for the superb rendition. Mary Hopkins accompanied Miss Nordwall in all three selections.

C. Lee Wisman, violin soloist, also accompanied by Mary Hopkins, gave an interpretation of that standard old favorite intermezzo, from "Cavalleria Rusticana," that made his invisible audience follow closely to the final note the sheer beauty of this number carrying the acme of appeal. He also rendered a sextette from "Lucia di Lammermoor," and "Melobreeze," giving to each a masterly touch that was apparent to all who listened in.

That the people of this world concern themselves too much with material things, mistaking their wants for their needs, was the keynote of the sermon delivered by Dr. Carl S. Patton, pastor of the First Congregational Church, which had as its title: "Why Worry?" This same sermon was given immediately after the KHJ service at Dr. Patton's church, it being one which he has given a number of times and which his congregation has asked to have repeated.

Dr. Patton admonished his invisible audience not to take so much thought of material things, but to give themselves to righteousness. If this is done, other things will follow. Worry, he declared, is bad, and purely a mental habit. The state of mind in which we live either makes or breaks us. Life, he said, is just what we make it; we get out of it just what we let our mentality put into it. There is a practical philosophy to life which he likened to the bark on a tree, or the shell on a nut. If we let this philosophy shield us from the storms and stresses that come from worry then worry will be put to rout.

"Serve an ideal," declared Dr. Patton. "Get your mind off of things. When the world is so full of ideal why should we be forever worrying about things to eat, things to wear, things to put into the bank? Religious faith is the best cure for worry. If faith in God does not relieve us of our worries then it isn't much use to us."

HOOVER PLEADS FOR RIVER PACT

Mr. Hoover yesterday declared himself to be in favor of the construction of a dam at or near Boulder Canyon. He believes that the people of California and of all the States interested should make a concerted effort to secure a control dam at Boulder Canyon or in the vicinity, so that the waters of the river will be equated and Imperial Valley protected against flood menace.

Mr. Hoover is emphatic in declaring that there need be no quarrel over division of the water, because there is more water than all the lands in the basin in the United States and Mexico can use. He cites statements of the United States Reclamation Service to support this assertion.

DAVIS'S ESTIMATES

Director Davis of the United State Reclamation Service estimates that approximately 3,000,000 acre-feet is now being used in the lower basin and that this use represents a development of twenty-two years. Mr. Davis says the developments of twenty-five years more would enable the use of 3,000,000 more acre-feet. In the upper basin as the result of many years of development, 2,400,000 acre-feet are being used. The development there is slow and the total of all known projects would require only 6,000,000 feet.

Of the waters of the controlled river, the pact allocates 7,500,000 to the upper basin and 7,500,000 to the lower basin and the amount available is 22,000,000 acre-feet, provision having been made for a further division of surplus waters in forty years.

Mr. Hoover uses these figures to show that with maximum development of known projects not nearly all of the available waters can be used. It will be 100 years, he believes before either of the basin division can use all the water now allotted to say nothing of the surplus of 7,000,000 acre-feet.

The first dam, Mr. Hoover says, will equate the flow sufficiently to protect against flood and to provide all the water that can be used for a long time. Later other dams will be built. He predicts that in 300 years there will be twenty dams, that power in enormous quantities will be generated, but that even then it is doubtful if the development for irrigation will require all the water that will be available.

Referring to Article II, which says that the term Colorado Basin shall mean all the lands within the United States and within the basin to which the waters of the river can be beneficially applied, Mr Hoover says that this was decided upon in the interests of Imperial Valley and Colorado. Otherwise the question of whether Imperial Valley might properly be considered as within the basin might be raised.

Article VIII was inserted, Mr. Hoover explained, for the special protection of Imperial Valley. It states flatly and without qualification that "present perfected rights to the beneficial use of waters of the Colorado River system are unimpaired by the compact." Faulty punctuation in telegraphed reports of the pact made it appear that this statement was qualified by a subsequent clause but Mr. Hoover says that the pact itself makes the statement flatly and without qualification.

This article was inserted at the request of Imperial Valley representatives but is really superfluous, Mr. Hoover points out, because the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution provides full protection to existing water rights.

Mr. Hoover leaves no doubt as to the profit to be derived directly and indirectly by controlling the river and putting its waters to use for irrigation and power. Aside from the millions of horse power that will be generated, the security of Imperial Valley and its rich lands from flood and the products of vast areas now uncultivated, Mr. Hoover says that the project is profitable even in its narrower aspects. The Federal government will receive, he says, a greater sum in increased income taxes than the carrying charges on a sum sufficient to build an adequate control dam.

ON JOB THREE WEEKS

Secretary Hoover left Washington three weeks ago last night and has been in conference with his commission at Santa Fe beginning the 9th inst. and concluding Friday night with the signing of the agreement by the representatives of the seven States.

Director Arthur P. Davis of the United States Reclamation Service and other delegates to the Santa Fe conference also arrived in Los Angeles yesterday with Mr. Hoover. Mr. Davis was enthusiastic in his commendation of the agreement and expressed confidence that the way now has been paved for an actual undertaking of the work. Mr. Davis will go to Boulder Canyon today to inspect the borings which are being made at Black Canyon and will probably return to Los Angeles late this week or early next week.

LEAVES FOR NORTH

Mr. Hoover left last night for San Francisco but expects to return to Los Angeles early next week. While the date has not been definitely determined it is probable that Secretary Hoover will speak next Monday or Tuesday under the auspices of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. It is also possible that he will visit Imperial Valley and other Southwest points before he returns to Washington.

J. S. Nickerson, chairman of the Imperial Irrigation District Board, who returned from Santa Fe yesterday stated that he is satisfied that Imperial Valley is amply protected by the agreement at Santa Fe. He said that the objections voiced by Mark Rose and others in the valley are not justified and expressed the belief that when the pact is clearly understood Imperial Valley will be unanimously in favor of it.

Cornet Solo is Added Feature of Broadcast

A feature of the broadcast by Secretary Hoover of his message on the Colorado River project from KHJ last night was a cornet solo played by Carl L. Buratti, accompanied at the piano by his daughter Miss Audry Buratti.

Mr. Buratti was reached by long distance telephone at the Uplifters' Ranch in the Santa Monica Canyon at 5 p.m.

"Can you get your cornet and reach the broadcast studio within the hour?" he was asked.

"It's a wonderful day, a beautiful setting for my Sunday rest, but I will be there," was Mr. Buratti's answer.

He played "The Rosary," by Nevin, and the clear bell-like notes of his cornet reached the Atlantic seaboard according to wires received.

GAME OF CONVERSATION

A man is writing a book on the theme: "If Husbands Could Talk." It is possible that "could" is meant for "would." There are a few husbands who could talk if they would, but the wife has them buffaloed and they are afraid. The printery would be kept busy, however, if somebody should start a work: "If Wives Would Talk."

UNDER COVER

They have a secret session at the Lausanne conference for the purpose of permitting Ambassador Child to explain to the delegates the opinions and attitude of the United States in relation to the grave international questions that are before the gathering. As a shirt-sleeve diplomat Uncle Sam is some guy. We are ashamed to be seen in public with Dame Europa. No wonder the Old World statesmen are given to indulgent smiles when America is mentioned.

CAMPAIGN FUNDS

According to sworn statement Woolwine spent $1400 in real money in connection with his campaign for the Governorship. Whether he had that much fun is up for him to decide. It is supposed to be a very modest sum for the office. Many a man will blow that much in chasing a nomination for a minor job, but, really, the campaign fund may have no bearing in the finals. Friend Richardson, for instance, blew in only $455 of his personal dough and look at the slab of bacon he brought home. That amount wouldn't send a souvenir postal card to all the voters in Los Angeles.

ORIENTAL SMOKE

An eminent journalistic observer is of the opinion that China will be the world's favorite tobacco market in the near future. There is a vast population and they are virtually all becoming smokers. The women and children are using cigarettes as freely as the men. The model industry of the Orient is the cigarette factory near Shanghai, created by American capital and employing more than 10,000 workers. They have built a wonderful little city on sanitary and hygienic lines which is serving as an eye-opener for other enterprises. This one factory turns out more than 20,000,000 cigarettes a day. The cigarette consumption of China now reaches more than 30,000,000,000 of the little torches a year and the surface has only been scratched. The market will double within the next two or three years. The way to keep track of China is to watch her smoke. The Chinese used to buy a good many Bibles in America, but now they seem to use more paper in their cigarettes. The cloud in the Orient is only the smoke of the Chinese cigarettes.

OUR GROWING BUREAUCRACY

Government by bureaucracy at Washington has reached the high-water mark predicted for it several years ago by those who strenuously oppose too much centralization of power. The expansion of the administrative branch of the Federal government from approximately 50,000 officials and employees in the seventies to more than 500,000 today is an indication of what may be expected unless something is done to co-ordinate and consolidate the work now being done by 145 boards, bureaus and commissions.

There is no gainsaying the fact that official Washington is topheavy. A weeding-out process is imperative. This is an age of specialization and efficiency, and the methods of the modern business world should supersede the antiquated systems of procedure which are hopelessly inadequate to meet the demands of the increasing volume of official business.

The staggering cost of government, with its attendant waste of energy and money, has reached alarming proportions. The burden of it is reflected very definitely in our taxation problems, and this, in turn, hits the pocketbook of every one of us.

The problem is pressing for solution. It must be met, and met vigorously. Applied business efficiency is the antidote.

ROYALTY GOES A-VISITING

Bonar Law's back is to the wall. British statesmanship is in a stew. The empire's political perplexities must await solution. And all because 300 wailing, weeping wives must be delivered safely to their husband. Mohammed VI, deposed Caliph who fled the other day to Malta instead of waiting for the Turkish Nationalists to retire him, with pomp and ceremony on the end of a rope.

A permanent place of refuge for this brave husband is now being sought by the British, whose guest he is; and, inasmuch as he has expressed a desire to have his household with him, there is nothing to do but grant his imperial request.

Lloyd George should thank his lucky stars that he was beaten in the late elections. We suspect that the Little Giant is laughing up his sleeve, but we hope his sense of sportsmanship will stay his taunting remark. "Now let's see what you can do, Mr. Law." Official Washington, too, has much to be thankful for. The Senator Sorghums can go about their sweet, prosaic way, wondering, perhaps, how a man has the nerve in these days of the high cost of living to imitate old Solomon, but thankful, at least, that their political duties do not include the arduous task of finding shelter for a royal harem.

FORGET TO HATE

The most ignoble and dangerous of all human emotions is hatred.

The most futile of all hatreds is that which hugs an injury which is of the past.

The most useless to society is that character who keeps lugging out fuel to add to this evil flame, all the while squeaking, "Lest we forget; lest we forget."

The wise, sane man is he whose whisper of warning is: "Lest we do not forget."

There is real force and dread and danger behind his whisper.

All of which has to do with the tempest in a teapot caused by the announcement of the concert engagement in Los Angeles of Madame Gadski, the German soprano, which seems off-again-on-again-gone-again with the rising and setting of each sun.

In itself there is no possible importance to the coming of Madame Gadski—or to the shooing away of Madame Gadski.

There is, however, infinite and dangerous importance in the incident to the extent that it reflects a determination on the part of certain elements of society to keep alive the spirit of hatred that swept through the world like an angry flame during the World War.

Very possibly it was necessary for the soldiers to be taught to hate each other before they could efficiently and effectually kill. But, in so teaching, the world started something that is difficult to stop.

Unless it is stopped the end is inevitable; all modern civilization is going down with a crash. There can be no other end to a world-wide hatred that feeds, horribly and frightfully, upon its own venom; which consumes its own vitals.

Ireland is in a death agony resulting from an unreasoning, unappeasing hatred. The Turks and the Armenians boil in a caldron of hatred: Scarcely two adjacent European countries but glare and growl at each other across their boundary lines.

All these conferences can result in nothing—diplomats exchanging treachery in hoarse whispers—mauling over treaties that no one intends to keep.

Of course, the world is slipping with slick and horrible certainty into another world war.

The only possible way it can be averted is for the people of the world to change their thoughts—you and your neighbor—and his neighbors—and the folks across the street—to change their thoughts. . . .

The only way to stop hatred is to stop hating.

The war is over.

We've got to forget—or perish.

THE COMMUNISTIC LEDGER

Official reports issued by the Central Soviet Government of Russia naturally put the best face possible on existing economic conditions. It is not to be expected that the government will admit failure while it is possible to claim even partial success. But, taking conditions in Russia as they are painted in the official reports, it is apparent that the economic dissolution still continues. The death rate mounts and the birth rate falls. Industrial production still shrinks and population diminishes.

According to the last Russian census the population of the territory under the control of the Central government fell from 130,000,000 in 1914 to 114,000,000 in 1920. This does not take into account the terrible loss of life during the last two years. Neutral observers estimate that the actual population loss has been 25,000,000. During the ten years prior to the war the population increase of this territory averaged 5,000,000 a year.

Russia's population remained about stationary from 1914 to 1918, the loss of death by reason of the war was equalized by the births, which averaged in Russia about 13 to 1000 annually. But in 1918 the terrible loss of life, due to the economic and industrial collapse, began. But for Communism the population of soviet Russia would now be 155,000,000. It is only 105,000,000; a loss of 50,000,000, almost one-half the population of the United States; a loss greater than the entire population of any other European country except Germany.

What a volume of unrecorded misery those figures of dwindling population disclose! The lives of 50,000,000 human beings in soviet Russia alone have been sacrificed to the Communist idea. History contains no parallel for so colossal a human tragedy. And history will experience no difficulty in fixing the blame.

Early this year the leaders of the soviet government admitted that their social and economic policies had proved a failure; and they have been striving impotently to get Russia back on a capitalistic basis. But the people no longer trust their leaders. They have no faith in the protestation of reform from Moscow; and the economic dissolution continues.

In a report published in Isvestia, the soviet organ, President Boganoff of the All-Russian Council of National Economy discloses that "out of twentysix branches of industry operated by the government twenty-one will end the year 1922 with a negative balance, because the cost of production is higher than the value of the goods produced."

Already the government finds that it cannot compete in industry with privately operated companies, although the private companies are subjected to a heavy taxation.

To date, 50,000,000 lives and property valued at $125,000,000,000 have been sacrificed to the Russian Communistic revolution; and the end is not yet. Faced by that record, one is inclined to advocate a return to the old Saxon law, under which teaching a false economic theory was made a capital offense. He who came to court with a petition for a new economic law was led forward by two guards, a halter about his neck, grim reminder of his fate if the law did not work well. Perhaps there was some virtue in such procedure.

MEN FOR HOUSEWORK

Dr. Sloan Chesser of London steps into the limelight with a highly delectable scheme for rearranging the duties of the sexes. Women having toiled through the centuries as the natural scullery maids of the family, the doctor is all for turning the tables and giving the men an opportunity to exercise their native talents at polishing the kitchen stove and giving the canary his bath. The ladies, avers the doctor, should fill the pulpits as preachers and follow the professions of medicine and nursing, while the men should train their scintillating intellects on the thrilling chores of cleaning house and concocting the evening meal.

Although the doctor is a lady, this novel idea is no deep-seated scheme of revenge. She gives as her reason that men are more fitted for these uplifting tasks, by virtue of their greater strength and because they are so much more competent. We strongly suspect that the doctor is married and that she has kissed the blarney stone. She probably has a husband whom she jollies in this fashion into doing all the housework and, it having worked so well in her case, she is willing to let the suffering sisterhood the world over into the secret. At that, it is an excellent plan, and an obliging government having taught the present crop of eligible young men to scrub, peel potatoes and mend their clothes properly, through the medium of army training, there is no reason why the present-day bride should be burdened with repellent tasks if she follows the doctor's prescription and feeds the brute a few fulsome compliments.

SIGNS OF DEEPER THINKING

The fact that "The Ten Commandments" was selected, out of 30,000 suggestions from all parts of the world, as the winning idea for a great motion picture in the De Mille-Los Angeles Times contest is much more impressive than it is surprising. It is not, as some light-witted persons might suggest, an indication that the Ten Commandments are a striking novelty to the motion-picture consciousness, but very much the contrary. For, above all things else, motion-picture producers study the trends of public thought, the things of major interest to the public mind. They and the newspapers must keep in touch with the public consciousness as few other people can, and no great producer would leap enthusiastically into a program involving not only the expenditure of a fortune, but his own judgment and reputation, were he not convinced the picture he planned would be of searching interest to millions of people.

The patent office in Washington has discovered that thought waves seem to travel through the ether just as radio waves do, striking people in widely separated districts, people wholly out of touch with each other, at the same moment. Inventions seemingly undreamed of before have reached the Patent Office from Maine and California simultaneously, or almost simultaneously. And the realization of a new trend in public thought has seemed to dawn on widely separated people who make a study of it in precisely the same way in this instance. Within the last month one widely circulated New York magazine, McCall's, has begun the publication as a serial, announced on its cover page as an important attraction, of "The Story of the Bible," and the latest issue of the Pictorial Review, one of the very best of the women's magazines, chooses as its one feature announcement for the cover page the fact that "Papini's story of Christ begins in this issue."

More than two years ago this spirit became manifest in Los Angeles when a great outdoor representation of the story of the life of Christ drew thousands of people to a natural auditorium which took up all of one end of a sizable canyon.

One may argue that this is nothing new, pointing to the historic success of the Passion Play at Oberammergau, the world success of "Ben Hur," which was translated into many foreign languages in the preceding century, and the similar wide human appeal of "Quo Vadis" at the dawn of this century. Yet, now, when so many of us were fancying that the world had become completely flappered, it comes as evidence of a great resurge of deeper thought and a proof that, underneath the fretted surface, we still are holding fast to the fundamentals of national and individual character.

There is nothing to compare with the starlight nights, the autumn days or the girls—when we were 21.

We Predict Some Session

SPEEDING TO JAIL

The jails are filled with repentant speeders and the judges are filled with severity and high resolve.

Their sudden campaign of jail sentences will be of real benefit, if . . .

There is a big "if."

Time and experience have rendered the well-meaning autoist somewhat skeptical.

Almost every new Chief of Police and every new police judge makes a firm resolve to discipline the man-killing speeders. The streets are then filled with policemen, sleuthing around in the most approved fashion. Startled motorists find themselves on the way to jail for infractions of ordinances they did not know were on the statute books. The traffic laws suddenly seem to expand to Gargantuan and terrific proportions. Every night that he finds himself safely back in the old family garage without being arrested is a matter for devotional gratitude.

Then, after a week or two, the police and the courts seem to get tired of it. The son of Mr. So-and-So, who knows Councilman So-and-So, is allowed to go with a warning and somebody who collected so much money for the last police benefit can't be thrown into the dungeons without embarrassment. And it's all off again. The speed boys go tearing up and down the asphalt again as of old.

Unless they are followed up with a permanent course of jail sentences and with an automatic loss of license at the second or third offense these crusades are only silly and hysterical.

There was, for instance, just as much reason for jailing speed offenders the day before Mrs. Michael Connell was killed as the day afterward.

Also, there should be some standardization of the speed laws. When you pass through Eagle Rock you are arrested for going over fifteen miles; in Glendale they will let you slide into twenty.

Perhaps the most serious obstacle to the enforcement of the speed laws is the subtle difference between the letter of the law and rule of tacit consent. In the city the law says you will be arrested if you go faster than twenty miles an hour. The policeman on the beat usually says he will not arrest you until you go twenty-five. Which is the real traffic law?

If twenty miles isn't the right speed, the letter of the law should be changed to a practical, workable, experienced figure.

Then it should be literally and relentlessly enforced.

As it is now no motorist can be sure what the actual police-prescribed speed limit is from day to day. It seems largely to be a matter of inspiration.

RIPPLING RHYMES

THE BRIDEGROOM

In vain, in vain ex-Kaiser Bill sent telegrams to me: "Will you not come, already, still, our wedding guest to be? The nuptial rites will be a frost unless we see you here, so come, regardless of the cost, and fill old Doorn with cheer." "I have engagements," I replied, "that keep me here at home; each day that bacon may be fried I have to write a pome." It was a cheap, framed-up excuse I rather blushed to send, but Wilhelm broke the moorings loose that held me as his friend. I once possessed a sickly hope that he had some defense; but since I read his "memoirs" hope said hope has glimmered hence. The man who whines as Wilhelm whines, through his long, turgid tale, can't have me with him when he dines or weds a princess pale. A man must keep his self-respect, whatever he may lose, and so I sent reply, collect, "I can't be there with youse." The man who bores as Willyum bores, on taking pen in hand, won't find me knocking at his doors, as his best man to stand. I might forgive him all he's done, destroying maps and thrones and turning loose the sword and gun and filling farms with bones; but when he writes so punk a tale it fills me with despair and I send word by wire and mail that I will not be there.

SOULS FOR WOMEN

BY [illegible]

I want a soul. I will have a soul. Even if I have to march in a parade and carry a banner, even if I have to break windows and gum up letter boxes and go on hunger strikes in jail, I insist upon having a soul.

When Ambassador Harvey, after cautiously putting the Atlantic Ocean between us, gave an address in London, entitled "Have Women Souls"? we received the first cabled news with astonished amusement. But soon that awful interrogation mark began its insidious work. He didn't call his address "Sex and Soul" or "Soul and the Woman" or "The Soul in Relation to the Female Sex"—no, sisters, this representative of a country which harbors "the most intelligent women in the world"—vide our nicest politicians—just flung out the disturbing query, "Have Women Souls"? and blandly proceeded to debate the subject. And his deductions, based upon the Ten Commandments, which he opines do not apply to women in any way, left us shivering and soulless outside the gates of Paradise.

And, mark you, no gallant, valiant male has arisen to vise the female soul, to indorse its passport, to open those gates of Paradise unto us.

The only notable contribution to the debate on this side came from Dr. Nicola Tesla, who foresaw the world of the future dominated by women—"harsh, cruel, relentless, cold"—and therefore presumably soulless, since souls are ever associated with faith, hope, charity and mercy.

We have heard about "a good old soul," "a queer old soul," "a jolly old soul" and "not a bad old soul," but never of a harsh, cruel, relentless, cold old soul. Tesla's insinuation is obvious.

However, before we take any organized action to demand "Souls for Women" we must consider the question from all its angles. Do we really want the Ten Commandments to apply to us?

Quite a number of men had previously considered that the Ten Commandments applied only to women. Or, anyway, the sixth, seventh and ninth. Even when they have to punish a fellow, a male murderer is regarded as well within the range of normality. In fact, under certain prescribed conditions, he is something of a hero. But a woman murderer is "a hideous freak of nature."

And it was a very trifling percentage of men who took the seventh, "Thou shalt not commit adultery," as applying in any way to their own sex.

As for bearing false witness against one's neighbors—everyone knows that only women gossip, men merely discuss.

If, therefore, Ambassador Harvey's deductions are sound, it will be seen at once that it relieves women of a great deal of exacting responsibility.

Perhaps it is just as well that this question [illegible] Woman's part demand for [illegible] the sexes. It more politic to strictly upon the ments—the mandments and try on that sound course, but as having ments and once obtained.

BEATING THE DEVIL

By the Foothill Philosopher

They talk about "beating the devil around the stump," but I never knew anyone to beat him around anything if they went after him in earnest. The only man I ever knew who seemed to have the prince of darkness on the run was a man who never chased him at all.

On the other hand, I once knew a preacher (and he didn't live in Los Angeles, of course) who fought the devil so hard that he had nervous prostration before he got his D.D.—to the well-concealed delight of his parishioners, who included a silent proviso in their public prayers for his recovery. There were probably others in that town who were also elated over the pastor's downfall—but that is beside the point.

As a matter of fact, some preachers appear so zealous in their warfare against the evil one that their brilliant campaigns are almost enough to excite the envy and jealousy of the Almighty, who, they do not hesitate to admit, will have to be called upon at the last stand to deliver the knock-out blow. These captains of the hosts of light sometimes seem to be making a bid for the generalship of the entire army and, while they try hard to obey orders from headquarters, their enthusiasm often tempts them to try their own tactics, without first consulting the Chief.

Many more things might be said concerning the devil if space would permit—but space plays the devil with a writer who tries to monopolize it for the use of heavenly guests.

THIS IS THE DAY

In the year 1904 the United States and Germany signed an arbitration treaty. It will be noted that when the United States declared war on Germany in 1917 neither country made any appeal to bring this arbitration treaty into effect.

this question had been thrown to Woman's party puts through the demand for absolute equity of the sexes. It might be infinitely more politic to base any demands strictly upon the Ten Commandments—the men to keep the ones they try on that basis. Which, of course, but is quite as reasonable as having us keep the commandments and the men the rights once obtained.

Now French, which is the national language of diplomacy, is quite pleasantly definite on the subject of the sex of certain words. For instance, "virtue" is feminine and so is "honesty"; "truth." But "worship," "death," "honor," "theft," "mercy," "murder"—these are masculine nouns. Hence, it is as a sex are inherently more honest and truthful—and "purity" are also feminine nouns—one can readily see how superfluous the commandments are relating to those attributes as to women, anyway.

On the other hand, if "honor" and "Sabbath" are masculine, they should be upheld by the men who belong to. And, if "murder" and "mercy" and "theft" are feminine, it is quite obvious that the Seventh and Eighth Commandments against these crimes form no the sex most intimately associated with them.

As regards the Tenth Commandment, that is so obviously directed and addressed to the male of the species that it hardly seems worth while to the debate. Which of us women ever, under any circumstances, covets her neighbor's wife? And there isn't a word about coveting one's neighbor's husband.

But, all the same, I do want a soul. And I can't help feeling that France, in declaring "virtue," "truth," "honesty" and "chastity" feminine nouns, set forth the opinion that women really had no matter how much they may have been about it.

However, both "heaven" and "paradise" are masculine in French which rather confuses the issue. And "earth" and "world" are feminine, very mundane and materialistic. Can it be that those negative feminine virtues of ours are not for earthly use, after all?

If so, that looks like a masculine conspiracy—the virtues and the exercise thereof for us, heaven and the reward for men! Why, even "forgiveness" and "pardon" are masculine nouns—so, of course, the commandments ought only to apply to men.

So the case does look a bit bad for us against us. Perhaps we'll learn. Clemenceau is among us. He will explain the anomalies which embarrass the gender of those various vital words in the French language—which, the more I study it the better one realizes exactly why it is the international "diplomatic" language. Diplomatic! I should say it is.

Get out your banners, Souls for Women."

ON THE WANE

Government ownership is on the wane in Australia. In August the Australian government announced it is going out of the shipping business and also out of the business of owning and operating passenger steamers. As for its war vessels, it has decided that they should be handed over to private enterprise on the theory that the government should not engage in any undertaking which requires it to go out and solicit trade. In the business of operating ships the Australian government has encountered exactly the labor troubles that confronted the owners, with a few extra thrown in for good measure. Official Australia is now anxious to have someone else operate its ships.—Lincoln's Business.

Argument Ended

The argument had been heated over the question of man versus woman.

"Well," remarked the husband at last, "at least there is one thing that is perfect and perfect thing a man can be and a woman cannot."

"Never!" cried his wife, passionately. "Never! I absolutely deny that!"

"What do you mean?"

"A wife!" replied hubby.—[illegible] News.

WALKING THROUGH THE NIGHT

My head is bowed to a
Cold black earth with the Bitterness of my soul,
While clouding clouds free
The light that falls before me.
And why should I look to
The splendor of God's heaven
When
Tears pierce and make my pathway
Blind?

In the distance a gold path
Is flung upon deep blue velvet
Waters with the whisper of soft
Music.
A story of love from soft fingers
Played on the strings of a harp.
Then my eyes fill with tears,
And is lost and the gold is gone.
My head is lifted to the stars—
The road is smooth and warm.

PASTORS HOLD UP BIBLE AS WORLD'S BEST LIGHT

Sermons Breathe Spirit of Fealty to Christian Teachings in Book of Books

...uld know nothing of counterfeit money if there were genuine, standard currency with which to compare it. Current falsities, inharmonies and errors in nature, in human life and in the minds of men are especially noticeable because of the fact that the universal system of things constantly suggests to man the idea of order and harmony.

On the occasion of National Bible Sunday, pastors of Los Angeles churches yesterday held up the Book of Books as the best light in the world, declaring that all organizations founded upon the Word are fundamentally sound and worthy of support. Many ministers pointed to the inconsistency of the fact that the work of the churches is futile merely because there are sometimes found among the faithful. The presence of hypocrisy, they said, is an admission of the fact that the true mission of the church is the salvation of souls.

"A magnificent thing was done by a local film producer in multiplying by eight, his promised reward of $1000 for the best suggestion of an idea for film treatment—the idea of the Ten Commandments being the winner. In the visualization of that idea, if the breaking of the Ten Commandments continues in future as in the past, the claim of putrescence in the business will not subside, but continue until public opinion lands the screen where it has landed the saloon. If the vision of the commandments kept, the glory of their keeping rather than the shame of their breaking, can be presented by scenario writer and screen producer, the genius of artists and workers alike will have acclaim.

"The task is hard, by all the difference of public interest between the sane driver in traffic regulations, and the speeder who, in these passing days, is rightly going to jail; the wreck arouses interest because unexpected, and the keeper of the commandments is unnoticed because he has not interfered with the vision we all entertain of orderly, law-respecting life."

START REVIVAL AT WILSHIRE CHURCH

An evangelistic campaign, under the leadership of Rev. H. A. Van Winkle, of Oakland and J. V. Baird, music director, was started yesterday morning at the Wilshire Boulevard Christian Church, of which Rev. M. Howard Fagan is pastor. Preaching from the text "Speak unto my people that they may go forward," Dr. Van Winkle spoke in part as follows:

"The Red Sea that blocked the progress of Israel was no redder than the one that stretches before the civilized world today. It might well be compared to the un-American and un-Christian spirit that is manifest among certain elements of modern times. There's but one thing to do with this Twentieth Century Red Sea and that's to smite it with the rod of truth.

"Christianity is the only power that can reconstruct the world and restore honor and brotherly love among the nations of the world. Give Christianity a fair chance and it will solve our problems."

RECITES FEARFUL MOSLEM PRAYER

Rev. Dan A. Trundle, executive secretary of the National Justice to Armenia Society, preached at the Highland Park Christian Church yesterday on "The Folly of Making Treaties with Turkey." He said in part:

"Here is a portion of the official Islam prayer, which the Turks are fanatically pledged to carry out. We know by recent events at Smyrna how faithful they are to its program:

"'I seek refuge with Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful! O Lord of all creatures! O Allah! destroy the infidels and polytheists, thine enemies, the enemies of thy religion! O Allah! make their children orphans and defile their abodes! Cause their feet to slip, and give them and their families, their households and their women, their children and relations by marriage, their brothers and their friends, their possessions and their race, their wealth and their lands, as booty to the Moslems, O Lord of all creatures!'

"No one has immunity from the awful curses of this prayer but Moslems. American unbelievers are as much an object of their condemnation as American believers. So much for the religious aspect of the situation. If any one will carefully study this matter in the light of Moslem conduct, recent or ancient, he will discover that the Moslem has lived up to his declaration of principles. Whether we have in mind the early days under the leadership of the Prophet, himself, or the Red Sultan, the Young Turk administration or the Nationalist Turk now in the saddle, their conduct has always been characterized by deadly consistency. He is always the same vicious fanatic!

"His enemies may differ in their attitude toward him at various times; he never differs in his attitude toward his enemies. At times he hides his feelings, and disguises his intentions, but, sooner or later, when his opportunity comes, he gives the world a horrible proof of the zeal that never flags for putting over his ghastly program. Of what value is a treaty made with such a people and such a government without the means at hand to insure its integrity? In 1815, we smashed him first and made him respect our will, then made a treaty with him. Shall we now treat with him with no assurance that he will keep such treaty? It is a waste of time. It is worse; it would be a betrayal of public confidence of the people of Europe and America."

SAYS REAL EVIL DOES NOT EXIST

Clinton A. Billig was the speaker yesterday at the Church of the People. Speaking on the subject, "Rank Heresy Concerning Evil," Mr. Billig said in part:

"As an explanation of the apparent evil, everywhere so patent, and so generally claimed, the theory that evil is but a false, or imperfect translation of facts, or reality, by ignorant, misinformed, faulty mentality, has been advanced. Evil was likened to darkness, which seems real, as darkness, but which an enlightened scientific analysis declares is realy a state or condition of light, so intense or rapid in its vibratory activities, that the human eye cannot at present sense it and which state, simply because it does not know it, it calls something the opposite of what it is. The basis of the 'no evil' heresy is summed up in the claim that all being and its things must necessarily be right always; and that wrongness or evil can only be in the experience of things, rather than in things themselves. Such a conclusion—admittedly a theory—and the application of its thesis to experience, is found experimentally to be the exact remedy for evil, or the alterative of man's experience of evil. It is with experience, and not with things that man has to deal; and experience is wholly made up of what one thinks about things."

TELLS OF WORLD'S GREATEST ORATOR

Dr. W. E. McCulloch, pastor of the United Presbyterian Church, preached yesterday on "Unsurpassed Eloquence." In part he said:

"We once heard George R. Wendling, the noted lecturer, maintain that for real oratory St. Paul had never been excelled. It is generally conceded that Daniel Webster is the greatest orator that America has produced, but Webster at his best was never more truly eloquent than the great apostle to the Gentiles pouring forth the conviction and the gratitude of his soul concerning the love of Christ. This man who had experienced the roughest side of life, who had looked death in the face many a time, who had been cruelly hated and maliciously persecuted, who had been hounded from place to place by bitter-hearted enemies, who had been mobbed and imprisoned and scourged and stoned—this man declared it to be his positive, unquestioning faith that no spiritual hierarchies, friendly or hostile, no thrones of darkness, nothing in critical today nor in uncertain tomorrow, nothing in the infinite spaces of the universe above or below, nothing in life's mysterious experiences, not even the apparently invincible foe which we call death, can separate us from the love of Christ."

CALLS WORKINGMAN FRIEND OF CHRIST

Rev. Thomas Lutman, pastor of the Mesa Congregational Church, preached yesterday on "The Halo around the head of the ordinary mortal." He said in part:

"The world has millions of nameless men whose contribution is absolutely necessary to its comfort and existence. The scribes called the common people 'the mob.' Christ called them the children. He had no other values in earth or Heaven than men. He preached the Sermon on the Mount to the kind of crowd you would find on any Fourth of July. He wept tears over ordinary men, shed His blood for them, weighed the world against them and called the world a featherweight.

"It takes good eyesight to see the halo on an ordinary task. Yet there are only three ways of living—by working, begging or stealing. The man who is not doing the first is doing one or both of the other two. We sometimes get sick of a commonplace task and say: 'Oh, for the wings of a dove!' We don't need wings. We need eyes—to see an ordinary task in the light of the Father's will.

"You may search the Scriptures through and through, you will find no apology for the years that the son of God spent beside the carpenter's bench. Until Christ was thirty His day's work was the only sphere in which He could show forth the glory of God. There isn't a workman who isn't in the ranks with the greatest workingman of the ages. It was in a carpenter shop that the soul of Jesus met the soul of God. The perfect life was that of a workingman. One of the signs that a man has got religion is this: His work will be done in such a way that it will make people think of the work that came out of the carpenter shop in Nazareth."

PICTURE OF IDEAL MAN IS PAINTED

Dr. E. E. Helms, pastor of the First Methodist Church, preached yesterday on "The Kind of Man I Believe in." He said, in part:

"I believe in the man who recognises he was made in the image of God and who lives up to that image—the man who recognizes the divinity that's within him and who makes no room within for the low, the mean, the bestial, the foul. I believe in the man who is fit to live and fit to live with, who is good and good for something, not good for nothing, self respecting and respect compelling. Character is the currency that passes at par everywhere. Alexander Hamilton said, 'I will risk my life for my country, but not my character.' A moral bankrupt is a bankrupt—indeed. The worst failure is the failure to do right. Money is not manhood. Dollars are no substitute for deeds. Wealth is not necessarily worth. God made man upright, perpendicular, straight, and meana him to remain so."

BIBLE IS DESCRIBED AS WONDER BOOK

Rev. R. A. Torrey preached at the Church of the Open Door yesterday on "The Wonder Book of the Ages." He spoke in part, as follows:

"I have been reading the Bible every day for nearly fifty-four years, and the more I read it, the more profoundly am I impressed with the wonders of the book. It is absolutely peerless, it stands alone among all books of the world; it towers above all the other mountains in the Himalayas of literature. The Bible is different from all other books in its literary excellence. There is not to be found outside of the Bible in all the literature of all nations and all ages, anything that even approaches the Bible statements of truth in exquisite beauty, form, simplicity, resistless force and sublimity of expression. It is also different from other books in the inexhaustible wealth of the truth therein contained. The Bible, as a certain fact, proved by eighteen centuries of uniform experience, is unfathomable and inexhaustible, and this can certainly be said of no other book."

When Census Taking Began

The Romans looked upon it as a regular institution. But it is now found that Babylonia took a census before 3800 B. C., which was perfected, and returns made by districts, in 2300 B. C. Fragments of the returns during the second dynasty of Ur are on tablets in the British Museum.

This Splendid Volume Is Unique in Many Ways

"It is the most complete book on social usage that ever grew between two covers. It is not a cyclopedia, however. It doesn't give lists of don'ts and pages of hows. It is a readable, interesting book on a subject which becomes dull and 'precious' only when it is disassociated from life."—Chicago Sunday Tribune.

It is a Real Contribution

"For the very reason that it gives facts and views to the great 'common herd,' unlike former tomes of etiquette which have revolved too near-exclusively about customs of other lands or forbidding social circles, without the ken of the average man or woman. . . . The book is invaluable to the average thinking man or woman who wishes to live today's life in as polished and near-conventional a manner as possible."—Plain Dealer, Cleveland, Ohio.

SKY BLUE MONDAY

Letters

Sky-Blue Monday
November 27, 1922

Good Morning, Mr. Tatum:—

Thanksgiving Day—Thursday—

There's a lot—such a lot to be thankful for—that it seems almost impossible to do the subject justice.

But, first of all—

Thanks to you—

Somehow these Sky-Blue Monday letters have brought us more closely together.

The thought that sentiment and business don't mix is a wrong one.

Friendship is the true foundation of business after all.

And service—true service—is the foundation of Friendship.

So we are thankful for friends and friendship; for health, ability and power to serve; thankful for this glorious place we call home; and thankful for the nation that protects this home.

May the joys of a happy Thanksgiving be yours—and for yours.

Sincerely,

Bunt Crabill

"Of course, I know I should paint exterior surfaces to protect against the ravages of time, and the elements—rain, wind, sleet, sun and frost—

"Yes, I'm sold on the idea of 'Save the surface and you save all.'

"What I'm interested in is absolute assurance that the paint put on my property actually PROTECTS.

"When you say '100% Pure' Paint I want to be sure of it.

"When you say this paint contains high-grade white lead, linseed oil and fast color pigments —I want to believe you.

"Since I've been thinking about Exterior Painting I've inquired 'round as to this and that paint—and there seems to be an astonishing number of my friends ready to recommend Mathews Paints. They tell me that the Mathews people have been successfully making paint suited to California climate conditions for nearly 40 years. Let me give you a tip, Mr. Painter-Contractor and Dealer—I put a great deal of stock in my friends' opinions—so, when you sell me paint bearing the name Mathews, I'll be sure it's O. K."

People and Their Troubles

Listen, World!

WRITTEN AND ILLUSTRATED BY Elsie Robinson

There's a phrase which I detest. It has cast its awful spell over me for many a moon, but at last I have found strength to rebel and this spot will mark the murder. This phrase is

"YEARS OF DISCRETION"

It is a highly esteemed phrase. It moves in the very best sets of human phraseology. I doubt if a band has ever before been raised to do it harm—but my hand is, both of 'em. I hereby declare that that phrase is the bunk. It has the dignified, reliable appearance of an overstuffed davenport, but in reality it's antiquated rubbish and should be cast into the attic along with the busted "whatnot," the knitted antimacassar, the red-flannel underwear and the framed funeral wreath from Uncle Eben's coffin.

Of all the miserable goals to hold up before human endeavor, discretion is the puniest. Why should man, the crowning achievement of evolution, the master of the universe, the one best bet in the biological program, consider that he has reached his perfect flower when he has at last become "discreet." When you come right down to an intimate study of discretion.

The discretest animal on earth is a rabbit, but who wants to be a rabbit?

No, I'm not joking. I'm in earnest. This is a religious war and I'm its Mahatma. I truly believe that this making an ideal of discretion has worked incalculable harm. It sanctifies cowardice, dignifies stupidity, sets a premium on laziness and selfishness. Since we are naturally prone to be cowardly, stupid, lazy and selfish, we naturally love-to-death a slogan which makes virtues of these inclinations. But it's a bad slogan.

There never yet was a great man who was discreet. The leaders and prophets, the adventurers, reformers, discoverers didn't "play safe." They played anything but safe and they defied all society by doing so. Generally society got even with them by crucifying them or sending them to the poor house. Which is the main reason why discretion is socially popular.

THE DISCREETEST ANIMAL ON EARTH IS A RABBIT, BUT—

Nevertheless, if we would be worthy the name of men we should aim to arrive, not at years of discretion, but at years of inspired recklessness, heroic effort, untrammeled daring, unselfish experiment. We should teach our children that the test of a man lies not in how he saves himself, but in how he spends himself.

Question: Do the Chinese eat dogs? E. H.

Answer: The chowchow, a domestic dog, is often eaten by the Chinese.

Q.: Have troops ever been called out in labor troubles in Maryland? R. L.

A.: In the railroad strike in 1877 in Maryland there was such rioting that the National Guard was called out and later the assistance of Federal soldiers was requested. Again in 1894 the National Guard was called out to preserve order in consequence of a miners' strike in Allegany county.

Q.: Do bricks absorb water? E. S. P.

A.: Bricks should not absorb more than one-twentieth to one-tenth of their weight of water, but soft bricks may absorb as much as a quarter of their weight.

Q.: When was the first calico made? H. O. P.

A.: There is evidence that calico, or material similar to it, was known to the ancients. The printing of calico is described as an Egyptian art by Pliny in the first century. It was introduced into England in 1676. The manufacture of calico is said to have originated in the town of Calicut, India.

Q.: How much maple sugar will a single tree produce? S. W. M.

A.: A yield of three pounds of maple sugar per tree annually is considered very profitable, but six pounds or more may be obtained from specimens whose sap is either especially abundant or unusually rich in sugar.

Q.: When did the United States Supreme Court first hold an act of Congress unconstitutional? H. O. P.

A.: The decision in the case of Marbury vs. Madison, handed down in 1803, is the earliest instance of the declaration by the Supreme Court that a Congressional statute is null and void by reason of its repugnance to the Constitution of the United States.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

DEFENDS THE CENSOR

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21.—[To the Editor of The Times]: In your Sunday issue of November 12 you state, under the heading "The People's Voice," as follows: A proposition to create a censorship of moving pictures was defeated by a substantial majority of the electorate of the sovereign State of Massachusetts. It isn't the people who would hamper or censor the films, it is the prima, the prudes and the "prods" (whoever they may be.) Interesting, of course, that this should be an example for the rest of the country to follow.

We also note that the same "sovereign State of Massachusetts" voted "wet" at the recent election. Do you claim that this action should be an example for the rest of the country to follow, and that those who voted against the "wet" measures were "prima, prudes and prods?"

Having lived in Boston for many years I know something of conditions in that "sovereign state."

Massachusetts is an industrial state, and the immense cotton mills at Lowell and Lawrence—the large shoe factories at Lynn, Haverhill, Brockton and other localities, employ many thousands of people, (many of them foreigners) who would not be considered the better element in a community, and the same people who would vote against restraint of the liquor business, of course would vote against any restraint of the "movies," as they want "personal liberty," both in what they drink and in seeing the rotten pictures which their depraved taste calls for. The reason why Massachusetts has many good laws, regardless of this element, is that each town sends a Representative to the State Legislature, which gives the State, outside the cities, several times the number of votes which they would have if only one representative was sent from a district comprising several towns, which system prevails in New York State. My native county, comprising some twenty-five or thirty towns, only sends on Representative to Albany Legislature. Which system frequently results, as it did this year in Tammany scooping everything in sight, except the local offices.

I cannot understand how any respectable person can object to censorship of the movies unless they are interested in exploiting some questionable films, and if they are, that is hardly a line of endeavor for a respectable person to be engaged in.

The government has a censorship law regarding matter sent through the mails, and while, no doubt, the people who are engaged in promoting fake schemes, cuss the government for interfering with their "business," we do not hear any loud protests from the newspapers or the people in general.

We also note that the officers of the University at Berkeley are censoring some performances ther at the present time, which they do not consider uplifting to the student. Are they "prima," "prudes" and "preds" also?

H. S. BURDICK.

Should Preach Tolerance

SOUTH PASADENA, Nov. 22.—[To the Editor of The Times:] It is not my custom to write letters to newspapers, nor do I suppose there is any particular efficacy in such letters. But I have been so appalled—so amazed at your reporters' account of the Philharmonic jubilee over the Wright law that I almost question its accuracy. That any body of men—to say nothing of preachers who insist they are "moral leaders of the community"—should appear before a civilized audience and either make or applaud the kind of speech credited for example to Dr. Francis—"we will have a general campaign of law enforcement of the Wright Act that will make the wets so dry that we'll have to prime 'em so they can spit"—seems to me incredible. Vulgarity—personal vituperation—invective are not now, and never have been argument; they are certainly not what one expects to hear from either men or women who take the very high ground of "moral leaders;" nor do I think that as moral leaders on these terms they will go very far. "Leaders," either worldly or moral, must needs be men of somewhat larger vision and different caliber.

I do not know Mr. Woolwine, but I have been a juror in several criminal cases which his office tried, with conspicuous ability and acumen. If I had not even this knowledge of him, I should still think that such concerted enmity, carried to such lengths by men who officially at least should preach tolerance, kindness and an open mind was not only an anomaly, but a reproach, as well to the better element—and I say this deliberately—in Los Angeles.

Lights Not Speed

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The Los Angeles police courts are "opening a campaign" on speeders. Opening campaigns is one of the best things they do—when not engaged in that fascinating outdoor sport, they are generally "launching a drive." It would be amusing if it were not so supremely irritating to anyone who has occasion to tangle with the traffic laws of this benighted region.

If they must "open campaigns" why not open one worth while? Why not, for example, do something, instead of merely peddling hot air, about the dimmer ordinance. Glaring lights are a more prolific source of accident by far than speeding. I am quite aware that we have had "campaigns" on this, too, but did they ever accomplish anything? I refer you to anyone who has occasion to drive at night, for the answer to that question. Nine machines out of ten continue to blind you with their lights. Do our authorities do anything about it? They do not. They are too amazingly busy trying to catch some unfortunate motorist exceeding their ridiculous speed limits by a half mile per hour.

I have never been arrested for speeding, so this isn't written to vent any spite. I obey the speed laws as laid down. But I say this: A speed of thirty, or even forty or more miles per hour, on an open boulevard, and with a capable driver at the wheel, is vastly safer than ten miles per hour with one of the numerous imbeciles to be found hereabouts as pilot of the juggernaut.

And that brings me to the point I wish to emphasize: Why in the name of all that is sane can't we weed out these incapable drivers by rigid tests before any license is issued? At present, anyone who is able to walk and old enough to talk can have a license, simply by asking for it. Then he goes out to clutter up traffic and add to the accident toll.

Knows the Near East

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 22 [To the Editor of The Times]: I wish to congratulate you on the splendid editorial appearing in The Times, under the caption, "America Will Not Flinch."

The writer has only recently returned from the Near East, where he was connected with Robert College, Constantinople, for a good many years. He thinks he knows something of the situation there, for he has been studying the Near East problem for a considerable period at close range. You are undoubtedly right in your point of view regarding the points at issue, and also correct in the solution which you suggest. However, America must cease being simply an observer of events and become an active participant with the European Powers, and especially with England, in solving the difficulties of the Near East, and also those of Europe. This is the important point; and if we are not willing to exert force if necessary, side by side with our former Allies, to compel the Turk to behave himself, nothing will be accomplished. The Turk knows nothing but force, and he has not the power within himself or perserving in any reforms which might be suggested to him, even though he should express a willingness to carry them out.

The writer believes that the spirit of Pan-Islam is really very dangerous and should Turkey become an independent power with her seat at Constantinople she would undoubtedly become the head of a Federation of Moslem states, situated between India and the Caspian and Black and Mediterranean Seas, which sooner or later would threaten Europe, not only religiously, but politically as well. Let us hope that Russia will evolve a more sane and constitutional form of government, and be ready, as she has been in the past, to stand as a bulwark against the Mohammedanism of Western Asia.

SAMUEL ANDERSON.

Now's the Time

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I cannot "write for the paper" but if I could I would write such a "Letter to The Times" as would burn Mayor Cryer's "temporary City Hall" idea to cinders.

What grafting nonsense to raze the present shambles and spend $1,200,000 for a new structure on the spot!

Why not get the market value out of the present City Hall, as is—add the cash to the $1,200,000 the Mayor proposes to appropriate from the suffering city's side pocket and begin at once the permanent, beautiful and monumental City Hall this miracle city is determined to have?

We can do with $2,000,000 now, today, what will surely cost $10,000,000 ten years hence.

Select, appraise, condemn and buy the location and begin the work.

Do it now!

New glands are needed and as an innocent but interested bystander, I suggest painless but effective operations for three members of the smoldering city planners, four members of the somnolent Council and the whole of our worthy Mayor.

Nobody can get ahead of The Times but the Civic Center can get "behind The Times"—north to Sunset, east to Main, and a composite of the Griffin, Dodge, Farwell and other plans should be adopted, not in the vague hence but in the concrete now. Say it with units! Shoot now when the neglected and dilapidated north end can be bought up—all that is needed—for a simple song as compared with the grand opera prices which will prevail even two, three or five years from now.

GRIDDERS CLASH IN TWO TILTS

Monrovia and Gardena to Tangle; Fullerton Hooks Up With Santa Ana

With the battle for the Southern California football championship narrowing down to a select few elevens, much interest is being evinced in two prep games scheduled for tomorrow. In the first, Gardena and Monrovia, champs of the Bay and Central Leagues, respectively, hook up at Patterson Field; Occidental College, in an honest-to-goodness play-off battle, while the second, between Fullerton and Santa Ana on the former's gridiron, is merely a grudge battle to decide the champion of the Orange County League.

The Gardena-Monrovia tilt should be a whirlwind battle, as both teams have shown well in their league games. At present the Monrovia Wildcats appear to be in a weakened condition, due to injuries. Last week the Wildcats lost their first game of the year to Covina. Gardena, coached by Tiny Leonard, has a strong line and a dangerous backfield. Ducazu, Berry Picker quarter, is one of the best triple-threat men in the South and he is to be feared any time he gets the pigskin.

Everybody is all "het" up down in Orange county over the coming Fullerton-Santa Ana title tilt. The teams previously met in a scoreless tie and grid fans are looking for a hectic struggle. Santa Ana has a big weight advantage, but the "Fullers" figure to make up for this in plain, unadulterated fight. If everything comes off according to Hoyle, tomorrow's game should be a titantic affair.

California and Oregon Tie for Lead on Coast

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 26.—With but two games remaining on the Pacific Coast Conference football schedule, California, champion for two years, and Oregon remain tied at the top of the percentage column each with 1000.

California has won four games and lost none while the Eugene team has three victories and no defeats on its record sheet. The Oregonians, however, play Washington at Seattle Thanksgiving Day in one of the remaining games and a husky win would give California the championship outright for the third year in succession. The other remaining game, is to be between Southern California and Washington State at Pasadena Thanksgiving Day.

The defeat of Washington State by the Oregon Aggies yesterday was the first conference win for O.A.C. and the fourth game dropped by the Staters. California closed its season yesterday by defeating its ancient foemen from Stanford, 28 to 0, in a hard-fought game. Eight Bear veterans played their last college game yesterday.

The conference standing follows:

	Won.	Lost.
California	4	0
Oregon	4	0
Washington	3	1
Southern California	2	1
Stanford	1	3
Oregon Aggies	1	4
Washington State	0	4

COACH ANDY KERR PLEASED WITH GAME SHOWING OF CARDS

BY PAUL LOWRY
"Times" Staff Correspondent
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

The upper picture shows Cuddeback of Stanford hitting the line and tackled by Berkey. In the second picture Archie Nisbet at extreme left kicking goal after first touchdown. Doughty of Stanford (No. 11) running back the opening kickoff is shown in third picture strip. The bottom picture shows Mr. Doughty nailed by Messrs. Erb and Beam on a buck.

PALO ALTO, Nov. 26.—In all the after-thoughts about the big game between California and Stanford the sensational running and forward passing of Don Nichols and the crafty generalship of Capt. Charley Erb for the Bears stand out most conspicuously. You can not lose sight of the work of these two athletes in any mind picture.

Nichols figured directly in three of the Blue and Gold team's four touchdowns. He was on the sending end of two forward passes that brought touchdowns, and scored the third himself by a driving smash off tackle that netted eleven yards.

A NEW ROLE

Acting in the role of a line plunger is a new one for Nichols, and the terrific drive he developed in going over the Cardinal goal line in the fourth period astonished many who have associated him only with criss-crosses, re-Coach Elmer Henderson of U.S.C.'s verses and twisting, dodging run-back of punts. Wilcox tried to play safe yesterday, and booted to touch most of the time, but when he did send a punt down the middle of the rectangle Nichols almost without exception returned anywhere from ten to twenty-five yards leaking tacklers like drops of water. His change of pace was uncanny, and about the only way Stanford tacklers were sure of getting him was to run him outside.

But that last-period off-tackle drive of Nichols caught Head eye, and he expressed himself most heartily to the effect that he hoped Nichols would unlearn all about it before next fall rolls around. Henderson, Assistant Coach Willis O. Hunter and Advisory Coach Clifton Herd, who has been doing the scouting for the Trojans this year, sat in the stands and made copious notes about the style of play of both teams. A few of the Trojan football warriors, including Capt. Leo Calland and Chet Dolley, quarterback, also were present to take a peek at the game.

SILVER CUP IS UP FOR AUTO RACE

Winner of Turkey Day Race to Receive the Lewis Trophy

Automobile racing has come to be a business for those who take part in it, just as professional baseball draws into its ranks amateur players who care to make their livelihood on the diamond rather than as professional or business men. The speed pilots, just like their friends of the diamond, however, get a great deal of real enjoyment out of their profession. They make a sport of it, and have their own fun both on and off the track.

Because of this fact and a realization that the winner in a big automobile race usually has nothing of a permanent nature by which to remember his victory, E. G. Lewis, general manager of the Palos Verdes Estates, has offered a handsome sterling silver loving cup, huge in dimensions, which will become the permanent property of the victor in the big 250-mile national championship event at the Los Angeles Speedway next Thursday afternoon.

This handsome trophy will be unique in the fact that it will become the permanent possession of the victor in the race, instead of having to be raced for over and over again as many similar trophies require. Jimmy Murphy, during his spectacular climb to the championship this year, has won many trophies, but the best he has obtained has been the mere honor of having his named engraved on them as the winner for a certain race, the trophy going back to the donor for future competition.

Mr. Lewis has been keenly interested in the automotive industry for many years, in fact since the very beginning of the industry, and has been a regular attendant at automobile races and auto shows. He is widely known for his interest in various branches of clean sport, and will present the Palos Verdes trophy to the winner of the big race next Thursday.

SAVANNAH TO BUILD GRID-BALL GROUNDS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAVANNAH, Nov. 26.—Savannah will construct a modern combined football and baseball field on the ground inclosed by the race track in that city starting work about January 1. It may help secure professional baseball for the city. The improvements will be directed by the tri-State exposition auto races and a big football match will help put Savannah on the sporting map.

EX-GRID CAPTAIN ACTS AS STROKE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BOSTON, Nov. 26.—Keith Kane, former Harvard varsity football captain and for two years a member of the varsity crews, recently stroked the Balliol College coxswainless four-oared crew in its race with Christ College at Oxford, Eng., and is likely to be a member of the Dark Blue varsity eight to race Cambridge on the Thames next spring.

DEMPSEY ASKS JESS FOR LIFT

"Vodevil" Business Tough With Champion

Willard Not Willing to do Turn on Stage

Former Ring King is After a Return Match

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO Nov. 26.—Jack Dempsey announced here today that he had accepted the offer of A. H. Woods, theatrical producer, for a mixed bout with Ed "Strangler" Lewis, the wrestler, and for fights with two boxers yet to be named.

The terms for the three matches are understood to approximate one million dollars.

The time and place for the matches have not yet been fixed.

"Business must be tough with Dempsey and Kearns in vaudeville, so they are calling on Willard to give them a lift," was the way Gene Doyle answered Jack Kearns's statement that he would oblige Willard when Dempsey appears here in December.

"When Willard boxes Dempsey he will be battling for the championship and not to help out a champion who hasn't defended his title in over sixteen months. If things are breaking tough for Dempsey on the stage then let him get busy and sign up to meet Willard in a regular battle, one where Dempsey can draw down around $300,000 for his end."

"I'll admit it is tough when a man like Dempsey is slaving in vaudeville for a sum which nets him around $1000 a week. This vaudeville work is nothing soft."

"Kearns admits that Willard refused an offer of $60,000 to meet Dempsey last summer. Willard refused this offer because Kearns was trying to give him the rush act into a match. Willard couldn't get into condition in ten weeks, so he did the right and honorable thing by the promoter and public and declined the offer.

"By Jack Kearns's own statements he proves that Willard is not looking for the loser's end of a fat purse as Jess has been accused of doing.

"If Jack Dempsey is looking for an opponent, as Kearns claims, then we will expect him to sign articles when he gets here in December. Willard is ready providing they give him a reasonable amount of time in which to prepare for the bout.

"Sorry we can't help Dempsey and Kearns pack the house when they get here, but they will have to depend on their own drawing powers and not the name of Jess Willard to get them the money.

"When Dempsey and Kearns arrive in Los Angeles they will be formally presented with a challenge, asked to sign articles and be prepared to defend their title," concluded Gene Doyle, Willard's representative.

GUARDSMEN WILL PROMOTE SPORTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 — New Jersey national guardsmen will promote indoor sports in the armories this winter. Basketball will be played and an effort made to have the wineurs clash with other state champions.

Jimmy Sacco to Step Some With Ray Long

Ray Long, the 140-pound matman from Oklahoma, whose debut against Teddy O'Hara at Vernon last week was so impressive, will appear in tomorrow night's main event at Doyle's arena against Jimmy Sacco of Boston.

The Hub City battler has been a frequent headliner at Hollywood for several months and in all of his engagements has emerged victorious. Sacco is inclined to have things pretty much his own way and he has, therefore, kept back most of the ring tricks he possesses in the flistic art. Tomorrow night, however, he meets a boxer of the type that will make him step. On paper this match appears to be an ideal one which Matchmaker Wad Wadhams has arranged and there should be fur flying from gong to gong.

Frankie Novey, the 116-pound Sacramento soldier lad, who has earned for himself a considerable "rep," will try conclusions with Dandy Dick Griffin, the Fort Worth banty, in the semi-wind-up.

Other bouts will bring together the following: Tom Kelly vs. Louis Steigmeyer, 155 pounds; Alex McDonald vs. Paddy Coggins, 125 pounds; Jack Moore vs. Ray Johnson, 150 pounds; Art Springer vs. Kid Riley, 116 pounds, and Johnny McGraw vs. Eddie Jones, 135 pounds.

QUEENS COP SCRAP

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

TORONTO, Nov. 26.—Queens University defeated the Toronto Argonauts here this afternoon in a game of the semifinal round of play for the Canadian football championship by a score of 13 to 11.

BUILD NIFTY POWERBOAT

Speed, comfort, beauty, class—those are the prime qualities being embodied in a powerboat under construction at the Lasky Studio for Cecil B. De Mille. It will be a craft without a peer of its size, and is to be completed in time to participate in the great Gar Wood races here the first of the year. Ray Prewitt is the builder.

The Miss Cecilia, for that is the name of the new creation, is a twenty-three footer, mahogany throughout, and will be luxuriously fitted and used not only as a racer but as a fast tender for Mr. De Mille's palatial yacht Seaward, on which he plans an extended southern cruise the coming year. She is a multiple-step boat of most attractive lines.

This small speedster will be driven by a six-cylinder B.M.W. motor of 250 to 300 horse-power and those few who have seen her predict that she will give the famous Gar Wood world champions and the local record holders a real battle in the big events scheduled at Los Angeles Harbor for the holiday season. As in everything he undertakes, Mr. De Mille is sparing neither pains nor expense to make the Miss Cecilia a top-notcher in all respects.

Interest in the Gar Wood races, in which that speed master will have Miss America and another of his hydroplanes about which little information is given out, is widespread and the whole country will be watching for the results. Fred W. Vogler, the noted Oregon sportsman, whose "Vogler Boys" have taken part in some of the best events here, has accepted Frank A. Garbutt's invitation to come down for the big contests. He writes that he will certainly get here when Gar Wood comes to town with Miss America.

Grappling Tilt Will Feature Newsies' Card

Constantine Romanoff, one of the best heavyweight grapplers on the Pacific Slope, will tangle with Wallace Duguid in the main event of the newsboys' smoker to be staged at 205 Court street next Wednesday evening. Romanoff will weigh in the neighborhood of 205 pounds while Duguid is about 20 pounds heavier. Both are hard at training for the mat contest.

In the main boxing contest, Jap Romero, sturdy lightweight, will square off with Tommy Nelson. Romero is a willing and aggressive performer who gives the fans plenty of action while Nelson is said to be a worthy opponent.

Joe Cooper and Jack Leslie have been re-matched. These 120-pounders staged a whale of a draw not long ago and the fans have been clamoring for a return joust.

Matchmaker Carlo Curtiss announces that other bouts and a newsboys battle royal will complete a good card.

ATHLETIC SHOW TO FEATURE CARNIVAL

The big carnival which the students of the Central Junior High School are planning for Wednesday will have as its feature a number of athletic numbers of great interest. Boxing, wrestling and jui-jitsu will be the main events in the show.

According to Bob Howard, manager of the show, a number of high-class bouts have been carded for the various classes of sport and the members of the jui-jitsu class will give some very interesting exhibitions of their art.

TRAUTWEIN IN PITCHING DUEL

Bellflower Loses Struggle to Downey Squad

BY JOE BUSH

With Doc Crandall on the mound for them, the Standard-Murphys evened up the series with the Cleary Athletic Club by taking the second game played yesterday at La Habra by a score of 4 to 3. Moose Trautwein was on the mound for the losers, opposing Crandall in a pitching duel. Trautwein had the best of the struggle with the veteran Angel hurler, but errors by his steam-mates cost him the victory. Trautwein allowed four hits and four runs, none of the runs being earned, while the Cleary nine got seven hits for only three runs.

Leathers and Hastings soaked Doc for circuit clouts, but no one was on base when either homer came. Two errors, one that let a single go for a home run, gave the Standard-Murphys the lead. The Dogtown boys made a game attempt to start something in the ninth when the first two men up got on base. However, Doc tightened up and managed to throw one man out at the plate after a bust.

The game was a benefit for Nick Rolletta, Cleary player who broke his leg in a game played between the two teams last Sunday. Ninety-two dollars was raised for the injured player. Score:

SANTA ANA GRABS

The Santa Ana Knights of Columbus ball tossers nosed out the Long Beach Caseys, 4 to 3, after an interesting game played yesterday on the winning squad's home lot. The game was a pitching duel between Messa and Kelly. Each team was guilty of five errors.

California, as far as known here, has never given any very definite reason for not wanting to meet Penn State on New Year's.

Possibly the attitude has not been one exactly of evasion, but there has been a degree of vagueness which is far from satisfactory, particularly, it would seem, to some of the California alumni in this section.

Perhaps the letter written by Graduate Manager Luther A. Nickols to a friend in this city was intended to divulge the real California sentiment, but a careful reading of it leaves the reader with about the same degree of doubt. Rather he appears merely to offer explanations why California doesn't want the game, rather than advancing reasons why it shouldn't play.

Mr. Nichols writes in part as follows: "We do not wish to play any intersectional post-season games so long as there is any danger of commercialism connected with them, nor until such time as a scheme is worked out whereby, when a representative college—not merely a football team—is invited to play the game, that institution will accept without further ado. In other words, we feel that all the big eastern institutions, as well as the western institutions, should be included in a scheme whereby each one would agree to play this game if selected, without any argument or dissent."

Just what is the nature of this threatened commercialism The annual Pasadena football classic created such intense interest that it was necessary to erect a large stadium. It is hoped to pay off the mortgage on this fine structure eventually by means of these games. However, each competing team is to receive something like $30,000, more, probably, than it would derive from any except its largest annual game.

This new stadium is a monument to college football as symbolized in the annual East vs. West contest. This game never has been conducted for personal profit, nor is anything of the kind contemplated. The game is a part of the West's most famed pageant. No higher tribute could be paid to a fine college sport. It is here that football is crowned, wreathed and laureled. And speaking of commercialism, it wasn't Washington and Jefferson, nor the Tournament of Roses who shot up the prices last year. Unless my memory is at fault, California insisted on handling all the arrangements for that game. This isn't a groan. It's merely a laugh at such insinuations.

Mr. Nichols says California doesn't wish to play "until such time as a scheme is worked out whereby when a representative college—not merely a football team—is invited to play, that institution will accept without further ado."

Who should feel insulted now—Brown, Pennsylvania, Harvard, Ohio or Washington and Jefferson? Heretofore all of these have been regarded as fairly representative. Which, we might ask, was "merely a football team?" Surely not Washington and Jefferson. We will admit that the Presidents were a football team, but there was nothing "mere" about them.

As to colleges being invited who "will accept without further ado," who, we would politely ask Mr. Nichols, has been making all the ado and raising so much h—l the past two years?

Some of the most ardent supporters of the U.S.C. football team are not particularly keen for the Trojans landing the New Year's game. The players would, of course, be less than human if they didn't crave a clash with the easterners.

But the older and less impetuous, at least some of them, take this slant at the situation: Should the Trojans defeat Penn State their critics won't give them credit for having accomplished much; should they be defeated by Penn State, the result would be a royal razzing.

California, of course, is the logical team to again represent the West. For some reason never adequately explained, the Bears have been backward. If they remain obdurate, the Trojans are the team most entitled to it. Should they not be accorded the honor, Oregon or Washington doubtless would give the West good representation. It is hinted that one of these elevens will be picked regardless, not on the basis of superiority, but because they can poll the necessary votes. That is politics, not sports.

However, one cannot but admire the spirit behind this eagerness of the Northwestern teams. To find a team or two eager for action is almost refreshing. It speaks well for the future of East vs. West. Those Northwestern birds never have been very discriminating or coldly calculating. They regard the East as their particular meat. They don't even ask the name, weight or record of the other feller. They demand less information than a pit bull.

SAWTELLE TAKES FALL

Leaders of Triple-A League are Knocked for Row by Huntington Beach Oilmen

Sawtelle's natives saw their proud team go down into the dust yesterday at the hands of the fast Huntington Beach Standard Oil team in the feature baseball game of the Triple-A League, which was staged at Sawtelle, by the score of 7 to 6. In this way did the great Sawtellians lose their well-earned lead in the league to one of the middle-class aggregations.

Sad indeed was the affair which ended so disastrously for the home squad. The first two innings were scoreless, but in the third the Sawtellians cut loose and raised half a dozen markers while the visitors managed to bring in half as many. A streak of seventh-inning luck and hits did the work for John D's men and they brought in the needed four runs. Score:

TIJUANA IS READY FOR TURF FA

Railroad Offers Special Accommodations; Track in Good Condition

While President James Coffroth of the Tijuana Club and his associates are erecting the last-minute improvements incident to the opening of the annual race meeting at Tijuana, Mex., Thanksgiving day, race fans in Los Angeles and contiguous territory are showing interest in the improved transportation facilities which are offered this winter for the trip to the home of the thoroughbred.

The Santa Fe Railroad will run a big hand in accommodating the race patrons. James R. [illegible], general passenger agent of the road, declares that the [illegible] cial train of the season for Tij[illegible] will be well filled. This [illegible] which will be operated on a [illegible] schedule, will leave Los A[illegible] Thursday morning at 8:30, making the run direct to the [illegible] without change, will arrive at the border in ample time for a bit of sightseeing at the track before the first race at 1:30 p. m. The train will leave on the return trip after the last race, reaching Los Angeles about 10 p.m. the same night. Thus a fine opportunity to attend the opening day will be afforded those who must be back at work Friday morning. A round-trip fare for the round trip has been made.

Those making the Tijuana trip in motor cars will find the improved highway conditions between San Diego and Tijuana, which is now paved all the way, as good a piece of paving as can be found on any part of the California highway system.

RIDLEY TO BE SEEN IN LOCAL RING S[illegible]

Bud Ridley, the [illegible] featherweight boxer who is making his home in Ri[illegible] Park, will soon be seen in [illegible] at the Vernon arena, according to an announcement by "Sid" Hamaha[illegible].

Ridley recently returned from a very successful world tour, but has been out of the ring since an injury to his left shoulder sustained while boxing in Japan. The shoulder is now declared to be well by Dr. Spencer, a local osteopath, and Ridley will be up for a main event to take on as soon as he can get into action. His opponent will probably be Ernie Goosman of San [illegible]

CHANEY TRIUMPHS

CHINESE CHARACTER LIVES IN "SHADOWS"

By Grace Kingsley

Lon Chaney's amazing characterization of a Chinese-good Samaritan, the puritanical scruples of the conscience-ridden preacher, played superbly by Harrison Ford, the tremendously ironical death scene of Yen Sin, when he turns to the white men's God only after making all who have been deriding Him confess their sins, and at the last the final glimpse of the old scow drifting off into the night as Sin's soul passes—these are the things that impress one mightily in "Shadows."

"Shadows" is from Wilbur Daniel Steele's prize story, "Ching, Ching, Chinaman," and is on view at the Kinema. It has strikingly dramatic story values. In fact, it has story values enough without lugging in riotous theatricalism.

For instance, the village folk seem always to be standing around like a comic opera chorus! The hero couldn't come home from a week's journey without the chorus being on hand to greet him, and they stood and watched his shadow on the window curtain as he posed in front of the window to rave over his troubles.

And when the Chinese died, they were all right in at the death. Didn't seem as if they had any affairs of their own at all. Then the preacher's long, wavering walk down the church aisle, when he might easily have gone out at a side door! And then that Chinese did take such an infernally long time to die!

And oh, how we should have liked to see stressed, instead of the melodramatic features, the psychological ones, such as the ironical predicament of the hypocritical soul savers before the simple goodness of the Chinese, the fact that that what was really pursuing the young preacher was only a fear and his cowardice in the face of the world. Perhaps it was the intent to so stress these things, but the melodrama of the false friend who pretended to have discovered that the preacher's young wife's first husband was not dead, and the cheap theatricalism aforesaid, somewhat blurred the impression.

But oh, what a wealth of fine acting is poured out in the course of the story's flow. As we thought we knew Lon Chaney, he amazes us in this playing of the Chinese. It is not only make-up, though that is wonderful, it is not only that every mannerism, every movement, is perfect, but it is in conveying the very soul of the Chinese virtues and characteristics—their loyalty, their fanatical devotion to friends, their sense of the ironic, their keenness, that Chaney is superb.

And how Harrison Ford has advanced since his old pretty hero days! Marguerite de la Motte as his young wife, gives a very fine account of herself, too.

Among the high moments of the drama, indeed, none is finer, more deeply human that that in which the two give themselves passionately to each other, their scruples overcome by a flood of feeling, following their separation on discovery that her first husband still lives.

Priscilla Bonner, a rising and beautiful young actress, has a bit which stands out in clean-cut beauty. She plays a lonely young mother with a babe in her arms in the shipwreck scene. We hope soon to see more of Miss Bonner.

John Sainpolis is finely effective as always as the false friend.

Walter Long villains as heavily as ever, and Frances Raymond and Buddy Messenger are excellent in their roles.

REGINALD DENNY IS HIT IN DAZEY OPUS

He just loved to write about horse races, did Charles T. Dazey, and so, not content with "In Old Kentucky," he wrote also "The Suburban Handicap," which, picturised under the name of "The Kentucky Derby," is on view at the Superba this week.

The historic Superba evidently intends to end its theatrical career in a blaze of glory. In that house, where we have been wont to indulge in a feast of reason and flow of soul, soon we shall be able to indulge in a feast of food and a flow of bowl, for the good old Superba is going to be turned into Tait's Coffee House. But we shan't soon forget "The Kentucky Derby," which is a peach of a melodrama.

Even though horses will soon be kept in the zoo, and horse racing is in about the same category of athletic curiosities as the ancient Greek games, I'll defy anybody to see that horse race without a tingling in his blood and a lump in his throat.

King Baggot did a marvelously cunning bit of directing there. You aren't in the theater any more; you're right along with the hero and that little old jockey. Why, the audience actually cheered at that scene!

There's all the good old hoke in the picture about the villain trying to beat the rightful horse out of winning the race, the son taken for a thief, and all the rest of it. But there is some sea stuff when the hero is shanghaied that couldn't possibly have been put on the stage.

Reginald Denny is a fine figure of a man, and may be a rival later of Wallie Reid's. Lillian Rich is a sweet little heroine, Gertrude Astor is a high-ampere vamp, Lionel Belmore looks exactly like a nice old Kentucky Colonel, and all the rest of the parts are nicely done.

There is a mighty cute little Century Comedy, with Brownie, the dog, as a star, and some very clever kids.

HAPPY IN VIEWPOINT

KYNE STORY AMUSES AT THE CALIFORNIA

By Edwin Schallert

Stork finishes appear to be the rage in pictures nowadays. At least, I seem to remember having seen a number of them lately. The baby buggy commences to hover around about the fourth reel, and by the fifth, sure enough we see it marching down the street. Every really domestic photoplay simply can't get along without one of those jumps to "two years from then," and it must cost the picture companies a tremendous lot of money these days to keep their layettes up to the minute.

"Brothers Under the Skin" is one of those happy affairs that sets out to point the moral that three are not a crowd. It ambles through a lot of humanness and comedy while so doing, but it finally ends up by showing that where there are only two in a household there is just bound to be trouble.

The picture, which is based on a story by Peter B. Kyne, is brightening the shadows this week at the California Theater. The cast is qualified throughout, and E. Mason Hopper, with scenario aid, has managed a very intriguing direction. The final purpose is shrouded behind the mask of an attack on feminine extravagance that will make every man feel especially good, and probably cause every woman to smile behind her program.

"Brothers Under the Skin" accumulates its title from the fact that it tells the stories of two different married couples. One thereof is rich, t'other poor. They both get along just middling and sometimes worse.

When you first start viewing the film you think that it is going to be an awful mess, because you have to keep dodging back and forth from the east side to the west side to keep track of the dual plots. By and by though the less affluent husband is hit by an automobile, is given a flask and is required to deliver a message at the house of the rich man. Lots of coincidence. But nobody will cry over this. For the complications are funny, and the lamp is in the window for a happy ending long before you arrive there.

Claire Windsor, Pat O'Malley, Helene Chadwick, Norman Kerry and Mae Busch are in the cast. I would hate to say who comes out first, because they all seem to fight hard for scenes. Role and acting combined, I'll say that O'Malley wins. He has a sympathetic character and a humorous knack, and in this film the laughs are what count.

Still, Miss Windsor does a lot of high-power emotionalizing that entitles her to lines of credit. The best work by her, I think to date. Mae Busch is splendid as the impromptu vamp. Very splendid. And Helene Chadwick rages and raves most sincerely and effectively. Mr. Kerry has the most conventional role, playing it quite evenly.

Those youngster comedies just can keep from sprouting a lot of wise boys and girls, who manage always to fool the grown-ups. I suppose that if you can believe it, it's so, for as for me I can't quite take "For Rent—Haunted" that much to heart.

The orchestra concert was blary with brass, except for the violin duet by Elsa Grosser and Bernice Freeman. Particularly deficient in smoothness and blending was the finale to the Fourth Symphony by Tschaikowsky. Conductor Carli Elinor can do better than this.

Leah Baird's Plans

Now that the secret about her next Leah Baird production is out, and the world knows she is to make "The Destroying Angel," Leah Baird doesn't care who knows that she is to make it at the Ince studios, and that W. S. Van Dyke will direct.

John Bowers will play opposite Miss Baird, Ford Sterling is appropriately cast as a cabaret owner, and Noah Beery will do the ground

Clara Stages Comeback in Adaptation

Re-enter Clara Kimball Young in "Enter Madame."

And enter lots of people into Loew's State Theater.

"Enter Madame" serves to bring Clara back to us after quite an absence, but it isn't exactly the same Clara. She has changed her style somewhat here; it may be merely because the story demands something lighter and more vivacious, or it may be permanent; at any rate it is pleasing and seems to be for the best.

"Madame" is a prima donna of international fame and corresponding temperament. Friend hubby loves his fireside better than her pet poodle, so he doesn't race about the world with her. It natural then, that a divorce looms.

That's when "Madame" does her entering.

You should like "Madame," no matter what your tastes. There is a touch of humor here, a little pathos there, a display of emotion, and at times downright comedy! Even folks who look on motion pictures as nothing but a fashion show will find "Madame's" gowns a mine of pleasure.

In the supporting cast are to be found a number of popular players, headed by Elliott Dexter, Lionel Belmore, Louise Dresser and others.

There isn't much to be said about "Mud and Sand" in which Stan Laurel appears as "Rhubarb Vaselino" after mentioning the fact that it is a faithful burlesque of the original and that some of the subtitles are funny. Rodolph has no more reason to be jealous of "Rhubarb" than Blasco Ibanez has to be jealous of the fellow who did the "burlesquing."

Symphony Bill Includes Two Laugh Features

It is to laugh, this new show at the Symphony.

It wasn't put on for any other purpose than to provide entertainment and giggles and shouts of joy. And it does it.

First there is Buster Keaton in "My Wife's Relations." Buster seems to be still suffering from a relapse, but his line is so far ahead of most other comedians that he is still way up toward the top of the list as a fun-maker.

"My Wife's Relations" doesn't introduce any startling new gags, but the ones used are well disguised, and nearly every one of them contains a wallop that will tickle a laugh or a smile out of anyone.

Number two is "Sure Fire Flint," Johnny Hines's newest offering. There is one thing that must be said about "Sure Fire Flint" sooner or later, so here it it: it's a sure-fire hit.

Now to get down to facts. "Sure Fire Flint" is not a "gag" comedy, and it is not a "situation" comedy. Rther, it is a combination of the two, or better, an evolution. Mebbe one had better say revolution and be done with it.

LITERARY PLAY NOW FLOURISHES

The Literary Theater is here.

It gave its first performance Saturday night at the Ebell Club, and will repeat the program at the same place this evening.

The initial offering was made up of two comedies by Moliere, "Mescarille" and "The Forced Marriage," and a play of Maeterlinck's, "The Death of Tintagiles."

All were well done, although the Maeterlinck play seemed a little out of place on the program.

The players, under the direction of Frayne Williams, do excellent work for an organization of this kind.

RIVER PACT DISCUSSED

two and one half millions of acres irrigated by its waters, there are still five millions of acres which may be brought into cultivation. There can be developed from the River four million horse power. Thus an addition can be made to the assets of America equal to the whole state of Maryland and an added population in the Southland of 3,000,000 people.

"Everyone in the Southwest is familiar with the character of the river—its tremendous floods from the melting snows, the great jeopardy to life and property in the southern basins.

"And indeed we have had some fifteen years ago a tremendous example of the power of this river when at its high flood, when it broke through into the Salton Sea and was only returned to its channel after two years of labor and after the expenditure of $15,000,000.

"Since that time a large part of the borderland of the Salton Sea has come under irrigation. There is now a population of 40,000 people with $75,000,000 in value of property. If the Colorado River should again break into this basin and be uncontrollable we shall see the destruction not only of these homes, the tremendous loss of human life and of property, but with the flooding of this sea that great valley will be destroyed forever.

LIES BELOW SEA LEVEL

"The sea itself lies below sea level. There is no drainage from it but by evaporation. If the Colorado River ever again scours a way into this valley through the channel that was cut in the former destruction flood there will be little hope of its recovery, and we will have lost one of the greatest assets of the West.

"The first problem in the development of the river was to free it from litigation, to put a stop to the jealousies between different states for its use, and to establish the principles which shall govern its use for all time. The river falls naturally into two divisions, the upper states of Wyoming, Utah, Colorado and New Mexico, separated by nearly a thousand miles of barren canyon from the lower states of California, Arizona and Nevada. The character of agriculture and of industry in the two basins are of widely different order.

JEALOUSY DEVELOPS

"There has grown during the last ten years a great jealousy between these two great divisions of the river out of the fear that one basin might secure an advantage over the other in the use of the waters and by so securing a priority of use would have secured a title which would have ultimately limited and curtailed the development of the other basin. This jealousy has stopped the development of the river. We are assailed on both sides with interminable litigation.

"It is a certainty unless some other arrangement could be made there would be a further twenty-five years of litigation as to the respective rights of the different States. One tributary alone flowing from Colorado into Wyoming has required eleven years to secure a determination from the Supreme Court as to the rights of two States only.

"The upper States have been jealous that the use of the water in the lower States would establish rights which would prevent their development at home. The lower States have been jealous that the upper States should consume the water and thus deprive the development below.

"In this situation the good common sense of all of the people in the West led them to undertake an operation under the Constitution of the United States that has been almost unused for 140 years and that is the right of States to make treaties or compacts which, subject to the approval of Congress, rank with the supreme law of the land. The Colorado River Commission was given these powers and for nearly a year has studied the economic conditions, the water and the technical problems of tremendous complexity surrounding the basin.

COMPACT SIGNED

"A compact was finally signed three days ago in Santa Fe, after the commission had eighteen public sessions in which every atom of information had been sought that would be of use in the solution of the problem. A method arrived at by the commission solves the matter, as all great things must be solved, with simple terms and by a simple device; and it forms the first step in the development of this priceless national possession.

"The commission found from its studies that the total water available in the Colorado River Basin amounted to 22,000,000 acre feet. It is difficult to visualize what this quantity of water may mean: but it is sufficient to cover the entire State of Maryland four feet deep each year. This water, therefore, constituted the resources of the commission for division between the States. The exhaustive survey and study of the basin indicated that about 2,500,000 acre feet were being used in the upper basin and 3,000,000 acre feet were being used in the lower basin for irrigation purposes at the present time.

ONLY PARTLY USED

"In other words, less than one-quarter of the entire water resources of the great river are now being employed. The commission also found that the further development of the river was stopped because of the lack of storage. The water of the Colorado River varies in flow, not only between different seasons of the year but it varies from year to year.

"At the present moment the lands in the lower basin in the Imperial Valley in the neighborhood of Yuma are consuming the entire low-water flow of the river, and there can be no expansion in the irrigable area unless there shall be storage. It is a fortunate thing and a part, indeed, of this great national asset that the Colorado River Canyon itself provides sites for the greatest storage of water that has ever been known in history.

"The commission not only studied the present use of the water, but it studied the probable use, the feasible projects which might be brought to completion over a period of the next forty years, and as the result of these studies it decided that it was possible that within forty years some 6,000,000 acre feet of water might be employed in the upper basin and some 7,500,000 acre feet in the lower basin.

DRAINAGE DIVIDED

"This again would comprise but little more than one-half of the total resources of the river; but in order that there should be no mistake the commission decided to divide the river drainage into two parts and to assign to the upper basin 7,500,000 acre feet of water and to the lower basin 8,500,000 acre feet of water in perpetuity of use to more than cover the present needs and all of the needs during the next forty years, and thus to reserve a further 6,000,000 acre feet of future division, and it provides in the compact that a new commission shall be summoned at the end of forty years to divide this unallocated water to those acres which can demonstrate the greatest need.

"It was decided to establish another great principle on this river drainage, a principle that has never yet been employed in American water control, a principle that public welfare and public necessity demand be established and put into play; that is, that agriculture should take precedence over power and industrial development, for it was the thought of the commission that what America needs is the maximum number of homes out under the blue sky rather than a limitation of them in favor of hydroelectric development.

"This does not prevent enormous development of power on the river for the river must flow through the great canyon in its course from one division to the other, and nothing need prevent its turning turbine wheels in that passage; but if the time should ever come when the farmer needs the water, it is decreed that enough of the turbines shall cease to enable him to maintain his industry and his home. Furthermore it is so provided that he can obtain this right without being compelled to give compensation therefor.

APPROVAL NEXT NEED

"This compact has been executed by the representatives of the seven States and by myself representing the Federal government, but it awaits the approval of the legislatures of each of the States and of Congress; and until it can be approved there can be no step taken for the development of the Colorado River, and no move can be made for the protection of the valleys of California and Arizona.

"We may as well face the blunt, hard truth that the upper States in the basin, out of alarm for their future, will not allow a single stone to be laid or a single trowel of cement to be set until the division of this water has been determined upon. If this compact is to fail, there can be but one other alternative. That alternative is to go to the United States Supreme Court, which is the final place of appeal for interstate trouble. But the United States Supreme Court, in dealing with this problem, will require not a legalistic background, but an engineering background.

"The problem should be approached from the point of view of common sense. Common sense can only be employed by the session of parties interested around a table and a conclusion that shall be fair to each and every one of them. Such a conclusion has now been arrived at. It would be the greatest disaster that has ever happened to the Southwest if this effort should fail. The compact is simple in its basis and in its method.

"Here are two great agricultural areas separated by a thousand miles of barren canyon, varying in their problems and in their people. Nothing is more natural than to divide between them justly the total volume of the water.

COMMISSION'S VIEW

"The Colorado River Commission has not thought that it would be possible to develop either the knowledge or the intelligence to settle this problem forever and at once. It has thought, therefore, to draw a compact which should provide for a temporary division of the water to cover the next generation, leaving it open to those who come after us with their greater knowledge and their equal or superior intelligence to determine upon the final quantities of water to be given to the upper basin and to the lower basin.

"By this device we shall have secured peace for our generation. We will enable each of the great basins to proceed at once with the great engineering works that are necessary if they are to expand their lands and protect their people from flood.

"It is now possible to consider the engineering steps to be taken for the development of each basin separately with its widely different problems. The lower basin requires the erection at once of a flood control works in the lower canyon. There are unique sites capable of making a lake so large as to retain the entire flow of the Colorado River for one year, and thus to allow a discharge of the water on to the fertile valleys of the South, robbed of its destructive qualities and turned to the service of man. This engineering work is the largest ever proposed in history in the conservation of water. It involves a dam twice as high as any hitherto built. Nor need this dam all be built at the moment but it can be builded in parts in such a fashion that as the need grows it can be extended. It should add two million acres of fertile land to California and Arizona and as an incident to its flow would develop 200,000 horsepower of electrical energy.

OTHER SITES AVAILABLE

"If during the century to come even more water can be availed of than can be stored in the lower canyon, other great sites lie in the canyon above Boulder Canyon, where almost a similar sum of water can be secured; and thus it would be possible to retain every drop of water from the high flows of certain years to even up the low flows of years over ten-year periods.

"It is thus the view of the Colorado River Commission that the first great step having been secured of the agreement between the States as to a basis of division of the water rights in the river, the next step should be the ratification of this contract that all of the West may join together in its influence and its support to get control works in the lower basin. Unless this work can be started within the next two years, the future of the Imperial Valley must be one of grave doubt and of grave concern. The situation in the lower delta of the river has become of so alarming a character today that we can not expect to control this river for more than another two years unless we have some actual, concrete, definite engineering work established for this purpose.

"The successful outcome of the work of the Commission in its first step is, I believe not only a step for the development of the Colorado River, but it is wider than that: It is proof that our States need not resort to the long and tedious processes of litigation to settle their interstate difficulties, but that they may themselves, under the Constitution of the United States, settle their troubles through the constructive hand of negotiation.

"If this compact can be made successful, it paves the way through real experience by which the Constitution which has ruled over us for 140 years can be brought into play to settle interstate problems by constructive common sense instead of destructive litigation.

"I wish to thank you."

Two Held in Connection with Huntington Park Robbery

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HUNTINGTON PARK, Nov. 26. Frank Desparte, who was recently arrested in Needles, and Roy Breckner, taken in charge by Los Angeles officers, were brought here yesterday, and taken before Judge Cassidy, where their preliminary hearing was set for Friday, December 8, at which time they will be given an opportunity to tell what they know, if anything, of the robbery of the Elden Brothers department store in Bell a few weeks ago.

An automobile number is said to have figured in the arrest of Desparte at Needles, and when he returned here, it was given out that the two men were together on the morning of the robbery, so Beckner's arrest followed.

The store was robbed during an early morning hour. A pedestrian, thinking it strange for a machine to be at that spot at that hour, took the number and turned it over to the officers.

Two Held in Connection with Huntington Park Robbery

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HUNTINGTON PARK, Nov. 26. Frank Desparte, who was recently arrested in Needles, and Roy Breckner, taken in charge by Los Angeles officers, were brought here yesterday, and taken before Judge Cassidy, where their preliminary hearing was set for Friday, December 8, at which time they will be given an opportunity to tell what they know, if anything, of the robbery of the Elden Brothers department store in Bell a few weeks ago.

An automobile number is said to have figured in the arrest of Desparte at Needles, and when he returned here, it was given out that the two men were together on the morning of the robbery, so Beckner's arrest followed.

The store was robbed during an early morning hour. A pedestrian, thinking it strange for a machine to be at that spot at that hour, took the number and turned it over to the officers.

Don't Play Blind Man's Buff with Your Electrical Installation

THERE is a very definite way that you may know in advance what you are buying, both in electrical service and in material and appliances.

Haphazard buying of appliances and the employment of cut-rate contracting service inevitably bring disappointment and needless expense.

Go to the qualified electrical contractor and dealer, who will study your problems as a whole—the wiring, the outlets, the fixtures, the appliances—and who will present you with a solution complete in every detail.

Insist on standard electrical materials and appliances such as those which the Pacific States Electric Company, with a world market from which to choose, has selected, approved, and certified with the "check" seal of quality.

Some of these materials and appliances are shown on this page. Others will appear in later advertisements of this series. They are distributed through responsible contractors and dealers qualified in every way to give you the kind of service which you have a right to expect.

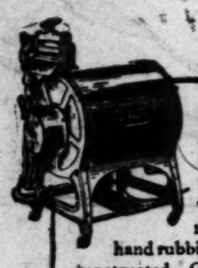
Look for the orange and blue "check" seal as a helpful guide both to quality in the electrical appliances and competence in contracting service.

The electrical appliances shown on this page, together with other standard electrical products, certified by the "check" seal, are described in our new booklet "The Electrical How for Householders." You will enjoy this booklet, with its many practical suggestions for the convenient and economical utilization of electricity in your home. It may be obtained free from any electrical contractor or dealer displaying this seal.

HOTPOINT ELECTRIC IRON—Achieves perfect results with least expenditure of energy. The cantilever handle, found only on the Hotpoint Electric Iron, carries the pressure of the arm and wrist on a direct line to the ironing, eliminating the tense grip and bodily strain required in using old style irons. It is equipped with attached heel stand.

THE SUPER AUTOMATIC HOTPOINT HUGHES—This range has automatic time and temperature control, eliminating the housewife's confinement to the kitchen. Has replaceable heating units. Oven has units for broiling and roasting. The Hotpoint Hughes is electricity's answer to good and easy cooking.

WALKER DISHWASHER—The one thoroughly practical dishwasher. On the market seven years and steadily growing in popularity. Thousands now in use. Directly connected with water supply and drain pipes and equipped with G-E motor. Practically eliminates the housewife's most disagreeable task. Current and soap power cost about 10 cents per week.

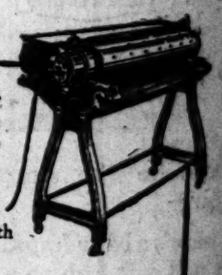


THOR ELECTRIC WASHING MACHINE—The Thor washes everything from fine laces to grimy overalls without any rubbing. It does the week's washing in half the time required by hand methods and eliminates the hard work of hand rubbing and rinsing. The Thor is scientifically constructed. Over 750,000 now in use. Has G-E motor.

HOTPOINT RADIANT GRILL—Boils, broils, fries, and toasts—any two operations at the same time; one above and the other below the coils, at the current cost of one. Used in combination with the Hotpoint Ovenette, the Hotpoint Radiant Grill also bakes and roasts. Three heat adjustment economizes current.

HOTPOINT SAFETY HEATING PAD—Successfully supersedes the hot-water bottle for all dry applications of heat to the body. Made of flexible interlocking sections which conform readily to the body curves, or may be wrapped around a limb. Any temperature between 100 to 200 degrees Fahrenheit easily obtained.

PREMIER VACUUM CLEANER—"First among cleaners." Half a million now in use. Cleans in two ways, by powerful suction alone or by suction plus a rubber-fingered brush. This feature is of great advantage to the housewife. Attachments include tools for cleaning mattresses, clothing, walls, etc. Has air cooled G-E motor.



THOR ELECTRIC IRONER—Does the average family ironing in about one-fifth the time it takes to do it by hand—and does it better. Handles everything from household linen to lingerie. Costs about 5 cents an hour to operate. Equipped with G-E motor. Automatic control.

G-E TUMBLER SWITCHES

The G-E tumbler switch is the latest device for electrical control, and stands up better than any other device made for a similar purpose. It is self-indicating—up and it's on, down and it's off. It can be operated with the arm or elbow should the hands be full.

LONG BEACH GAINING

Daily Oil Output May be 125,000 Barrels Before End of Present Year

BY ELLWOOD J. MUNGER

Long Beach production has gained steadily during the past ten days and is now back up to the hundred thousand mark. The bringing in of a number of deep wells on the northwest side and the redrilling and deepening of a number of wells on the top of the hill section is responsible for the increase. It has been generally conceded that the peak of production had been reached but now opinion is changing and it is believed that the daily output will reach a 125,000 a day before the end of the year.

The Petroleum Midway continues to lead the Long Beach operators with big wells. The latest wonder brought in by the P. M. Company is its Ryder No. 1. Completed in the deep sand at 3885 this new record Long Beach gusher started off at 4200 barrels. On account of fear of sanding the well has been cut back to 3500. The gravity of the big well is running 28 and demonstrates again what the deep sand at Long Beach has in store.

The Cooper Petroleum Company took over the well formerly known as the P. M. C. M. Syndicate some time ago at a depth of 3435 feet. Production tests at this depth failed to get a well, and drilling deeper to 4045 feet some splendid showings of oil sand and oil are now in evidence. The Cooper Petroleum is a straight north outpost well and will prove up much additional property heretofore considered rather questionable.

NO. 7 ON PRODUCTION

Ed Herwick finished his famous No. 7 at 4235 feet and is putting the well on production. At 4175 the water was shut off in the eight-inch and showed a lot of oil on drilling out the cement. With 150 feet of oil sand in the hole Herwick No. 7 should come up to expectations. At the time Herwick No. 7 was located the rig stood out to the northwest a half mile from production and the location was considered a hazardous wildcat.

At 3050 Jergins Trust No. 2 is drilling in the hardest oil sand ever encountered in the Long Beach Field. If the depth of the sand and the saturation means anything Jergins Trust No. 2 will set a new record for west side producers. It is understood that the City of Long Beach is worried about its wealth and does not know what to do with the handsome royalties A. T. Jergins is turning into the city treasury. When No. 2 comes in a 3000- or 4000-barrel well the city fathers will be still more worried.

The Shell Company added 3000 barrels of new production to the field by putting Bixby No. 1 back on production at 800 barrels and bringing in a 2200-barrel well at Cherry Hill 3. Bixby 1 at 4213 made some production a few weeks ago, and looked like it would make a well. On redrilling it and cleaning it out the production has been stabilized at 800 barrels. Cherry Hill 3 completes a nice trio of producers on Cherry street for the Shell Company. Completed at 3850 this well is making 2200 barrels. No. 1 the first of the group, continues to hold its own at 1600 barrels.

TEST SEEMS THOROUGH

Land owners whose properties lie southeast of Long Beach midway between Huntington Beach and Signal Hill will be satisfied with the Standard Oil's test well, Torrance Estate No. 1. Drilling has passed the 5900-foot mark and there are no showings of any importance. This is one of the deepest test wells ever sunk in Southern California and is a tribute to the rotary and Standard Oil management.

The daily production of the Wonder High Gravity oil field of California, Santa Fe Springs, hovered around 93,000 barrels during the past week. There are several big wells on tap and the output probably will go to a hundred thousand before long. Santa Fe Spring now possesses three wells doing better than 6000 barrels of 35-gravity oil.

The Elliott Petroleum Company makes the frank announcement that edge water developed in its west side test well at 3964 and it is the intention to pull the 6 1-4 oil string and go on down to the Meyer sand. At 3954 the ten inch was set, the cement drilled out and the well started flowing by heads. The bailer was run to agitate the flow and hot salt water was brought up. Mr. Elliott is to be congratulated on his work in that he wants the stockholders and the public to know the truth about his well. The showing of such a splendid spirit of truth and fairness is a valuable asset to the petroleum industry.

The Globe Petroleum Company has decided to make a gas well out of its No. 1. A fishing job at 3030 put the well out of the running for a producer. The well will make a nice commercial gasser, furnish fuel for drilling operation and make a lot of gasoline.

1800-BARREL WELL

On the Weaver property the Petroleum Midway brought in an 1800-barrel well. Weaver 2 was completed at 3538 and is making a splendid production considering the location of the well. The Weaver well is located in the town lot section of the field where big wells are not as common as they were several months ago.

The Standard Oil's South Whittier Community No. 1 made a nice showing when it increased its production from 4760 to 5100 barrels. No. 4 is still holding its record at 6000 barrels. On the South Whittier Community lease the Standard has four wells drilling and has two others ready to start drilling. The Whittier Community lease has a production of 15,000 barrels and is proving to be one of the greatest high gravity producing property in the Springs district.

With the Union Oil Company's Flood No. 1 down past the 5000 mark, drilling in hard gray sand, the outlook for the extreme northwest side of the Santa Fe Springs field is not very good. The Union is making every effort to develop production in the Flood well, the drilling has gone good, and a lot of time and money have been expended in taking core samples and watching the formation changes.

Huntington Beach made a big production showing during the last week when its output jumped up to 44,000 barrels. The Union Oil Company had a hand in the production increase by bringing in a 2400-barrel well on the Brooks lease. Completing Brooks No. 2 in the deep sand at 4545 a 28-gravity well was brought in. The oil string placed in Brooks 2 is a record, it being necessary to put in 1018 feet of slotted pipe to take care of the long stretch of oil sand.

STANDARD GETS THREE

The Standard Oil Company came in for its share of the Huntington Beach production honors with three nice wells. Huntington B-10, a deep sand completion at 4484, is an 825-barrel well. Jones Community No. 2 at 4560 sprung a surprise by coming in a 1600-barrel well producing 27-gravity oil. Huntington B-15, another deep well completed at 4270 a week ago, has increased its production from 1500 ot 2100 barrels. The attention of Huntington Beach producers is riveted on the Standard's Farnsworth No. 1 now standing cemented at 4560. Should this well make a commercial producer it will mark a new era for Huntington Beach. The well is located on the southeast side of the field and will have considerable to do with the stimulating of new development work.

At 4520 the Potter Oil Company stopped drilling on its Athens-on-the-Hill wildcat. A fifteen-inch hole was drilled to the above depth and marks a nice piece of work for big hole drilling. The Potter, it seems, was prepared to go to 5000 feet or deeper if necessary. The long runs of brown shale, and brown sandy shale, and no oil showings of any kind did not warrant the continuance of drilling. There no doubt will be some criticism because the Potter did not go on, but there are certain conditions that present themselves in the drilling of wildcat wells that does not encourage continuance. The Potter's Athens-on-the-Hill well had those conditions.

WORK IN NEW FIELD

The Artesia-Bellflower field is attracting considerable attention. During the last week another well started drilling and two new rigs are under construction. The Calpetro Producers' Syndicate started a well three weeks ago and have become so impressed with the possibilities of the field and its outlook that they have started another well. The starting of a second well before the first is down 200 feet sets a new precedent in wildcatting. It is understood that the Calpetro has made some very exhaustive study of the use of radio-activity in connection with the location of oil-bearing stuctures and is more than satisfied with the outlook in Bellflower.

The Midvein Oil Company, credited with doing the pioneering in the Bellflower field, has started active operations and will soon be drilling. The work of the Midvein Oil Company will be watched with special interest in that it was this company that made the first prognostication relative to the possibilities of Bellflower.

Some one started a rumor that the Standard Oil Company had a well at Buena Park. Every once in a while some lease hound or promoter start these stories. Such misrepresentations do not do the oil business any good. Drilling on the Buena Park well is now close to 5400 and to date there have been no oil showings of any importance.

Downey it seems does not stand much of a chance to get on the oil map of Southern California. The Union's community test well has passed 4500 feet without finding the coveted pay streak.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY, CHEMISTRY

You are politely requested to submit samples carefully wrapped and tagged, with letter accompanying, stating what tests are desired. Make sample of small size. These to be mineralogical or dry chemical. Correspondents offering matter for analysis with sand, or scrap of paper, intended to show that the stuff is from Jim Jones, Pa., Insurance, with no marks of identification on samples, will hereafter receive no attention. Analyses are made free of charge.

Free Gold Absent

WASHINGTON (D. C.) Nov. 3.—Question: I am sending under another cover a sample of ore which I desire to have your department assay and kindly give to me the mineral qualities it may contain. The ore comes from a location in the State of Virginia, not far from this city; near by, gold has been collected from small streams of water, and it is thought that the ore of which this is a sample may contain valuable mineral. I am inclosing one dollar, not in payment for the work, but to have a copy of The Times sent to me which will contain the result of the assay. If there are any charges I will gladly remit as soon as I know the amount. With gratitude I await your report. O.

Answer: This department of The Times makes no fire assays for gold and silver. The dollar inclosed in your letter was passed to the circulation department with the request that you be mailed a copy daily of The Times up to the time the money sent is balanced.

There are many localities in and around your city where gold occurs native, but in very low value per ton ore. Virginia has many little placer streams from which the "cu!lud folks" obtain on an average 60 cents per diem in gold by washing the earthy matter from the "gravel" in cast-iron skillets.

The sample you offer for analysis is a mixture of quartz with chloritic rock and magnesium silicate. In this matrix is found pyrite (iron disulphide) with traces of iron sulphate. By concentration the pyrite—if but little more were present—would pay, if used in the manufacture of sulphuric acid and by-products. Rock on the order of specimen, if more oxidized, should assay low in gold value.

Tellurium

BOZEMAN (Mont.) Nov. 4.—Q.: I mailed you yesterday a good sized sample of the ore in question. If you use much heating in roasting you will lose all the values in this ore, for it is telluride. B.

A.: We are somewhat familiar with telluride ores, having purchased many tons of such when our headquarters were in Denver, Colo.

The sample is a base-metal ore; chiefly sulphides, and analysis shows more or less antimony, lead, zinc, arsenic, iron and tellurium present.

While testing the sulphides named we found Nagyagite (lead telluride) and by microscopic examination detected Sperrylite (platium arsenide) sparingly present. Not assayed for gold or silver.

CAR SHORTAGE GROWS SERIOUS

Rolling Stock Not Repaired During Strike

Coal Problem Caused Greater Demand for Crude

Oil Journal Editor Discusses Conditions

"Within the last few weeks the shortage of tank cars has become a serious problem with many producers and refiners of petroleum," says Roscoe L. Taylor, editor of the Petroleum World.

"The delivery of oil cars throughout the country has been erratic and belated," he continued. "In many cases shippers have suffered severe inconveniences through the inability of the railroads to furnish cars for the movement of their products. Small companies, it appears, have been the most seriously affected by this acute situation.

"The walkout of the railroad shopcrafts struck a severe blow at the tank-car service. Repair work was greatly curtailed and at many rail points the rehabilitation of freight cars almost suspended. Tank cars, unfit for service, have been allowed to lie idle in the railroad yards.

INADEQUATE FACILITIES

"With increasing output it is found that many companies have inadequate facilities to unload the crude oil at the refineries or the gasoline and fuel oil at the distributing points within the forty-eight-hour period. These concerns find themselves forced to hold cars three or four days over the time limit and pay demurrage fees until storage space is available.

"This situation exists principally in new producing fields where the smaller operators have been unable to furnish storage facilities fast enough to keep pace with the output of the wells. Such, in part, is the case in California. Oil companies, however, are beginning to realize the importance of the prompt release of cars and are bending efforts to increase their equipment, which may help to some extent in solving the tank-car problem at this time.

"The coal strike, which for weeks was the center of industrial interest, has an important bearing on the present difficulties oil producers are experiencing in shipping their products.

CREATE NEW DEMAND

"Fearing a protracted strike and difficulty in getting coal orders filled, many manufacturers fitted up their plants with equipment burning fuel oil. Thus a new demand in the East was created by the coal strike.

"Coupled with the new demand for fuel oil is the gradual recession of shipments from the Mexican fields, which in the past have furnished the eastern United States with most of the fuel oil its industries consumed. With this vast supply of former years decimated, manufacturers are today forced to turn to American sources for their fuel oil. This petroleum product, once so difficult for producers to dispose of, and representing today, on the Coast, an important factor in the temporary over-production, is now in demand.

"Oil, which formerly was carried in tankers from the East Coast of Mexico to Atlantic ports, is now transported from Texas and mid-continent to northern and eastern centers in tank cars. This condition, no doubt, has been a factor in the car situation, viewed from a national standpoint.

NEW PRODUCTION

"The increased production of the oil fields has been instrumental in bringing about a shortage of tank cars on the Pacific Coast. New fields are now producing thousands of barrels of petroleum above the daily and monthly output of this time a year ago. The output has mounted fast and the demand for tank cars increased accordingly. Despite the building of a few pipe lines, cars cannot be secured readily enough at the present time to carry the crude oil to the refineries.

"In the immediate future there appears to be little chance of improvement in the tank car situation, although some producers on the Pacific Slope are hoping to relieve their transportation problems by the installation of additional pipe lines. In the Midwest and eastern territory conditions are expected to become worse on account of the new demand for fuel oil, the partial cessation of the Mexican output and the disorganized condition of traffic on the railroads."

NEW OIL FIELD IS FOUND

Gusher on Wheeler Ridge in Kern County Has Started Activity of Drillers in District

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, Nov. 26.—With the bringing in of a gusher at Wheeler Ridge, thirty miles south of Bakersfield, Kern county has a new oil field that may exceed in sensational production any field thus far discovered in the San Joaquin Valley, according to geologists who have visited the property during the past few days.

The well was brought in a few days ago at a depth of 2000 feet with an initial production of between 800 and 3000 barrels, it was disclosed after tests on the production were made. The oil is of 28 gravity.

The new Wheeler Ridge field is supposed, according to geologists, to be a restricted one, limited to not more than a dozen sections of land, but it is a shallow one and apparently of high-gravity oil. Water conditions are equally favorable. Owing to the level surface of the territory immediately surrounding the field transportation conditions also are favorable.

OLD WELLS FAR OFF

The Wheeler Ridge is a spur of low hills running almost east and west, starting from a point a couple of miles west of the State highway about three miles north of the mouth of the Tejon Canyon at Grapevine station. The discovery well is located in the southwest quarter of section 28, township 11, range 30. The nearest producing oil wells are in the east Maricopa fields, at least twenty-five miles distant. The property on which the well was drilled belongs to the Kern County Land Company and is a part of the San Emigdio ranch. With the exception of a few government sections all of the property immediately adjacent is owned by the same company.

Fortunate locators on the government sections include: Dr. N. N. Brown, E. F. Brittan and L. F. Lavers of Bakersfield, F. W. Rush of San Emigdio, and a group of Associated Oil Company employees of Fellows.

Drilling in the district was begun by the Standard eighteen months ago when a well was started in section 26, about a mile and a half east of the discovery well. This well was put down 5500 feet without oil of commercial quantity being found. Within a week after this well had been abandoned the Standard started its new well and within ten days oil sand had been struck at about 1150 feet.

NEW SAND FOUND

At a depth of 1560 feet more sand was found, and when the drill had reached a depth of 2050 feet the drill was taken out and the first string of ten-inch casing landed at 1970 feet, cemented off and an eight-inch string put in. The cement was drilled through and the process of bringing in the well was in progress during the past week.

Discovery of a real oil well in the Wheeler Ridge district culminates one of the most interesting romances of the local oil fields. As long ago as twenty years the first well was started in the district. This was known as the Wheeler-Bancroft well from the names of its promoters and the ridge of hills adjacent took its name from one of the original drillers. Since then a number of "wildcats" have been drilled in the flat which skirts the ridge, and while indications of oil were found in all of them, none was brought in as producers.

The most famous prospector for oil in this district was Zeke Henderson, an old-time driller, who spent a fortune and the greater part of five years trying to find the elusive oil pool there. One of Henderson's wells was drilled to the granite at a point not over a quarter of a mile from where the "break" in the oil sand is now supposed to have occurred.

The success of the Standard's prospecting is expected to add stimulus to the drilling of wells at Comanche Point, about twelve miles to the east of the Wheeler Ridge, and to the Fred Hall well about eight miles north, in both of which wells splendid indications of oil are said to have been found at comparatively shallow depths.

NEW OIL FIELD IS PROMISING

Opening of Santa Fe Springs Extension Evokes Interest

Well-Known Superintendent of Drilling Employed

Santa Fe Chief Syndicate in Charge of Operations

Opening of the new westward extension of the Santa Fe Springs oil district by the Santa Fe Chief Oil Syndicate is being watched with keen interest by oil men. Operators in close touch with the field and its development are pointing out that a still greater production can be expected in this section than any that has yet been encountered in the present producing area.

Lucas, Stewart & Co., Los Angeles stock and bond brokers, who organized the Santa Fe Chief Oil Syndicate, announce the employment of Roy Evans as superintendent of drilling. They say Evans located the site for well No. 1 on the syndicate's 10-acre lease and has already started work on the derrick. A big rotary drill will be installed and the well will be spudded in just as soon as the rig is completed.

When Evans was 23 years old he brought in the great Lakeview gusher for the original Lakeview Company. Later on he went with Lakeview No. 2 and brought in the famous gusher in the Miaicopa flat. In 1916 he became superintendent of the Interstate and Lakeview oil companies. He only recently left the Kern county district to cast his lot with Santa Fe Springs and his first connection is with the Santa Fe Chief Oil Syndicate.

The firm of Lucas Stewart & Co. say they are proving that in the financing of the Santa Fe Chief Oil Syndicate, oil development investments can be handled on the same high plane as any other class of securities. The Santa Fe Chief, they point out, is capitalized for only 2000 production interests at $100 each. The syndicate owns a ten-acre lease in the heart of the new westward extension to the Santa Fe Springs field which is entirely surrounded by large holdings of the Union, Standard and Amalgamated Oil Companies. Reliable geological reports in the hands of Lucas-Stewart are cited as convincing evidence that the new section is oil territory, with deep oil sands, located on the same structure found at the original Santa Fe Springs townsite.

DISCOVERY OF ORE IS IMPORTANT

Find at Globe, Ariz., May Result in Reconstruction of Old Plant

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GLOBE (Ariz.) Nov. 26.—Continuation of the Old Dominion vein in Arizona Commercial ground has been demonstrated by a cross-cut on the 1700 level of the latter property. The vein where found is fourteen feet wide, the ore a black sulphide-bornite and chalcocite sampling 8 per cent copper. The discovery is considered one of the most important ever made in this district.

There is expectation that plans soon will be announced for reconstruction of the Old Dominion smelter, with probable substitution of reverberatories for the large blast furnaces now in use. This change appears advisable in view of the increasing percentage of sulphide ores handled. In connection with this is reference to conditions only a few years ago, when sulphides for flux had to be brought in from Bisbee and California.

The company now is not in financial shape for large expenditures for construction, according to President Charles S. Smith, now in Globe, where he has been met by P. G. Beckett, general manager for the Phelps-Dodge Corporation, which owns a large interest in the Old Dominion. Mr. Beckett is familiar with local conditions, as he managed the Old Dominion for several years.

Superior and Boston is shipping 2000 tons of ore a month to the International smelter at Miami, from the Footwall and Rugby veins, with returns in both copper and silver. Drilling is to be started at once from the 1200 level. There is belief that an ore body lately cut is a continuation of the Old Dominion vein.

CONTRACT LET FOR NEW MILLING PLANT

COMPANY WILL ERECT WORKS AT AJO

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

AJO (Ariz.) Nov. 25.—The Wisconsin Bridge and Iron Company's El Paso branch, represented by E. P. Rankin, Jr., has received the contract for erection of the buildings of the New Cornelia Company's 5000-ton milling plant and will begin work about January 1. A large addition is to be made to the present power plant, while many new dwellings are to be erected, to house the additional force of employees. An ample water supply already has been developed by means of an additional deep well.

The same sulphuric acid used in the leaching of the surface oxides here is to serve in an experiment, conducted by representatives of the University of Arizona, in neutralizing alkalis in land near Casa Grande. A tank carload of acid has been donated for the purpose by the Calumet and Arizona Company, shipped from its works at Douglas.

SEES PROSPERITY

United Verde Head Sure of Increased Copper Demand

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

JEROME (Ariz.) Nov. 27.—In a recent interview Senator W. A. Clark, president of the United Verde, stated that the domestic demand for copper is increasing rapidly and Europe must settle down to business before long.

"That settling down," said the Senator, "will mean a greatly increased demand for the metal. There is a positive shortage of the red metal in Europe today, and this means that the moment they adjust themselves over there, the demand will be sufficiently great to insure a long period of prosperity for the copper mines of the Southwest."

OIL WELL DRILLINGS INCREASE IN NUMBER

NEW HOLES TOTAL 1277; LAST YEAR 1166 ON SAME DATE

Oil field operations reported to State Oil and Gas Supervisor R. E. Collom during the week ending Nov. 18, 1922, show forty-seven new wells started, as compared with twenty-eight during the previous week. The total new wells this year is 1277, as compared with 1166 the same date last year.

Tests for water shut-off this week numbered thirty as compared with thirty-one during the previous week. Yearly total to date 1523; total to same date last year 1294.

Deepening or redrilling jobs this week numbered nine, as compared with seventeen during the preceding week. Total to date this year 695; total to same date last year 603.

Abandonments this week numbered four, as compared with two during the preceding week. Total to date this year 238; total to same date last year 159.

ASBESTOS MINES ARE FOUND UNPROFITABLE

COMPANY DISMANTLING PLANT NORTH OF GLOBE, ARIZONA

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

GLOBE (Ariz.) Nov. 25.—That the mining of asbestos has not been attended with any large degree of profit is indicated by the action of the American Ores and Asbestos Company, which now is dismantling its surface works and plant in the Sierra Ancha Mountains, north of this city. The work is being done by the Southwestern Wrecking Company of El Paso, under the supervision of Homer C. Hirch.

Diamond drilling, under contract, is to start at once on the property of the Dripping Springs Mines Corporation, northwest of Winkelman. A. T. Copley is manager.

MIDVEIN BUILDING FIRST WELL DERRICK

HAMEL RANCH CHOSEN AS LOCATION FOR NEW OIL PROSPECTS

Signalizing a forward step in the development of the new oil field between Santa Fe Springs and Signal Hill in what is known as the Bellflower-Hynes-Clearwater district, the Midvein Oil and Refining Company has started erection of the derrick for its first well.

The location chosen for this well is on the Hamel ranch, Cerritos boulevard and Washington street, north of Bellflower and east of Clearwater.

Another important development in this new field during the past week was the delivery to the Cal-Petro company of lumber and machinery for the second well on their lease just north of Bellflower.

MINING TOWNSITE PLACED ON MARKET

DOAK-CHAMBERS COMPANY OPENS OFFICE IN LOS ANGELES

The Doak-Chambers Company, Inc., of Long Beach and Huntington Beach, operating oil properties in the Signal Hill and Huntington Beach fields, have opened local offices at 1036 South Broadway on the ground floor of the new Los Angeles Investment Building.

The company has taken over the selling agency of the new townsite of Goldtown, six miles south of Mojave, on the State Highway, in the Golden Horseshoe mining district.

The townsite is surrounded by many new gold mines, and indications point to a mining excitement by the continuation of development on many recently located properties.

One Hundred and Forty Years of Mutual Confidence

DURING the years of America's greatest financial need—from 1784 to 1789—the only foreign loans we received were from Holland. Our first loan from Dutch bankers was in 1782, just one hundred and forty years ago.

The wisdom of this judgment typifies the farsighted and discriminating attitude which has dominated Dutch finance and industry for centuries.

The bonds listed below derive their greatest strength from these national qualities. We believe that their present prices offer American investors an excellent opportunity to take advantage of the existing European conditions with confidence, safety and profit.

PROTEST WILL WITHOUT NAMES

Whether a will from which the signatures of witnesses have been cut can be admitted to probate, was the question before Judge Rives yesterday.

The will in question is that of Thomas H. McCormick, who died January 27, last. The disputed will, made in 1915, leaves the entire estate, amounting to $27,000, to a sister, Catherine Donovan of Illinois, and made no mention of Edward H. McCormick, a brother, or Mary Guido and Eugene McCormick, niece and nephew. Mrs. Donovan asks that the will be admitted to probate and that Edward H. McCormick be required to account for the administration of the estate.

McCormick, through his counsel, Scarborough & Brown, declares the will never was properly executed and that the signatures were cut off by the testator, whose intent was to revoke it. Doane & Melkeljohn of San Francisco appear for Mrs. Donovan. The case will continue Monday.

From Hampton Roads the Capella towed to San Diego the historic old training brig U.S.S. Boxer. The Boxer has been stationed at Newport for more than thirty years, and when the Capella dropped her tow at San Diego yesterday the Boxer's commission pennant was run down.

She has been sold to the Department of Commerce to be used as a station ship in Alaskan waters and tomorrow the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Tamaroa will leave Los Angeles Harbor to tow the windjammer to San Francisco.

FILM LEADERS MAKING PLANS

First National Charts Course for Coming Year

Budget of $7,000,000 Set Aside for Pictures

Outlook for 1923 Bright, Officials Say

With a budget calling for the expenditure of $7,000,000 more than the association spent in 1922, the entire executive committee of Associated First National Pictures, Inc., arrived here yesterday to make plans for the coming year.

Robert Rieber, president of the association, headed the delegation. The others were H. O. Schwalbe, secretary and treasurer; E. V. Richards, Jr., of the Saenger Amusement Company, New Orleans; A. H. Blank, Des Moines; Sam Katz of Balaban & Katz, Chicago, operating the Chicago, Tivoli and Riviera theaters, and Morris Mark of the Mark-Strand chain of playhouses. Richard A. Rowland, general manager of First National, arrived a week ago and went over the local field. He will submit a report to the executive committee.

BACK PRODUCERS

First National has no intention of going into the producing field on an elaborate scale, said President Lieber.

"Our main standby is and always will be, the independent producer," he said. "We have called this meeting of the executive committee to work out plans for further and concrete encouragement to this group. We have no ready-made plan to announce, but we feel free to predict the ever greater centralization of motion-picture production in this city.

"We shall devote the next three days to meeting leading figures of the industry, previewing pictures and visiting productions in the making. Then we will get down to business.

OUTLOOK BRIGHT

"The outlook for the entire industry and for First National in particular was never brighter. It will be a great year for the films and for their capital city, Los Angeles. Coming attractions will, we believe, eclipse the box-office records of 'The Eternal Flame,' with Norma Talmage; Guy Bates Post in 'The Masquerader,' Jackie Coogan in 'Oliver Twist' and other big successes of the past year."

The executive committee will be quartered at the Ambassador and will hold their business meetings at the offices of John McCormick, their western representative.

TAXPAYERS PAY FOR FAVORITES

its way undisturbed, except by the rumbles of helpless taxpayers, to pay salaries to friends of municipal-ownership schemes who happen to be on the board's pay rolls, conduct large and expensive junkets of board officials to Washington to lobby in vain for a Los Angeles-John R. Haynes-exclusive Los Angeles Boulder Canyon dam, and to turn out municipal-ownership propaganda in the form of literature and even motion pictures.

When the flow of political propaganda from the board reached the size of a flood in November, for which the water and power consumers of the city paid all expenses, there was such a general public protest that it reached the ears of the grand jury, which began its present investigation into the asserted misuse of the public funds intrusted to the care of the Public Service Board.

FAITH WINS NEW CHURCH FOR DEVOUT

Highland Park Christian Congregation "Asked and It Received"

"Build a church to the glory of the Father and the service of His children and trust the Lord to help pay for it." That was the slogan of the members of Highland Park Christian Church when, a few months ago, with faith for the cornerstone of their new temple of worship, they took a small sum of money to J. S. Wilson and told him that when he had finished the first unit of the structure he would be paid in full.

Yesterday morning the first unit of the new church, at Monte Vista street and West avenue Fifty-eight, was formally dedicated in the presence of an audience of 800 and before the meeting was over the $40,000 indebtedness upon it had been raised in cash and pledges.

The first unit of the new church, when completed, will have cost approximately $80,000, and includes an auditorium with a seating capacity of 800 and twenty-five modern class-rooms for the Sunday school and Bible classes.

The building was tastily decorated for the occasion and the dedicatory sermon was preached by George L. Snively, who was assisted in the services by Rev. Alden Lee Hill, the pastor, and C. C. Chapman, "the orange king."

While the services were in progress an overflow meeting was conducted at the Masonic Hall, attended by 300 children who enjoyed an illustrated Bible lecture by A. S. Futterer. Following the morning program the women of the church served a free luncheon to nearly 1500 guests.

Mr. Hill is now in the fifth year of his pastorate at the church and the membership has grown from 200 to 500 in less than five years.

Services Mark Dedication of Auditorium

Nearly 1000 members and friends of the Hyde Park Congregational Church yesterday attended the dedicatory services of the new Bible School Auditorium, recently finished at a cost of about $10,000. The auditorium was presented to the congregation as a gift and was erected as a memorial to the late Capt. H. B. Clark, who was superintendent of the Bible School for several years.

The dedication sermon was preached by Dr. Daniel F. Fox, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Pasadena, who spoke on "Ideals," emphasizing the value of the Sunday School and Bible School in the campaign for better citizenship.

Assisting at the services were the Rev. George F. Kenngott, D.D., J. L. Matle, D.D., the Rev. M. A. Shipman, associate pastor, and the Rev. J. M. Schaefle, who has been pastor of the church for the last thirty-one years. Presiding at the organ was Mrs. S. Pemberton, and among the soloists were Russell Schaefle and Mrs. Alice L. McDaniel.

GUNS FLASH AT SEIZURE OF LIQUOR

Illicit Whisky Valued at $10,000 Taken in Raid Near Norwalk

Raiding a bootleg establishment three miles north of Norwalk early yesterday morning, George Contreras and eight other officers from the District Attorney's office obtained illicit liquor valued at $10,000 and arrested three men, following an engagement in which butcher knives and shotguns were brought into play.

The men arrested were Frank Adstead, J. A. Keen and a man named Kolby, who were surprised by the officers a few hours after the accused persons had retired for the night. When the officers burst into the room Keen made a lunge for a butcher knife under his pillow and the others reached for their shotguns, but the officers had the drop on them and they surrendered.

Kolby, who was said to be the chief salesman for theoutfit, made his escape, his dog following him. At daybreak the dog returned to the cabin and the officers, starting out in the direction from which the dog had come, discovered the house which evidently had served as the distributing headquarters and in which they say they found 200 gallons of whisky. A large quantity of liquor was also found in the cabin in which the arrests were made earlier in the morning.

Kolby was picked up at Norwalk yesterday afternoon by Constable Freeman of Artesia. Bill Nelson, another asserted member of the gang, was arrested yesterday at Downey.

Mr. Contreras and his aides made another important arrest yesterday in the person of Tony Morelos at Puente, and 84000 gallons of wine were confiscated. Morelos was attending a funeral when his winery as raided and, upon his promise to come to Los Angeles at 10 a.m. today and surrender to the authorities, he was not taken into custody.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.—[Advertisement.
